

Chapter 232

Yohan's face changed on the spot!

Not only his expression changed, but the expression of the rest changed as well!

Penalty!

Five hundred million!

It hit everyone by surprise!

How was it possible that Lunanica Media signed such ridiculous contracts with this bunch of rubbish?

Even more bizarre was its high penalty!

What was Lunanica Media doing?

Were they crazy?

It became very interesting to Janet.

At first, Janet thought that it was crazy of them to offer to buy over the ten actors at a high price.

Now, it was their turn to think that Lunanica Media's renewal of these ten actors was crazy.

They were all lunatics, weren't they?

Who was the only one with sanity?

The answer was clear...

Yohan was about to denounce that the contracts were fake and that it was a tactic Lunanica Media use to demand a higher exorbitant price.

His sight then fell onto the date when the contracts were signed.

It happened twenty days ago!

In other words, those actors had already signed the contract when the filming started.

Five hundred million!

Yohan felt a sting!

The original plan was to spend one hundred million but it had now become five times more.

In fact, it was going to cost more than that!

For five hundred million was only the penalty!

It would be a full six hundred million adding up the price of the actors when they signed the contract!

He couldn't help but curse in his heart!

It was an unbelievable coincidence!

The reason why Yohan still thought that it was a coincidence was that Lunanica Media seemed equally baffled.

No one seemed to know the fascinating secret yet!

What would be the next step?

To sign or not to sign?

Seeing Yohan's expression, Janet was delighted.

It was not because she could finally see off the actors.

She was over cloud nine to see Yohan to be checkmated!

Only a fool would buy ten pieces of junk for so much money.

She thought, "Yohan, you will leave in defeat."

Janet was not aware that William's plan was already unfolding.

Every move and step was on the right track.

Just when Janet felt that Yohan was going to leave in disgrace, his face suddenly turned grim. "Okay! Five hundred million of penalty, plus one hundred million for the contract. We will pay the amount!"

The decision caused another uproar!

Insane!

Was there no other place for them to spend money?

It was six hundred million all at once!

What were these people thinking?

Even Janet was dumbfounded.

It was something she didn't expect.

Seeing the sudden change in Janet's expression, Yohan felt much better.

It seemed like Lunanica Media would instead be thwarted by him.

Six hundred million was a hell lot!

But in the eyes of those experts, the amount was nothing compared to the value of that treasure!

This amount, although unexpected, was still worth it!

"Miss Ching, do you have any more concerns?" Yohan asked.

Janet became uncertain and restless.

Six hundred million!

Such a huge sum!

If they were sold off, Lunanica Media would be able to use it for their urgent needs.

Should they sell it?

The reason for Janet's uncertainty was due to William!

It felt like she was already part of William's ploy.

This much desired and lucrative contract made Janet retreat to hesitation.

If she blindly agreed to Yohan's request, would it undermine William's ploy?

Moreover, they had taken so much trouble just to sign these ten actors. There must be something fishy!

What kind of chain reaction would happen after she sold them off?

Janet couldn't help but let out a deep sigh.

It was too difficult for her to make such a decision.

Having to deal with this group of people was one.

Yet, she still had to think thoroughly for William who was long gone.

In that moment, Janet was reminded of William's pouches!

That was right!

The tips!

Didn't that guy say to refer to the tips if she encountered any problem?

It must be reasonable to consider her current predicament as a problem.

D*mn!

That brat seemed to know what would happen, including her concerns about his ploy.

D*rn it!

Janet angrily took out the pouch marked as number two and saw another note.

There were words on it, very similar to the first pouch.

However, the words made Janet's whole body tremble.

It was true!

He had taken everything into account perfectly!

The words stated, "Sell it all!"

Sell it all!

Wasn't it the exact situation she encountered now?

That brat deliberately signed with those ten actors and raised the penalty just to sell them off?

If it was the case, Lunanica Media would make a huge profit!

This money seemed to have come out of thin air!

Janet became confident and decided right away, "Great! Deal!"

She made the decision right on the spot. - She actually had the illusion that she was at the peak of a raging storm, rising as a triumphant warrior!

That brat was amazing!

If it was just a coincidence with the last tip in the pouch stated, "Buy everything that you can possibly buy..."

Then what about the 'sell it all' this time?

Was it still a coincidence?

She was afraid it was not that simple.

Janet's brain exploded at that moment.

Why?

.....

What was there that she couldn't see?

She racked her brain but couldn't figure out the crux of the matter.

However she did see one point, and it made her excited!

This sale would make six hundred million.

Well, she knew very well that the money did not just fall from heaven.

No!

William had signed these actors for one hundred million before he got kicked out.

Following William's instructions, she bought all the shares and owed five hundred million.

Adding all these up...

Coincidentally...

It happened to be six hundred million!

The money from the sale of ten actors was enough to cover the losses!

Janet would slap herself to say that these were all but coincidence!

What a terrifying man William was!

He had already thought about everything that would happen.

He thought about all the losses it would cause!

So he had also figured out how to deal with losses!

Up to now, under his strategy, the company had cleared out a debt of six hundred million!

Marvellous!

Janet had managed to solve the last two problems using the tips in these two pouches!

The staff member brought over the contracts to sell off the actors.

The contracts were handed to Yohan who took a glance at the sluggish Janet and quickly signed it.

Janet looked at the contracts carefully and finally signed them with trembling hands.

After that, Yohan breathed a long sigh of relief.

Although there were some twists and turns in the negotiation that day, it went on according to what he had imagined.

"Then please contact the ten actors and bring them back home immediately," Yohan told Janet.

Janet was taken aback, Yohan knew that the ten actors were abroad and he couldn't get in touch.

Hence, he was forced to come to Lunanica Media to get what was needed.

This must be what happened!

Based on Janet's understanding of him and his viciousness, he would definitely engage in such an insidious move!

D*mn!

Such a clever arrangement to take them abroad!
And it was actually arranged by William!

At that moment, Janet had nothing else to comment about William.

His wisdom was as deep as the ocean!

She wanted to call William to tell him about what had happened.

When she picked up the phone, her heart rate raised in crescendo when she thought of another more shocking fact!

@vamp20w0111

Chapter 233

Janet had earlier on bought the company shares for him!

And everything that was happening proved one thing!

He was the biggest winner in this game!

He had all the shares without spending a dime!

He was now the company's largest shareholder!

"D*mn!" Janet stood up and cursed.

Everyone immediately looked at her.

Her face flushed in embarrassment. She apologized and sat down again.

Yohan looked at Janet strangely and thought that Janet had discovered the secret.

But seeing that Janet didn't say anything else, he was relieved.

The secret must not be known to anyone and not until the ten actors returned.

Otherwise, it would be a huge trouble!

Yohan immediately got up and when he passed by Janet, he patted her shoulder triumphantly. "You lose again this time. We should never see each other anymore."

Janet replied coldly, "I hope we never meet in this life."

Yohan chuckled. "Is that right? I do hope that if we meet again, you will kneel in front of me. How about we make a bet? Whoever takes the initiative to meet the other person will have to kneel down and beg."

Yohan was full of confidence.

It would be better not to see each other again for the rest of their life.

What if Janet knew about the secrets and the valuable treasures?

She would definitely be upset.

And she might come and beg him shamelessly.

Haha...

It was once again a bet that he wouldn't lose.

It was going to be so much fun! This bet was part of his celebration!

Janet glanced at Yohan peculiarly this time but agreed at once, "Okay, as you wish."

Yohan was taken aback and looked at Janet in disbelief.

Janet smiled without saying a word and politely sent off the guests.

To kneel in front of him when they met each other again? Hmph!

This was going to be interesting...

Yohan and the team would never know what actually happened that day.

They didn't even expect there was someone mysterious plotting this and that he was looking down at them far from above.

And she was willing to become a pawn in his chess game, following his instructions and moving forward step by step.

Yet, they would be kept in darkness...

They would only end up putting themselves on a dead end.

She would stand by William's side this round!

She stood by him as he fought back against adversity!

She stood by him even if it took him miles away to be a victory!

Since William had plotted it that way, there had to be some other after-effects that they would not be able to escape from!

The next time they met would be interesting.

Janet put her hand in her pocket and gently pinched the two pouches of tips.

She laughed.

The situation had been dealt with only two tips.

What kind of shocking effects would the remaining pouches produce?

Janet suddenly had an urge; she wished to foresee the future.

She grasped the pouch in her palm which was getting sweaty.

She really wanted to take a peek at what was written in there.

So curious!

However, would it still work if she opened it?

It was such a difficult decision to make!

Should she call and ask him about it?

Otherwise, she would be on pins and needles, feeling tortured.

However, she didn't seem to be able to bring herself to see him at all.

She humiliated him before so she was ashamed to meet him now.

Janet began to struggle at that moment...

But in the end, she did not call William nor open the pouches.

Since she was willing to be a pawn of his, she would just play by his ploy quietly.

She would just leave everything to him!

That sc*m!

Moron!

Wimp!

These words stung in Janet's heart for the first time.

These were the words she previously used to describe William.

However, in hindsight, she realized how ignorant she was!

Who was the sc*m? She was the one not knowing what to do in the face of a deadlock.

Who was the moron? She was the one who failed to come out with a workable strategy when they needed one desperately.

Who was the wimp? She was the one who succumbed in the face of evil people.

It was her!

And William after multiple violent storms could finally reveal his grandeur.

He could take the majority of the company shareholding without a fight!

Besides sending those ten scums away with his incredible plot!

He had turned a goofy move into a brilliant step!

What would be his next trick?

It was a mysterious key point that she missed out since the beginning.

She should wait and see.

When Martin returned to the office, he was obviously distracted.

He saw through something too.

At least on the surface, he knew that Lunanica Media was getting further and further away from death.

He managed to incite those shareholders and put the pressure of the five-hundred-million debt on Janet.

However, it didn't last long as Janet managed to break through it.

The six hundred million was enough to pay off the shareholders.

There couldn't be any more coincidence than this!

When did Janet become so powerful?

Was there someone behind her?

Who would it be?

William?

The first person who came to Martin's mind was William, but he got rid of that thought.

It couldn't be him.

He had already kicked William out of the company!

No way that a defeated man like William could come up with such a plan!

Things were getting more and more complicated.

Martin pondered for a while and called Darren, "Darren, you should undo the thing that the three of us did before. The money is now useless."

Yohan and the team waited in the office for the entire day.

They finally got the news that the ten actors returned to Qena City.

Yohan became excited at once, for the secret was now in his control.

The ten actors looked unhappy when they returned.

They enjoyed it a lot when they were abroad. They did not expect to be summoned back.

But when they knew that they were being bought over by another company at a high price, they were overjoyed.

Lunanica Media was good but it was better to have a richer employer.

Who didn't want to be successful and be known?

This company was willing to sign them at a high price.

How lucky they were!

Besides being highly regarded by Lunanica Media, they went abroad for a free tour, before they were bought over by another company at a high price. When Lady Luck smiled at them, they couldn't even stop the fortune coming!

All ten of them walked into Yohan's office with excitement.

Yohan and the team had waited for them inside the room.

Seeing the ten actors, Yohan's brows wrinkled.

They looked ordinary.

But their noses were so high in the air that they completely disregarded Yohan and the team.

Yohan suppressed his annoyance and said politely to them, "I am Yohan. Welcome to our company."

They looked at each other and then sized Yohan up.

The first one, with a look of displeasure, said, "You're a staff here? Don't you know how to serve others? Where are our snacks? Hurry, get us something to eat!"

Chapter 234

When Yohan and the team heard this, their faces fell in that instant!

These people were ignorant!

A bunch of rubbish!

If they were not of any advantage, he would have killed them!

Yohan was stunned while they added sarcastically, "What else are you looking at? Won't you come and put our luggage away? Don't just stand there like an idiot!"

Veins could be seen pounding in Yohan's and the team's heads, as though they would burst.

Yohan was mindful of the big picture and called in a few staff members to take care of the luggage.

He was careful of keeping his identity as a secret.

These people are just small fries and that they didn't even qualify to know his identity.

He would tolerate them for the time being and fish out the information he needed from them before he ended all of them for good!

Yohan forced a fake smile and said, "Please take your seats."

Those people started to look at him and frowned.

"What type of business your company is running? Not an entertainment company, right?"

"We were bought over at a high price to become your superstars. Don't you dare fool us!" a man in his early thirties hissed.

"Where is your boss? Get him out to see us. We want to meet him and get acquainted." The girl next to the man crossed her arms.

They were not going to drop their arrogant front. After all, it cost six hundred million to sign up the ten of them.

It was a huge sum of money for any company.

Since they were bought over with huge sum of money, they were definitely the company's top or first class stars.

That being said they should receive high class treatment.

What was the matter with Yohan and his team acting cool here?

Didn't they know how to say anything nice?

What dumba*s they were!

Luckily, Yohan and his team looked quite decent, otherwise, the actors swore to give them a good beating right there and then.

The ten actors sat on the chairs, anxious and irate.

They felt that they were here for something else, and were looked down on; truth be told, they didn't like it.

At that moment, Yohan took out a stack of papers and a few pens from his desk before he gave them to the ten actors.

They were taken aback for a moment. "What are you doing? You're giving us an entrance exam? Are you trying to humiliate us?"

Yohan held back his breath and said, "You don't have to ask too much. Please dictate your lines in the movie for us."

"What the hell do you mean?" said one of them, while slapping on the table, looking agitated. "Is this really a test? I'm telling you, this is an insult! Where's your boss? I need to see your boss!"

Few tore off the paper on the spot.

Yohan looked at these uncultivated people; he couldn't stand it anymore.

He slammed the table and said furiously, "Be f*ucking quiet! Can't wait to be chased out from here, huh? Let me fulfil your wishes!"

As he shouted, several security guards rushed in while holding batons in their hands; they all looked very aggressive and fierce!

Those ten people were used to violence and they did not fear any security guards.

How could they even believe that they would be beaten up?

"Security? What nonsense! Who do you think you are! Let me tell you this, don't think that just because I signed up with your worthless company, you can run roughshod over me! I can leave at any time!"

"I'm not here to take such nonsense! I'm done! Goodbye!" A girl rolled her eyes.

"Let's go together! It wastes my energy just by looking at these people! We rushed over here as soon as we got off the plane. We have not even had a decent meal. But now, we are humiliated by these lots of clowns! What wrong have we done?"

The ten of them stepped outside as they were talking.

Yohan's expression was ruthless as he gestured to the security guards.

The security guards immediately dashed forward while waving the batons!

Loud screeches could be heard in that instant.

"D*mn! How dare you beat me! You guys will be dead!"

A girl bellowed while struggling, "Someone call the police! Do you treat celebrities like this?"

"Help, someone, help!"

Yohan looked at them who remained stubborn. "Give them a good beating!"

The security guards beat them harder.

The ten actors panicked.

These guards were actually beating them up!

Their faces were badly injured and blood was seen splattered across the room!

They finally gave in when they saw the bloodstains.

"Please don't hit me! I was wrong, I'm sorry."

The girl put her hands together and pleaded, "Okay, okay, please stop. Help!"

"Please let me go! I beg you!"

It was a total chaos.

It only took a beating that turned them from being arrogant to begging for forgiveness.

Seeing them on their knees, Yohan nodded in satisfaction and exclaimed, "Insensible scums! Think I'm a fool!"

He paused and spat. "Celebrities? You're even worse than sh*t to me!"

They trembled and didn't even dare to say anything despite being insulted by Yohan.

"You know what to do now?" Yohan asked condescendingly.

They nodded immediately. "Yes, boss. Whatever you want us to do, we will do it."

Yohan commanded that they moved to the table. They followed his order right away.

Papers and pens were distributed to them again.

"Write all your lines in the movie for me. NOW!" Yohan repeated.

They were annoyed as though they were put to a test. "Your company's requirements are really high. I never expect that an entrance exam is required."

Yohan gave them a fierce look and their necks slumped. "Okay! We will write it down right away."

With that said, all of them looked like three year old children taking an exam.

Few bit the pen while holding their heads. Some of them lowered their heads as though looking at their cheat sheets.

Yohan and the team felt funny looking at them from the side.

They were worse than a bunch of rubbish!

After they wrote down everything, he would send it to Maxwell to check on the authenticity.

If things were smooth, these people could get lost soon.

Where did their arrogance even come from? How dared they regarded themselves as celebrities given their low standard?!

Yohan's phone rang at that moment, he took a glance; it was a call from Maxwell.

He picked it up and said immediately, "Maxwell, I'm following the plan here. I will get what you want soon."

The voice over the call trembled and sounded exceedingly anxious. "How many copies?"

"All! Ten copies!" Yohan's voice quivered slightly too.

Maxwell burst into laughter from the other side of the call. "Yohan, you are getting more sensible! I will put in a good word for you to your superiors. I can see our good days are coming!"

Yohan thanked Maxwell sincerely and hung up. He had been longing for more power.

After a while, someone from the group finally turned in her paper.

Yohan suppressed his excitement; it was going to reveal the very first miracle!

He looked at the paper with joy but was totally dumbfounded!

He was so angry that he slapped the paper on the woman's face. "You f*cking wrote me a serial novel?!"

The woman was aggrieved. "Since it's an exam, you should expect me to submit wrong answers. You just wait and see for there will be a few handing in blank papers later."

Yohan was so irate that he gave her a slap, "How dare you talk back! Rewrite it! If you can't, I will kill you!"

The woman cried and shouted heartbreakingly, "I have forgotten them! I really have! They must have forgotten their lines too! Why don't you beat them up too?"

@vamp20w0111

Chapter 235

When Yohan heard this, he shivered.

A premonition suddenly struck him.

He thought everything was in order except for the last crucial part.

It appeared that there was a very scary loophole in everything he did!

It shouldn't be!

Yohan immediately looked at the others.

At that moment, the people immediately lowered their heads when they noticed Yohan's stare. No one dared to look at him in the eye.

Yohan gave an order and several people rushed forward before they picked up all the papers on the desks.

All their faces changed!

What the hell was written on the papers?

Many could not even write a complete sentence!

Few even handed in a blank paper!

Ten people!

None of the ten could write their own lines!

How long had it been?

They dared to call themselves actors?!

What b*stards!

Yohan was so irate that he slapped on the table with a loud bang. "Are you f*ucking kidding me? Are you still trying to bullsh*t me just because you haven't seen my real colors?"

They fell on their knees, groaning and begging.

"Please! We really couldn't write any."

"When we were shooting the film, we would only murmur a few lines as the rest would be dubbed later. All our lines were recorded one at a time," a girl explained.

"We have been travelling for the past few days and really have forgotten those lines as we have had too much fun."

The reasons made Yohan feel depressed!

They were fools!

They couldn't even remember the simplest lines!

"Kill them!" Yohan was so angry that he exploded on the spot.

The security guards rushed forward again and this time they were not holding back at all.

Blood was everywhere. It was a brutal and inhumane scene.

It took a full ten minutes of beating before Yohan was somewhat relieved and he stopped them.

"Throw them all out!" Yohan ordered.

The security guards dragged them out.

Remaining hopeful, one of the poor guys suddenly asked bitterly, "When will we be working here?"

"Work? Don't ever let me see you again in Qena City! I'll beat you up every time I see you!" Yohan flicked a pen holder and threw it over.

His words struck them like lightning!

Were they being fired?

Didn't Yohan spend six hundred million to buy them over? But they did not even get to work here for one day. Were they being fired?

Gone was the six hundred million!

They were thrown out of the company. They then looked at each other and cried out loud together.

They were out of job.

Their future was gone.

All the beautiful illusions about the future were gone at that moment!

Prior to that, they had been complacent thinking that they were lucky as everything went well.

In a blink of an eye, their fortune had just turned into misfortune.

They had nothing now!

A feeling of regret rushed through their veins at that moment.

They thought initially that as long as they could write out their lines, it was possible for them to stay in the company and be respected.

Unfortunately, they didn't remember their lines, not even the most basic ones!

They had forgotten everything!

Misery!

Endless misery!

If they could only take a little more effort and spend a little more time, it should not be difficult for them to memorize those lines!

Well, perhaps it was true that God would reward those who helped themselves and punished those who were evil!

They brought onto themselves these disastrous consequences!

They were thumping their chests with regret but nothing could be salvaged anymore.

While Yohan and the team were sitting at the table, they were livid!

Yohan's face was grim.

He finally realized what his previous premonition was!

It was his self-righteousness!

He was too ignorant and arrogant!

He thought he could start with these ten people and put a big dent in Lunanica Media.

He was just too complacent, thinking that he would outsmart them. Never did expect that all his efforts would end up in vain.

No one could have imagined that the ten people were so useless!

They couldn't even pass the most basic skill as an actor, i.e. to remember their lines!

There were ten of them!

If only one of them could write it out...

It would at least suppress some of his anger.

But not a single one out of ten could write anything!

Six hundred million yuan went down the drain!

D*mn!

Yohan wondered, "Could all this be the conspiracy of Lunanica Media?"

It was such a coincidence that all these ten people couldn't remember their lines!

However, after giving it a thought, he immediately got it out of his mind.

It was obvious that Lunanica didn't know about the secret.

So it was impossible that they could foresee this.

No way!

It was such an unpleasant and frustrating coincidence!

"Yohan, what do we do now? We have just lost six hundred million! If the people at the top know about this, who will be responsible for it?" someone asked Yohan angrily.

Exasperated, Yohan yelled, "I know the consequences better than you! Stop making noises! Let me think!"

Consequences? What were the consequences?

If the people at the top knew that they had invested six hundred million for nothing, they would definitely be dealt with severely!

Buying over a bunch of rubbish with six hundred million... the consequences would be more serious than just laying them off.

The ten people were indeed trash!

The most urgent task was to think about how to make up for those losses!

"How much money do we have now?" Yohan asked suddenly.

One of them immediately answered, "They have given us a total of fifteen billion and now we are left with nine billion."

Yohan pondered for a moment; nine billion might seem a lot.

However, going after those treasures with that amount seemed a little insufficient.

The company had high hopes on them. How could they spend the whole amount of fifteen billion?

How would that prove their capability THEN?

They had to find a different way.

How could they spend the least cost to get those treasures and recover the catastrophic losses?

It was going to be a difficult task.

They frowned and none of them spoke.

Things were not optimistic.

"Have you thought of any good ideas?" Yohan finally couldn't stand it and asked.

The team just shook their heads.

Yohan sighed and it seemed like he could no longer count on this group of people.

They were usually smart a*ses.

They looked like a bunch of brats hidden in a corner and dared not let out a single sound.

"Let's watch the movie again to see if we can think of anything," Yohan suggested.

They played the movie once again.

When they saw the poor acting skills, they couldn't help but lash out again.

Yohan stared at the movie without saying a word.

He suddenly squinted his eyes!

The editing!

18:36

Those few scenes had quite an extraordinary editing!

Right!

That was it!

He saw a glimmer of hope and immediately stood up. He then shouted excitedly, "I have figured out a way! It is for sure this time!"

@vamp20w0111

Chapter 236

When everyone saw Yohan was trembling with excitement, they couldn't help but become elated. "What is your idea? Tell us quickly!"

Yohan was definitely the most cunning fox among them.

He could often lead them to a surprise victory in times of desperation.

Yohan who was stifled with excitement, turned his gaze back to the movie and told someone to rewind the movie.

Everyone was confused.

Yohan pointed to the clips in the movie and said triumphantly, "Look at these few contradictory scenes. What do you see?"

Everyone couldn't help but say, "It means Lunanica Media is hopeless."

All they saw was the rather paradoxical editing!

They despised this movie so much for its horrible editing as the secrets that they wanted to uncover were edited into a few scenes and pieces.

All the secrets had been edited out.

Yohan burst into laughter as he wagged his finger. "No! You do not see what I am seeing."

"What does that mean?" Everyone couldn't help but ask curiously.

Yohan's gaze turned spiteful and he said something that shocked everyone!

"This means that all the secrets are in the original film! Without a single cut! The secrets are all in there!"

When they heard this, they had goosebumps all over their bodies!

Amazing!

Yohan had brought up an absolutely amazing discovery!

They had been too rigid and they didn't even think out of the box!

Yohan was so right!

The secrets they wanted to uncover were edited out in that version.

On the other hand, the original version was different.

If they could get the original tape, they could very well uncover the secrets!

"You are simply amazing! Why didn't we think of that?" a man exclaimed.

"With Yohan here, we have nothing to worry about!"

A lady immediately chimed in, "Goodness, I know that we can count on Yohan!"

Yohan accepted everyone's flattery and couldn't help but feel proud.

"All we have to do is to get the original copy and problems will be solved!" Yohan finally set the tone.

"How smart of them to think of this method to distract us! I don't believe Lunanica Media can think of this move!"

Everyone was taken aback.

To distract them?

Yohan must have been born to be a strategist!

Although the previous move of buying over the ten actors ended up as a failure...

Yohan could not be blamed at all.

They could only blame the ten scumbags.

However, they were sure this time they had found the key to the secrets!

"So we're going to Lunanica Media tomorrow to buy their original copy?" someone asked following Yohan's ideas.

Yohan laughed loudly. "Idiot! Aren't you telling Lunanica Media that there is something in the original copy if we offer to buy? We have to distract them and make them believe that we're not after it. We have to find something else."

"Something else?" Everyone was dumbstruck.

"Well! We will go to Lunanica Media again tomorrow and tell them we think that it's a wonderful movie and that we will buy its copyrights."

"How much money can this copyright cost? You can buy it for around a few million. The movie is after all worthless. We pay them several million and they should, rightfully, thank us."

"We will mention that we want to edit the film again and ask them for the original copy for free. Wouldn't that work?"

Yohan's words led to another round of applause.

Brilliant!

This distraction was absolutely an incredible idea! In the name of buying the movie copyrights, who would have thought that the real intention was to get hold of original copy from Lunanica Media!

Amazing plot!

The team brimmed with joy!

They could definitely counter attack this time.

It would be a big win!

It was a wonderful way to end the day. They agreed to go to Lunanica Media the next morning together.

Janet suffered from insomnia that same night.

This was the first time she couldn't sleep after so many years because of one man.

She tossed and turned in bed, trying to think things through.

The more she thought about it, the more it shocked her!

The more she thought about it, the more mysterious William was.

Was there really a man in the world who could plan everything so perfectly well?

She fell asleep after midnight.

She was awakened by a phone call the following morning.

"Miss Ching, things are not going well. The ten people we just sold off yesterday gathered at our front door. They look like they have been beaten up badly," her assistant snapped over the call.

Janet was taken aback for a second. Moments later, she was completely awake. "I'll be there shortly."

She got up quickly; she had too many questions in her mind.

Weren't they bought over by Yohan happily?

Why were they back again?

What happened the previous day?

Was it possible that Lunanica Media was in trouble again?

She rushed to the company and saw the ten people gathering at the front entrance.

Janet took a few steps back, feeling overwhelmed.

They were all in bandages, looking miserable.

They must have suffered inhumane abuse the previous day.

"What the hell is going on?" Janet stepped forward and asked.

They broke down in tears at the sight of Janet. Their acting skills were definitely of their best in their lifetime.

They knelt down and begged Janet, saying heartbreakingly, "Miss Ching, we were at fault. Please take us back. We will definitely perform well in the future!"

Janet was stunned. "Don't you have a new employer?"

Her words made them all teared up again!

They talked about the abuse the day before and also how they were forced to write out their lines before they were fired thereafter.

Janet frowned suddenly.

Yohan and the team spent six hundred million and fired them?

Fishy!

There must be something going on!

When they bought these ten people over, Janet was wondering if they had any secrets!

It seemed that the secrets were not with them.

Yohan and the team must have found nothing on these ten actors!

Janet was relieved at the thought of it.

Hahaha!

Nice!

Smart William!

It turned out that it was his ultimate move!

These ten people were brown-noser; Janet wanted to get rid of them long ago.

She also wanted to teach Yohan a lesson for a long time!

Great William!

William had successfully made Yohan spend six hundred million for nothing. Besides, he had helped rid her of these ten people. Lunanica Media did not even have to lift a finger to accomplish this!

Moreover, they had made a fortune out of it!

They had killed two birds with one stone!

Awesome!

However, there was a key point which she still failed to see.

As Janet was in her thoughts, a group of people slowly approached her from a distance.

The person leading in front was Yohan whom she had just met the day before!

Janet jumped unconsciously with Yohan's presence.

Here he came, again!

William, was this another gift from him?

"I would happily accept it then!" Janet thought to herself.
