

My Dreamy Old Husband

Chapter 152

In reality, Michael won the Best Actor Award, so it was no surprise that he was the best actor in the game. His portrayal of a woman as a man was flawless. If his husband and son in the game found out that their wife and mommy was a man, it would be so traumatic to them!

Finally, he was done playing a woman as he said his goodbyes to his husband and son. As soon as he went offline, he immediately logged into the game again with his main character. Instantly, he became the radiant God—Scary Phoenix.

The filming crew of 'Doctor Invincible' traveled around the world. The whole series required them to film in 7 to 8 eight countries, so Michael resumed to his usual style of not going back home for a month or two.

In the blink of an eye, two weeks had passed, and Michael wasn't around. Therefore, Sophia went to the jewelry store herself to pick up the wedding ring they ordered.

It would usually take at least a month for the jewelry store to have a pair of rings ready, but probably because of Michael's reputation, it only took two weeks to get them done.

While waiting in the VIP reception room, she received the rings, and she couldn't help but take a peek at them. Inside the box, there were two identical rings lying next to each other silently, and they were made according to his and her finger size. The two rings were inlaid with two pink diamonds, forming a heart shape that was split into two halves. They sat there quietly, glowing like pink stars.

The staff explained to her, “Miss Edwards, these are your wedding rings with Mr. Fletcher. The diamond on top is a rare pink diamond that was extracted from the world’s biggest pink diamond, ‘My Lost Heart’. After 160 hours and 98 levels of polishing, this is the top grade among the wedding rings, and it is customized especially for you. This is the only pair in the world, which symbolizes the unique relationship between the both of you. Congratulations on your marriage.”

When Sophia saw the diamond ring, her face was full of shock as she quickly tried it on her hand.

The tiny diamond ring seemed to be designed according to her finger, so it was a perfect match for her.

She also had a look at Michael’s ring. It was also made of platinum and was inlaid with a pink diamond. The design was smooth and oozed a sense of handsomeness. If Michael wears it, he will definitely look stunning!

She then held the diamond ring and imagined Michael wearing it.

The jewelry store also gave them two platinum necklaces as a gift. They knew that Michael was the Academy Award for Best Actor, Taylor Murray, so it wasn’t convenient for him to travel around wearing a wedding ring. That was why they gave them necklaces so that they could wear the ring around their necks, but Sophia rejected their gift. Then, she took out a dark punk necklace that she bought from a roadside stall. It was almost the same kind of necklace that Stanley usually wore around his neck, and it had a skull pendant hanging from it. She removed the skull and replaced it with the diamond ring.

However, the staff seemed a bit confused. Even though the platinum necklaces they gave them were free, they still weren’t some second-rated product as it was specially made just for this pair of wedding rings.

Sophia explained to the staff after seeing her confusion, “I want to lay low.”

The diamond was too expensive since its price consisted of so many zeroes. If it were to be snatched away by someone else, Sophia would drown in her tears, so she purposely used the necklace she bought from a roadside stall to hang the ring. Therefore, even if a thief saw the ring, he would only assume that it was bought from a stall.

She then wore the diamond ring around her neck, which added weight to her neck. After looking at the mirror several times, she hid the ring under her collar and left with a satisfied look.

The staff saw her off enthusiastically while quietly giving her a thorough look. Today, she came here riding her motorbike, so she wore a very cheap cotton shirt. Her tiny face was red due to the cold wind that blew on her, and she was even holding a motorbike helmet.

I can't believe an insignificant little girl like her is the wife of Taylor Murray.

Of course, the staff was just curious. As the top saleswoman of the most prestigious jewelry shop in Bayside City, she specialized in serving some top clients, which included celebrities. Usually, hidden marriages of celebrities weren't big news, but they still took good care of their client's privacy and prevented them from getting exposed.

However, Sophia didn't know that Richard and Xyla had come here to check on some wedding rings along with Mrs. Harper.

They planned to hold their engagement banquet after Kayla's birthday party. The marriage between the Harper and Huff Family was a huge deal. Even though it was just an engagement ceremony, they also had to make it grand and glamorous. But the most important thing of all was the engagement rings.

The first thing they thought of when it came to choosing engagement rings was Ido. It was a globally-renowned jewelry brand, and the wedding rings they made were the best in the world. However, they only had one branch in Bayside City, so most of the elites in the city came here to order their rings.

Now, Xyla had completely become a member of the Harper Family, and Mrs. Harper was very satisfied with her. Richard held her hand, feeling extremely proud, and everyone praised them as a match made in heaven. Only a lady of a wealthy family, like Xyla, was able to match the aristocratic identity of Richard.

They parked their car in Ido's VIP car park. Most of Ido's clients were elites, so the car park was filled with luxurious cars. Suddenly, from the corner of her eye, Xyla saw a Yamaha bike parked in a parking lot.

It was the only motorbike in the entire car park, so it definitely drew some attention. Xyla could recognize from first glance that it belonged to Sophia.

What is she doing at Ido? Did she come here to deliver take outs? Wipe the windows? Clean the toilets?

She covered her mouth and chuckled as she came into the hall of Ido along with Richard and Mrs. Harper.

The decoration of Ido's hall was bright and dazzling. Most of the people here were the elites of Bayside City, so when they came in the hall, many of the guests came to greet them along with the saleswoman, who came to welcome them enthusiastically.

"If it isn't Young Master Harper. You also come here to choose a ring?"

"Are you two really engaged? Congratulations!"

"Mrs. Harper, you really are a lucky mother. Your daughter-in-law is such a brilliant woman. Congratulations!"

Mrs. Harper was pleased hearing everyone's praise. The more she looked at Xyla, the more satisfied she felt.

My daughter-in-law should be someone from a wealthy family. Not all peasants can enter the Harper Family!

Meanwhile, Xyla held on to Richard's arm as she nodded politely to greet some acquaintances. She was maintaining the posture of a lady from an elite family, but her eyes were looking for Sophia.

Sure enough, she immediately saw a person coming down the stairs while carrying a motorbike helmet.

The saleswoman was sending her away enthusiastically. After she sent her to the hall, she turned around to serve other clients. She didn't need to serve the people on the first floor because she usually served big clients like Michael. Unexpectedly, as soon as she turned around, Sophia's path was blocked by Xyla.

Xyla spoke with the utmost surprise, "Hey, Sophia. You are here too? What a coincidence!"

When Sophia saw the trio, she had a sense that something bad was about to happen. It was too late for her to pretend not to know them, so she could only greet them politely one by one. "Hello, Xyla. Hello, Richard. Hello, Mrs. Harper."

As soon as Richard saw her, he felt a small thump in his heart as his pupils flickered slightly, but he immediately got back to his senses and nodded a little.

There were many elites around them, so he didn't want others to know about his relationship with Sophia.

On the other hand, Mrs. Harper looked at her thoroughly with her squinted eyes before letting out a grunt.

Today, Sophia's outfit really made her look a lot like a delivery girl—a cheap cotton shirt, a pair of leggings, a pair of thick canvas shoes, and a rascal-looking necklace around her neck. She was incomparable to the angel-like Xyla next to Richard.

This place is not for her. She must have showed up here today because she caught wind about our arrival in advance, so she came here to run into my son. A b*tch will always be a b*tch!
