

Chapter 220

When Klutz heard this, he was about to go crazy!

He cursed internally, "You guys actually used the tea leaves that took me so much effort to get to cook herbal tea eggs!"

He glared at Kaleb!

Kaleb and Rebecca were frightened and were dripping in a cold sweat.

However, Klutz did not dare to flare up with William there. He only warned them viciously, "If you guys dare to touch William's tea leaves again, I will kill both of you!"

After saying this, he nodded slightly at William and left respectfully.

Immediately, Kaleb and Rebecca let out a sigh of relief.

However, when they looked at William, their eyes were burning with anger!

That was their one million yuan!

Rebecca wanted to go and snatch the tea but immediately halted when she remembered what Klutz said before he left.

Fury continued to burn inside her.

All their hard work and money ended up in vain!

D*mn it!

Felicity could not help but ask William in surprise, "William, this man is a gangster. How did you know him?"

"Oh, he's a friend of my friend," William explained.

Felicity looked at William strangely, reminding, "Don't you be led astray."

William looked at Felicity, amused. "I won't. Oh yeah, didn't you like the herbal tea eggs made from this tea? Do you know how to make herbal tea eggs?"

Felicity nodded. "Yes."

When William heard this, he handed the tea leaves to Felicity and said, "Take them to make the herbal tea eggs. If you make it by using 20 sachets for each batch, you should be able to make three batches."

Felicity saw Kaleb and Rebecca were about to blow up.

One million yuan!

Previously, they wasted such valuable tea because they did not know how precious it was.

However, this guy clearly knew how much the tea was worth!

And he still wanted to use it to make herbal tea eggs!

Was he not trying to piss them off?

But William really did not mean to piss them off. He was just used to taking everything Felicity said to heart.

Especially what she liked and what she wanted to do.

He would do anything if that was Felicity's wish.

He would even pick the stars for her if he could.

"Thank you." She took the tea leaves and looked at William tenderly.

Kaleb and Rebecca could no longer watch them and ran out of the house, irate.

It took both of them the whole morning to calm themselves down. Kaleb had not reported the good news to the company yet, thus he immediately made a call to the office.

He made another call to the security company they had worked with before, as instructed by his general manager, to end the partnership.

However, when the other security company found out that Kaleb was working with Peace Security, the person on the phone sneered.

He hissed something that crept Kaleb out, "Huh, Tigger has crossed the line this time. I, Sirius, have been waiting for too long. Thank you, Darren, for helping me out."

With that, Sirius hung up the call. Kaleb felt a chill down his back.

Tigger... Sirius...

These two were...

Kaleb felt that this matter had turned serious in a matter of seconds.

Qena City was going to be in chaos!

Time passed very soon; weeks had passed in a flash.

Laura had spent twenty days in the depths of the forest and mountain!

When the film director yelled the last 'cut', her body went weak; she could not stand up from her chair again.

The shoot was finally over.

They had had a high-intensity shooting for twenty consecutive days.

However, this was not the worst.

The key was that Laura had been filming with incompetent actors for twenty days!

She lost a whole lot of weight and looked extremely haggard.

Nonetheless, she seemed to have grown a lot with her role in these twenty days.

The arrogance in her eyes had receded.

There were only forbearance and grievance left in the depths of her eyes!

Everyone was packing up and ready to go back.

Laura was weak and still sitting on the chair.

Just then, a group of young people came over, grinning. They could not help bursting into laughter as they saw Laura.

A woman with heavy makeup teased, "Oh, look! Sister Koo is so exhausted. Why don't you guys give her a back massage?"

The other person echoed at once, "If it was back then, I would definitely give her a massage. Well, after all, I'm just a little pea. What a pity! Things have changed now."

Yes, things had changed now.

These ten people had renewed their contracts with the company, and their penalty amounts were comparable to Laura's.

Therefore, they no longer fear Laura.

In these twenty days, these ten people acted like they owned the place and were bossing everyone around.

Only Laura alone took her acting craft seriously.

In their opinion, she was extremely silly.

She clearly knew that this movie was going to be a failure, yet she worked so hard on it. They couldn't decide whether she was silly or brainless.

Laura did not even lift her head as these people continued to pour scorn on her.

"Forget it, I have no energy to care about her. Let's go! Let's go back to pack up. After all, Director Lu has promised us a 10-day European tour. Haha, we gotta enjoy it. Oh wait, it seems like someone will have nothing to do with it." Those people simpered together again.

After they left, Laura opened her eyes.

Tears welled up her eyes.

But they gathered at the corner of her eyes.

In these twenty days, there had not been a day when she did not suffer such ridicule and abuse.

She would fight back in the first few days. She even cursed William to herself!

But then, she eventually gave in.

The accusations against William disappeared along with her.

Never did she mature as much in her thirty years of life as she did in these twenty days.

This was definitely an unforgettable experience for Laura.

Meanwhile, Janet had been handling the arrangements for the movie the entire time with various cinema chains, as per William's request.

William had instructed her to wrap this task up quickly. "Time is the essence," he said.

Janet was exhausted and about to fall apart at executing what William said.

After completing the arrangements, she received news that the shoot was complete.

The first thing she did was to go to the film director to watch the uncut film.

After all, the most important thing was the quality of the movie.

When she saw the uncut movie, she was dumbfounded.

Was this even a movie?

It was an embarrassment!

All the actors, except Laura, were sh*t. They called this 'acting'!

On top of that, the shooting technique was beyond terrible!

If this was taken to post-production, those editors would definitely pass out in rage!

Janet went to William furiously and reported the matter to him.

William glanced at the movie and replied with a smile, "Oh, it's not bad. It is better than my expectations. Not bad."

Janet was speechless.

Her eyes turned bloodshot with anger.

She had never been so frustrated in her life!

If she was the one who got criticized by him for her incapability, she would take it readily!

But now, it was obviously, her boss, William, who was stupid! Inwardly, she was seething.

"Why are you angry? Didn't I tell you to get a prescription from Henry? Your irregular menstruation is getting worse," William spoke calmly from the side.

Janet's gaze became completely cold. She said emotionlessly, "I'm not angry. I'm just telling you a fact. Since the movie has turned out this way, the workload on post-production is going to be huge. Also, I have followed your instructions to make arrangements with the cinema chains. The movie will be released in a few days. We don't have enough time at all, i.e. we are about to breach the contract."

However, William replied confidently, "What do you mean we don't have time? I will supervise the post-edit personally. Don't worry. You should be able to see it in a few days."

He then winked at Janet. "I'm an all-rounded director!"

Chapter 221

Not only was Janet unassured by what William said, but she was also completely devastated.

Hmph, he had to finally clean up his own sh*t.

How could this movie bring any entertainment value?

Forget it! She should not bother; it was none of her business anyway.

Janet exited from William's office.

For the next two days, William spent all day long in the editing room. No one had any idea what he was doing.

No one cared anyway.

Two days later, William relieved his body with a stretch.

He turned the light on and smiled at the editors. "Thank you for your hard work in the past two days. I am very satisfied with how it turned out. You should expect a reward from me."

The editors were deprived of sleep; no one said a word.

They had no idea what to say.

The movie went from barely presentable to absolute trash.

They thought that it could not get any worse, but it did.

Yet, William managed to pull it off!

When he opened the door, he bumped into Janet who was passing by with documents in her hands.

William stopped her with a grin. "My little precious, Janet, it's done. Come in and have a look."

He was in a good mood and could not resist cracking a joke.

Janet glanced at William coldly and entered the editing room.

However, after she watched the movie, she felt numb.

Under William's 'wise' leadership, the entire movie was a hot mess.

There were even a few choppy and unnatural edited shots. He was violating everything there was to film editing.

It was utterly preposterous!

Despite that, Janet beamed and responded, "Congratulations!"

She plastered a smile as she cursed at him inwardly!

"Thank you." William giggled and walked out of the editing room, enjoying the sunshine outside.

What an all-rounded director! A director who was an expert in ruining his own life!

It only took him more than a little over a month to sign the movie contract before he selected the actors and began the shooting. Not to forget that even the post-production editing was finished within this month.

What a hasty and reckless man!

Such a disgrace for his half of the population!

Soon, he would be ousted from his position.

Indeed, this position was not cut out for such an all-rounded director like him.

The movie was going to be released in two days.

Frank spent tens of millions of yuan to help William promote the movie.

As for Martin, he had been watching William secretly in the past few days.

He was watching to see when William was going to bribe the experts.

Didn't William get the information about these experts for the sake of the movie?

However, Martin observed no movement on William's end until the eve of the movie premiere.

Suddenly, Martin gave himself a slap in the thigh!

He was really stupid!

William had just officially made the world's worst movie. But no matter how big of an idiot or thick-faced he was, he would never paint himself as a fool.

He must have given up.

He was rushing for the production of this movie in order to quell this embarrassing thing as soon as he could. This must be it!

After Martin figured this out, he started plotting another scheme again.

Hmph, Martin was sure that William must be ashamed to contact those experts!

Then he should help William out on his behalf.

After all, he was William's most loyal right-hand man.

Martin called his confidant and instructed, "Burn our movie onto a hundred disposable discs. Then, arrange for someone to send them to the doorsteps of every single person on this list!"

He handed the list of Chinese medicine experts that William had to his confidant.

The confidant was obviously taken aback, but he dared to challenge Martin's authority.

"Go. By the way, find me for something before you head out," Martin left another order.

When his confidant went out, Martin turned the computer on and wrote an invitation letter for a movie review on behalf of Lunanica Media.

In the invitation letter, he mimicked the company's tone. He shamelessly stated that this movie was bound to be a milestone in the local film industry and that it would surely set the bar for the industry. He even invited those well-known critics to review it and asked them not to hesitate to give any harsh comments.

Martin read it again and again after he was done drafting the letter. The more he read, the prouder he became.

What a genius he was!

He was able to come up with such a meticulous plan!

Marvelous!

What would the critics think when they see the invitation and watch the movie? Hahaha!

William would then know how brilliant Martin was!

That very night, before the movie was released, Janet had insomnia.

She thought she could turn a blind eye to it but it turned out, she couldn't.

This might be the biggest downfall in her life.

She could not wait to see how things turned out the next day.

In a secluded villa in the middle of a mountain, an old man was sitting quietly in the study.

This man had a white beard and grey hair with a mole in between his eyebrows.

He bent over to cough from time to time. His body would tremble every time he coughed too violently.

After coughing, his face would be flushed red.

He took a piece of tissue and wiped the corners of his mouth. He could not help but smile wryly, whining, "I'm getting old and useless."

This person was the chairman of the Qena City Pharmaceutical Association, Frandick Hoo!

Frandick was actually only 70 years old, but he appeared far older than his age.

He was ill and what he had was incurable.

He would be handing over the position of chairman of the Qena City Pharmaceutical Association in about ten days' time.

What could he do? He was seriously ill.

He sighed. Just then, his butler opened the door before he handed Frandick a disc and a letter gently, saying, "Sir, Lunanica Media has sent a disc of their new movie for your entertainment. It's a medical drama."

Frandick frowned slightly and responded, "Lunanica Media, it belongs to Harper, right? Alright, put it on my desk."

Frandick and Harper were barely acquaintances.

He was unsure why Harper's company would send a movie disc to him to watch.

However, the words 'medical drama' had successfully piqued Frandick's interest.

He was in his study alone. He inserted the disc into the computer and started watching the movie.

However, he furrowed his eyebrows after less than five minutes into the movie.

He held it in.

Ten minutes later.

His frowns became even deeper!

He could not take it anymore. He slammed the table, berating, "This is ridiculous! What kind of movie is this?! Is Mr. Wang trying to mock me?"

In the movie, the actors' performances were extremely exaggerated, not to mention the shots were choppy. Frandick felt dizzy just from watching it.

He picked the letter up again. When he saw that the letter claimed this movie was going to be a milestone to set the standard for the industry, he was so infuriated that he started coughing madly!

He coughed for about a good eight minutes!

After he was done coughing, it took him several more minutes to calm down before he tore the letter into pieces!

"Lunatica Media! Mr. Wang! I'll remember you! How dare you infuriate me?! Don't you know that I'm a seriously ill man!" Frandick roared, his demeanor went cold. He was about to turn the movie off with a flick of his mouse.

Just then, a scene in the movie caught his eyes; he immediately sprung up from his chair!

His pupils dilated!

He was in shock!

"T-t-this is..."

@vamp20works