

Chapter 247

"What!" The people were dumbfounded when they heard Janet's words!

William turned out to be the company's largest shareholder!

And he held 90% of the shares!

How could this be?

Their eyes were sparkling with surprise as they stared at William.

Martin said ruthlessly, "Miss Ching, what do you mean? Are you trying to give away our company to a piece of rubbish? What he did previously was fatuous and you're still trying to protect him?"

Janet sneered and said, "Protect him? Does he need me to be his guardian? Didn't you ask me why I deduct the one hundred million compensation? Then let me tell you the truth. The 1.5 billion net profit is not the company's money, but all owned by William!"

It caused another commotion in the room again.

Accusations and scolding filled every corner of the air.

Anger spread through everyone in the room at once!

"Miss Ching, if you can't explain yourself clearly today, we won't let you go!" Martin had completely turned against them!

He didn't care that the billions of dollars belong to William; what he was concerned about was that William had actually made his way back to the company!

If William held the company's major shareholding, then there was no way he could stay in the company again!

"Let's deal with this one by one. First, the shareholding issue. Do you think that your previous shares were sold to the company? Where do you think the company's money comes from? All of the shares were bought over by me on behalf of William," Janet explained.

"Also, the reason why the company was able to make money this time, as everyone has probably known, is because of the ancient prescriptions in our movie. The people from the Pharmaceutical Associations were here earlier for the ancient prescriptions. William provided these ancient prescriptions, and hence naturally, he owns the 1.5 billion yuan."

Everyone had goosebumps all over their bodies.

If what Janet said was true, it would be terrifying!

William had made huge profits out of his ancient prescriptions!

Not only did he buy all their shares, but he also made so much money personally!

Martin stood up and was about to make another scene. "Miss Ching, did you say that the ten ancient prescriptions belong to William? We don't believe it!"

Janet had already prepared and asked someone to bring in a stack of documents. They were placed on the table.

"Take a look at it yourself. You knew that William had asked for the script and mentioned that he wanted to modify it. That document is the script which he modified," Janet said emotionlessly.

It was a stack of scripts.

It was the script edited by William himself.

Janet, like everyone else, previously thought that William was just an amateur trying to pull some tricks.

However, she finally knew the truth.

What William modified was not the storylines but the script itself.

The lines about the ancient prescriptions.

The revised scripts now became a proof for William!

Everyone didn't believe what they had heard. They quickly flipped through the scripts.

After they had read the scripts, they all flung back like they had been struck by lightning!

The script was indeed edited by William!

It was just a random modification and he managed to sell off the movie at 2.1 billion yuan.

Nobody had expected this outcome! Each line in this movie was worth tons and tons of gold!

"In addition, William was personally responsible for the editing at the later stage of the film. He took care of everything himself. He is the reason that the company achieves such a miracle today. Hence the money belongs to William." Janet finally set the tone.

The people were speechless.

There was no further refutation heard from them.

Darren and Linda were ghastly pale.

William was back again!

He was like an emperor being ascended to Lunanica Media!

Regrettably, the two of them had just called William rubbish a few moments ago.

What would happen?

They were the one who looked like a pile of rubbish!

They showed off in front of William that they were going to join the company's management team!

What would happen now?

What would be the use of being in the management team?

William, after all, was the biggest shareholder!

Darren and Linda glanced at each other, their eyes filled with shock and misery.

William was ridiculed in front of the whole company but he kept quiet.

What would be their fate?

They felt delighted to be invited to the management meeting. Never did they expect it would become such a terrifying battlefield!

William would seek his revenge from both of them at any moment!

They were waiting for William to vanquish them. This feeling of uncertainty was like two sharp blades hanging right on top of their heads!

But the waiting would not be long.

Janet had fixed her eyes on the two of them and said coldly, "Linda! Darren! Do you know why you are here today?"

The two shook their heads idiotically. At that moment, they would not dare to say that they were the top management of the company.

"It was Director Lu who wanted you here." Janet's words once again shocked them!

William told Darren the truth previously but Darren wouldn't believe him.

But now all he could do was to nod his head.

It was all because of William!

Darren found himself looking like a useless worm in front of William!

William could show him some mercy and allow him to stay alive.

However, if William wanted him to be annihilated, then all William needed to do was to step onto him!

It was for the first time that Darren felt completely helpless in front of William. His despair grew inside him like a tumor.

He had lost.

"Both of you had humiliated Director Lu just now! You know what to do to atone for your mistakes!" Janet shouted.

Darren's legs trembled as he looked at William.

William looked indifferent.

It seemed like he didn't care about Darren at all.

It was fair though.

There was such a huge gap between them!

William didn't argue with Darren and was oblivious of the humiliation.

It was not because he was a coward.

It was because he did not even care about them!

They were but stupid fries!

Ignorant, arrogant, and imprudent!

Darren let out a hollow laugh and wanted to apologize to William. However, words failed to tumble out of his lips.

Linda bowed repeatedly, her voice trembling, "Director Lu, I'm sorry! I was blinded by my anger! It was ignorant of me. Will you please forgive me? I will never do it again!"

William glanced at Linda and said, "We'll talk about you two later."

He looked at the others again. "Is there anyone else who wishes to resign?"

The room went completely silent.

William had made a perfect counterattack. He had managed to come through all those perils unscathed.

The company was completely under his control now.

They knew they couldn't threaten him with their resignations now.

Martin was the one to be blamed for all this!

Everyone glared at Martin again!

Martin felt extremely unfair.

Why did it end up like this even though he had plotted everything so meticulously?

Little did he know that he was planning for his own destruction!

He couldn't help but chuckle. "William, it's wrong for you to do this! The money which the company has made is in your pocket. But the company itself is still in crisis! Gone is our good reputation. How can you resolve this matter? You're making money at the expense of the image and name of the company!"

William had known that Martin would say this. He tittered. "The company's reputation? That's right. Someone's reputation had been tarnished by the movie previously. It's time for me to do right by her."

William snapped his fingers.

"Laura, I said that I would give you an explanation. Now watch this!"

Chapter 248

Laura kept her head down, feeling distressed.

When her name was called suddenly by William, she instinctively raised her head.

Everyone looked at William blankly.

The scandal between Laura and William was all over the Internet.

She got a pretty bad reputation in the public.

Laura's name represented a great deal of the company's reputation.

Did William actually say that he would do right by her? Was he going to restore her reputation?

As William snapped his fingers, the LED screen behind everyone lit up.

A photo appeared again.

The photo was a picture of William and Laura hugging together.

It was also the cause of Laura's notoriety.

Laura flushed when she saw the photo.

She cursed William in her heart.

He was deliberately humiliating her by bringing up this photo, wasn't he?

William then said casually, "Let's start here. Next one please."

A video appeared on the screen.

Laura's eyes widened in shock looking at the video!

She actually stood up and looked at William in disbelief!

There was an uproar in the room!

The video was depicting how William hugged Laura at another angle!

Martin looked at Linda sternly.

Linda quickly waved her hand, indicating that she did not make the video.

After watching the video, everyone was left in a daze.

William and Laura hugged each other in the video.

However, it could be clearly seen from the video that there was a gap between the two and their shoulders barely touched.

It seemed like a quick and polite hug.

What was more unbelievable was that their hugs lasted only for seconds. In the video, William was seen moving away from Laura before he said, "Best wishes to us working together."

Working together?

Everyone recalled that when William held a meeting for the first time, everyone suggested that

Laura should be the lead actress but William stopped it.

The video showed that the hug between William and Laura was only meant for the film cooperation!

The truth!

It was the truth!

Laura didn't have a fling with William!

The video alone could clear rumors and bad name for Laura!

Laura's eyes welled up instantly!

Justice!

Someone finally did right by her!

She remained silent. God knew how aggrieved she felt at this moment!

Now that the truth had been exposed, she couldn't help but shed a tear of happiness.

Janet sighed as she looked at the emotional Laura.

"Laura, little do you know that you are still fooled by William..."

The video looked like it was shot from his office.

The hug must have been one of his plots.

Janet felt sorry for Laura.

She didn't know why this b*stard was so heartless!

How could he let a beautiful woman bear such a humiliation!

What a merciless b*stard!

"Someone is deliberately trying to slander Laura based on the photo alone," William stated.

Everyone looked at Linda.

Linda felt goosebumps all over her body.

With the video, her photo became a piece of evidence against her purposeful slander!

William's statement clearly meant that Linda should be accountable for all the slanders brought onto Lunanica Media!

Linda immediately knelt and shouted hysterically at Laura, "Sister Koo, I'm sorry. I didn't mean it. I am just a stupid b*tch! Your name should not be smeared!"

Laura glanced at Linda with tears in her eyes and ignored her.

There was only William in Laura's eyes at that moment.

The man who brought her a lot of suffering managed to pull her up again so she could stand strong.

Was he a devil or an angel?

Laura felt that her heart had been pried open.

William was a man who walked through the cracks and into her life, brimming with brio.

Martin glared at Linda fiercely and he was about to swear!

He did not expect that William would make such an astonishing fightback!

Good heavens, William!

It turned out that William had planted this trap long ago, just waiting for them to jump right in!

But...

Having cleared Laura's name should not be enough for William to make up for the damages he brought onto the company!

"Laura indeed seemed to have been wronged this time. It is of course best if we prove her innocence. However, the video alone is not enough to salvage the image of our entire company," Martin spoke.

William nodded. "Well, Mr. Zhang, you always consider things thoroughly. Don't worry, there will be more later."

William snapped his fingers again before another video appeared on the screen.

It was a three-minute clip from the movie.

Watching the clips, Laura started to tear up.

Janet looked at Laura next to her, feeling heartbroken. She hugged Laura and gently patted her on the shoulder. "It's alright, don't cry. You'll have to learn to see his true colors. He is but a heartless man. Don't get fooled by his tricks."

Everyone watched the video and fell into silence.

The clip showed some details of Laura's shooting.

It demonstrated how hardworking Laura was.

She carefully memorized the lines, marked the script with highlighters and made a lot of notes.

She practiced multiple times on how her tone and body language should be in different scenes.

Every detail amplified Laura's earnestness and hard work as an actress.

While watching the second half of the video, the people gaped; the hostility in their eyes had already vanished.

Instead, it was replaced with sympathy...

For Laura.

In the second half of the video, Laura was humiliated by the ten actors. She endured silently in her tears and continued to concentrate on shooting.

Laura didn't complain about being tired.

She was focused, hardworking, and persistent. She looked so piteous...

There was only one thought in everyone's mind.

In the movie, only Laura could be regarded as a qualified actress!

She was the only star in the whole movie!

Such a beautiful and hardworking actress should not be vilified.

Everyone who scolded her owed her an apology!

The video reminded Laura again about all the hardship she had endured during that period.

She thought that she was the only one who could understand and bear this kind of unforgettable suffering.

What made her cry was that all of these were secretly recorded by someone under the order of William.

William knew all her suffering.

"William, I have endured a lot of slanders and hardship."

Laura looked at William, and pleaded silently.

"Hence, please keep your promise!"

She clasped her hands together as she screamed inwardly, "You have to make sure I can make a glorious comeback! For I deserve that!"

Chapter 249

"Let's release these two footages to the public. It's time for us to do right by Laura," William said.

Janet nodded and immediately summoned someone to take care of it.

The rest of them had a serious look on their face. They had to admit that by releasing the footage, they would be able to restore both Laura's and Lunanica Media's reputation.

There was no particular reason for them to stop it.

They just wanted those who slandered Laura to send her an apology!

They would be able to put their movies back on the charts through Laura.

The strategy was amazing!

Martin was so furious that his head nearly exploded in rage!

He didn't think the plan which took him so long to devise could be solved by William.

Feeling dispirited, he suddenly heard William say, "Mr. Zhang, is there anything else you want to say?"

Martin's face became stiff.

What was he supposed to say?

Could he even say anything?

Each word which he uttered was met with rounds of attack from William.

Like hell he would talk again!

Martin chuckled and said, "I have nothing else to say, what I said earlier was for the sake of the company. I hope you don't misunderstand my motives, Director Lu."

"Well then, since it was for the company, then I won't reprimand you for it. However, if I ever sense you are doing something fishy again, I won't hesitate to take action," William warned.

Martin raised his eyebrows. Although he maintained his composure, he was shaking inside. "What do you mean?"

"Oh, I don't mean anything. I just wanted to ask where the hundreds of millions yuan which belong to the company go," William blurted.

Janet frowned!

Yes!

The hundreds of millions yuan that had gone disappeared!

The company initially still had cash flow in their accounts, but someone had channeled it into an ambiguous project!

And this person was Martin!

It was this sum of money that almost destroyed the entire Lunanica Media!

Martin's face turned pale. He defended himself, "How would I know?"

"So you don't know anything about it? Then do Darren and Linda know what happened to it?" William asked.

Darren and Linda looked at each other. All they could do was to shake their heads.

William laughed, making the three of them shiver in fear.

"What was this brat trying to do?"

Martin was so scared that his heart nearly leaped out of his chest.

It was true that he was the one who embezzled the hundreds of millions of yuan, but he appointed Darren and Linda to do it for him.

They had moved the money temporarily into a fund account for three days.

Their intentions were to completely drain the company in a way that Janet wouldn't be able to recover from the crisis.

But who would've thought that Janet and William would join forces and resurrect the company?

He had asked Darren and Linda to recover the money a few days ago.

But for unknown reasons, the money was stuck in the fund account and couldn't be transferred back.

Great! William was interrogating him in front of so many people. Martin had become the target of their prosecution!

No way!

There was no way he would admit to it!

And there was no way William had any evidence against him!

At that moment, William asked, "Do you know why you can't transfer the money back?"

The unexpected question made the three of them jump in their seats!

"Why can't it be transferred back? I don't know what you're talking about!" Martin pretended to be puzzled.

William smiled. "Because I've frozen the money."

"What!" Even someone who was as cunning as Martin couldn't hold back his surprise when William said this.

"Yes, I froze the money." William repeated, "As for how that happened, let me get someone to explain it to you."

As soon as William finished, a man walked into the room.

Someone immediately recognized the man, "Isn't this Baxter from North Wind Fund?"

The person who had just walked in was Baxter!

Baxter came in and greeted William respectfully. "This is how it happened. A few days ago, another sub-fund account of ours suddenly received a check from Linda and Darren. The check involved five hundred and sixty million yuan. William and I are friends, so I notified him straight away. He told me to freeze the money first, then return it today."

Baxter's words made Linda and Darren speechless!

In case one needed a definition of what it was like to dig your own grave...

This was it!

F*ck!

The money had been moved around so much that it finally ended up at William's friend!

However, this wasn't Darren or Linda's fault.

They had wanted to put it in their own private accounts but Martin had called them dumb pigs for that.

It was because of Martin that they made a fund account.

North Wind Fund had cooperated with the Genuine Care Medical Center for a while ago, and they were slowly making their way up to becoming the number one trust fund in Qena City.

Linda and Darren had to find a reliable fund to transfer the money into. Hence, North Wind Fund would be their top choice.

What they never expected was that Baxter and William were actually good friends!

"Oh right, wasn't North Wind Fund one of the companies you sponsored some time ago?" Janet suddenly slapped her forehead as this thought flashed across her mind.

William simpered and nodded. "Yes."

Janet suddenly looked at William with amazement.

The brat was pretty crafty!

His action of giving out the sponsorship rights had made many in the company despised him.

Yet now, he was actually using one of the companies he sponsored to help to prove his innocence!

Who would dare to curse William for giving out sponsorship rights again?

If Baxter didn't inform William, who knew what might've happened to the company's money?!

"Linda! Darren! How dare both of you to embezzle the company's money?!" The shareholders were incandescent.

Linda and Darren were shocked, instinctively they turned to Martin for help.

Janet sneered. "Both of them are just pawns. Where would they get the power to do so? Mr. Zhang, would you care to explain?"

Martin felt like his heart was shattering.

With this move, William had essentially pushed him to the edge of the plank!

"I have notified the Legal Department. Someone will come and take the three of them away. If you three cooperate with the inspection and nothing else goes wrong, you'll just have to stay in prison for a few years," William spoke lightly.

Linda cried out in sorrow, regretting everything she did.

At first, she thought she was finally going to have her revenge. It looked like she didn't even gain a dime from it!

Even worse, she was going to have to go to prison!

"Martin, Darren, both of you brought this on me! I'm going to kill you guys!" Baring her nails, she lashed out at Darren's face.

Her nails drew across his face, causing Darren to bleed. It made him boil with anger.

"You crazy woman! Do you want to die? If you hadn't saved me by coincidence and if you didn't say that you had pictures to bring William down, why would I work with you? Hell, I wouldn't have brought you to see Mr. Zhang!" Darren gave Linda a hard kick.

Martin just stood frozen at a side!

Those two were good-for-nothing!

With just a few words, they had admitted to the crime!

There was no way Martin would admit defeat.

William looked at the three of them with much amusement and shook his head. "Do the three of you really believe that all your encounters and plots against me are just a mere coincidence?"

@vamp20works

Chapter 250

When Linda and Darren heard this, their heads were buzzing with confusion.

They looked at each other in disbelief, their eyes full of horror.

Weren't their encounters just a coincidence?

Could it be that William arranged all of them?

Darren was reminded of the first time he ran into Linda.

At that time, he was beaten up badly by Tigger's guy, Klutz.

Fortunately, they spared Darren's life and threw him out of the car.

Darren thought that William had asked them to leave him at the company's underground carpark in order to embarrass him in front of the other staff members.

It was at that time that he met Linda!

Meanwhile, Linda was thinking about the picture she took of William hugging Laura. William must have led her on to take that picture on purpose!

He had set up a trap nicely for her to jump in.

She was then fired back then and needless to say, she was infuriated.

Now that she thought about it, William must have had something to do with her dismissal!

After she was fired, she met Darren in the underground carpark. He was barely alive at that time.

That was how the two of them teamed up.

Darren and Linda felt their hair stand on end!

It was their own fault for being ignorant. They thought they'd be invincible should they work together.

Never did they once pause to think that William could've been the mastermind behind all of it.

Everything that happened was but a bait William set up so the three of them would band together.

By doing this, he vanquished the three of them in one hit!

Now that the three of them were on the same boat, William moved on to take down them together!

What a cruel person he was!

Martin was so shocked that he felt his legs go wobble.

He wondered as to how there could be someone with such wickedness!

Every step he had taken was actually under William's manipulation!

Martin had done several things in the past few weeks.

The first thing he did was to encourage the shareholders to sell their shares. They ended up losing tons and tons of money!

The second thing was to send out a whole bunch of invitations to the movie premiere secretly, just to tarnish Lunanica Media's reputation.

However, little did he know that these invitations would bring Yohan and Frandick knocking on their doors!

The third thing was to embezzle hundreds of millions of yuan from the company.

This money was what led to their downfall.

Everything he did was within William's grand scheme!

Martin looked at William and let out a chuckle, his eyes void of emotions. "I've lost. I've lost this game."

Linda ran up to William and fell to her knees before him while crying hysterically, "Director Lu, I was wrong of me to betray you! Will you spare this miserable life of mine, please? I don't want to go to jail!"

Darren also rushed over and knelt down beside Linda. "Director Lu, I have failed you. Can you forgive me this once?"

Martin looked at these two people and shook his head.

They expected William to spare the three of them?
Like hell he would!

Clearly his intentions were to get rid of them all at once!

Martin began to wink frantically at the shareholders.

After all, most of these people were on his side.

In return, they looked back at him and pouted. Their expressions were telling Martin that he should not bring them into this mess.

At that moment, they knew very well whoever pleaded on Martin's behalf basically had a death wish.

"Take him away," William ordered.

Janet summoned a few security guards to bring the three of them away.

William looked around the entire conference room; everyone was silent.

William's actions were clearly a warning to the rest of them.

They have lost their shares; they didn't have any rights to argue with William.

Their happy days were long gone.

From that day on, they were all beneath William.

They had to do anything he said.

"William, now we have to discuss our development plans for the future," Janet finally recovered from the shock and reminded William.

William nodded, rubbed his temples, and closed his eyes. "Do you have any suggestions?"

Janet sorted out her thoughts and answered, "The release of our latest movie gave us a bad name. I'm afraid we won't be able to produce any more movies in the future."

William replied in an unbothered tone, "That's fine, we're not professionals in that anyway."

Janet resisted flashing him a disgruntled look.

She couldn't help thinking how heartless William was. How could he say something like this so casually as if it was nothing?

"So our focus should still be on the training of actors and celebrities," Janet continued after censoring him in her head.

William acknowledged her opinion, "Yes, that's correct."

"As for the next step, does anyone have any suggestions?" In the end, Janet posed the question to the rest in the room.

The rest of them looked at one another.

Finally, someone stood up and said, "Truth be told, on the surface, it may look like we've won triumphantly, but on the contrary, we've actually suffered a great loss!"

Someone else immediately chimed in agreement, "Yeah, Laura's reputation cannot recover fast, and we have sold off ten actors to another company. Plus, all the actors in the company are panicking. If this goes on, sooner or later, we'll lose our actors and resources."

After Janet heard this, she nodded and sighed. "It's true that our company has suffered a lot from what happened this time. However, we needed to go through this in order to weed out all these timebombs in our company. If this hadn't happened, our company would never be its best. The loss was inevitable."

After Janet finished, she flashed a dubious glare at William.

She realized something very startling.

When she first met William, she had warned him that the internal affairs of the company were very complicated and advised him to be careful.

After going through all this chaos, the most toxic person in this company, Martin had been gotten rid of!

Had this been part of William's plans?

William noticed Janet's unusual gaze. He smiled. "Go on."

Janet swallowed a mouthful of saliva nervously, afraid to look at William in the eye.

She was scared that he could see right through her; then she'd become one of his pawns to play with.

Finally, she muttered her courage to say, "At present, we urgently need an actor to become the face of our company to keep everything in balance! That way the other actors will be reassured, and they'll need to give the public a better impression of our company. We can't afford to delay this."

William nodded. "I agree."

"There's no doubt that Laura would be the ideal candidate, however, I don't think she's up for it this time. So, I need everybody to think of a celebrity from our company that's somewhat well-known and capable of carrying this responsibility," Janet implored.

Laura, who was sitting at a corner, remained silent.

Everyone went into a discussion. In the end, they decided that no one could handle this responsibility except Laura.

Janet sighed, feeling slightly agitated.

Naturally, her eyes shifted toward William, only to see that his expression was plastered with fearlessness.

The 'I- have- everything- under- control' look in his eyes was terrifying.

Janet couldn't help but hiss, "Did you have someone in mind from the start?"

William smiled and nodded. "Yes, you asked everyone for their opinion, but you didn't ask for mine. I have already chosen someone."

Janet was just about to ask who it was before suddenly, a gentle and bright voice rang out from the door.

"The face of the company? Sure, why not me?"

@vamp20works

Chapter 251

Everyone looked toward the direction where the voice came from.

Unbeknownst to all of them, there was someone standing at the door suddenly.

She was as beautiful as a goddess!

She wore a plain white T-shirt with a pair of slim-cut jeans that showed off her figure perfectly.

Those slender, long legs screamed for attention.

There was some dust on the black handbag in her left hand; it looked as though she was in a hurry to come here.

Even though she seemed exhausted from all the running, the gentle smile on her face remained dazzling.

Seeing her, nearly everyone in the conference room stood up together, all their eyes twinkling with admiration.

Janet shouted in disbelief, "Flavia!"

She was Flavia Li!

Carrying her bag, Flavia rolled her eyes at William and sashayed into the room.

She threw the bag onto the ground and sat in the empty seat beside William, smiling and saying,

"Hello everyone, I'm Flavia Li."

Everyone was so shocked that their jaws dropped.

They couldn't help wondering what Flavia was doing here.

What was it that she had just said?

Did she say she'd be the face of the company?

Could it be...

William glanced at Flavia, chuckling. "You're late."

Flavia's face was cold as she groaned, "Do you know how much effort it took me to tie up all the loose ends on my side? I came over straight away. How could you still complain about me being late?"

Everyone else in the conference room became even more speechless when they saw the scene before them. They looked like two lovers quarreling.

From the look of it, Flavia and William seemed to be more than just friends.

"I'll have to thank you then. I'll buy you dinner later," William said.

"You better do." Flavia simpered, feeling satisfied.

William then turned to the people. "I would like to introduce you to Flavia. From now on, she's part of Lunanica Media."

The conference room went silent for a few seconds before the people erupted in cheers.

Flavia Li!

They couldn't believe their ears!

Flavia was the top actress of Henderson Media!

And she was also the hottest singer in the market!

She was gorgeous beyond words, and her character was equally mesmerizing.

What was more amazing was that she had a very good reputation. So far, there had been no negative rumors about her.

There was no way Henderson Media would let go of such a big celebrity easily. How did she find her way to Lunanica Media?

Was the director of Henderson Media, Frank crazy?

"Her contract expired recently, so Director Chien gave me a chance and allowed her to sign a new contract with anyone she wanted. Thus, she came to us," William explained to all of them.

Flavia smiled and greeted the people. "We'll be colleagues from now on. Please take care of me."

Everyone was touched when they heard what she said.

Whoa!

It was how a celebrity should speak to the people!

Although Laura was also a celebrity, she had always been arrogant and acted like everyone else was beneath her.

This led to her being criticized by the company staff members.

Thankfully, Flavia was the complete opposite. Not only was she good looking and sophisticated, but she also had such a good temper.

Everyone smiled. "Flavia, it's our honor to have you in our company!"

"Let's work together. If you need anything, please let us know!"

Flavia chuckled, stood up to thank everyone and sat back down.

William looked at Flavia with much amusement. She looked so gentle and harmless on the outside.

When she was in the Revengers chat group, all her messages were as sharp as knives.

Everyone was clearly too gullible.

After taking a few deep breaths, Janet finally accepted the shocking reality.

She looked at William again; deep inside, she really wanted to applaud him for his capabilities!

He actually managed to sign Flavia over!

Flavia was like the light in their darkness, shining a bright path ahead for the company.

There was no one better than Flavia to be the face of Lunanica Media!

She was positive, vibrant and gentle. There was no flaw in her!

It was a strategic move from William.

William had always been lurking and strategizing in the dark; not everyone could tell how powerful he was.

Therefore, many of them weren't convinced of him.

Now that he actually brought Flavia over...

It should be enough to prove his ability!

Nobody else in that conference room could do what he did.

It would make everyone respect him!

This young brat had single-handedly reshuffled the entire structure of Lunanica Media!

It included the shareholders!

And the actors!

All the shareholders were now at his feet, fully submissive.

As for the actors, he even managed to make the most arrogant actress, Laura cooperate with him.

His time of reign had come.

The entire company was under his control!

Lunatica Media was a company built upon decades of hard work with extremely intricate internal affairs and relationships!

Even Harper who was so influential wouldn't be able to have full control over it.

William had only been here for less than two months!

And he managed to achieve something Harper could never had!

Impressive!

"However, regarding the face of our company, I think we need another one other than Flavia. Laura and Flavia, you'll be our Lunatica Twins!" In the midst of the crowd's celebration, William announced another news.

Laura, who was originally gloomy, raised her head and stared at William.

She was met by his pair of bright and clear eyes.

Her face blushed inexplicably.

Laura was originally the pillar of Lunatica Media.

Flavia suddenly turned up as a stronger player than her.

She had no opinions on Flavia. Laura kind of liked Flavia for her gentleness as well.

She was just worried that Flavia's presence would threaten her position in the company.

William's words were like a bright ray of sunlight. At that moment, she felt that she was embraced by hope and warmth again!

"Since Flavia is here, we'll count on her to rebrand Laura's image. I believe that within a few days, Laura's reputation will return to how it was previously. I personally like this idea of Lunanica Twins. What about the rest of you?" William asked.

Everyone was taken aback. A few clapped in delight.

Wow!

Amazing!

Using Flavia to rebrand Laura – it was another power move!

It would be a piece of cake for Flavia to make an appearance and clear Laura's name.

Suddenly, Flavia reached out and pinched William under the table, muttering angrily, "I've just arrived and you've already started assigning me work. I haven't even had the time to catch my breath. Are you taking me as your slave?"

William felt a burning sensation at his waist. Despite that, he said with a straight face, "Hey, beware of your behavior and reputation!"

Flavia then let him go and looked at Laura with a gentle smile. "Laura, I've wanted to meet you for ages. If I have any qualms in the future, please do guide me. I hope you won't find me annoying."

Flavia was putting herself in the position of a humble junior. Well, who wouldn't fall for someone so down-to-earth?

Laura immediately chuckled. "Stop joking around, Flavia. I'm the one who needs you to clear my reputation in the next two days. Let's work together!"

Yes, Laura finally smiled again.

She was an actress and Flavia was a singer. Lunanica Media was going to do right by her.

William had made a promise for a debut of the Lunanica Twins, meaning he wasn't going to let either of them go. It was the best solution for both of them.

"Alright, since we're done with discussing the business, I will leave first. Janet, after today, you'll need to work very hard, after all..." William stood up, showing a wicked smile.

"You are now the appointed director of the company!"
