

Life at the Top Chapter 122

After more than ten minutes, Zachary returned.

“Jasp, we will do as you say, but we need you to guide our traders.”

Zachary got straight to the point.

“Let’s not waste any time and get straight into it,” Jasper said.

Zachary nodded and immediately ordered someone to set up the system.

Therefore, Jasper started a video conference with the Laws’ traders in Zachary’s study.

“This is Mr. Laine. From now on, I need you to obey his orders unconditionally.”

After speaking to the traders, Zachary stepped aside.

The traders exchanged glances with each other, obviously a little confused.

One of the men who looked like a manager asked hesitantly, “Mr. Law, are you dissatisfied with our partnership?”

Zachary said, “There’s nothing to be dissatisfied about. Our investment strategy has changed now, so just do as I say. You will still get your commission as usual.”

Having said that, Zachary motioned to Jasper to start giving his orders.

Jasper, who had been watching the trend of the Hansel Index, looked up and said, “Immediately close the position according to the current situation!”

What Jasper meant was to sell all trading orders on hand and acknowledge all losses.

However, the first order that Jasper made confused the traders greatly.

The manager was dumbfounded, saying, "If we close the position now, we will lose more than 200 million dollars. More than 200 million dollars! You're a Mainlander, right? Even after converting to Somer Dollar, it's still more than 200 million Somer Dollars!"

"I said to close the position immediately!" Jasper raised his voice.

The stock market changed rapidly with the index fluctuating every second. Jasper would never allow anyone to waste a good opportunity talking nonsense.

The manager grimaced and said, "Are you insane, little boy?"

Jasper turned his head to look at Zachary. This time, his tone was no longer polite as he said sternly, "Mr. Law, I need a trader team that will obey me fully."

Zachary looked at the manager coldly and said, "Gordon Liam, Mr. Laine's words are mine, do you understand?"

Gordon gritted his teeth and glared at Jasper through the screen. His heart was filled with extreme disdain.

This young boy was at most in his 20s. The Laws must be mad to hire a boy like him to direct the traders.

However, Gordon was not brave enough to disobey Zachary, hence he could only clench his teeth and say, "I understand."

Seeing this, the traders started closing down the Laws' one billion transaction orders.

“We have closed the position successfully. We’ve suffered a paper loss of 248.64 million Harbor Dollars with 741.36 million Harbor Dollars left,” a trader reported.

Zachary grimaced. Although he had already prepared himself for this, he was still annoyed when he heard the numbers.

“Pending orders, Hansel Index, direction, bullish and going long, 17,980 points, full position.”

Jasper locked his fingers together and placed them under his chin, staring at the screen while giving his second order.

Zachary’s mouth twitched.

The market trend was falling, but as soon as Jasper removed the previous transactions, he planned to go long immediately.

Even though he was already mentally prepared for operations like that, he was still filled with apprehension nonetheless.

From the market trend’s perspective, he was going against the market completely.

Gordon could not help it anymore and roared furiously.

“Motherf*cker, do you even know the stock market at all!?”