

Chapter 35

Max immediately turned around and looked at Hazel with a smile as she stuttered, "Well... I have a request. I hope you... don't tell him about this. I am fine. I don't want him to get Penelope and the others into trouble because of this. I'm... very healthy and won't get sick."

Max nodded respectfully. "Very well then..."

After Max left and when she was left alone in the room, the curve at the corner of Hazel's mouth slowly faded away and there was only sadness and bitterness in her eyes.

At this time, Max's cell phone rang.

"Mr. Simpson, you told me to inquire about the incident that happened in the Wilkinson family. I have received news from one of the servants and was told that Mrs. Wilkinson personally drove Miss Wilkinson out of the house and slapped her twice. She accused Miss Wilkinson of her deceitful shameless acts and inappropriate behavior which damaged the family's reputation. Thus Mrs. Wilkinson had forced Miss Wilkinson to cut off all ties with the Wilkinson family. I've also heard that all of Miss Wilkinson's belongings were thrown away like trash. I felt that these things might be useful, so I intercepted them halfway and kept them in a safe place..."

A cold sneer instantly appeared in Max's eyes!

The Wilkinson family members were really a bunch of fools!

Did they even know what they had given up?

Anyone would long to have a close relationship with Mr. Morris. Even if there was only a little connection, it would be a luxury to die for because this meant instant success for the ordinary people.

But these people were foolish enough to drive Mr. Morris's woman out of the house on a rainy day.

This was because Miss Wilkinson considered them as her family. If it was any other woman, they would surely complain to Mr. Morris and the Wilkinson family would be ruined forever.

Forget it!

This relationship was bound to be destroyed anyway. Since Miss Wilkinson wanted to let go of this grudge, then he would be the bad one settling the debts for her instead.

"Good job, and take good care of those things."

"Yes, Mr. Simpson!"

In the Wilkinson family.

Julian and Scarlett had spent a few days in Eskal and did not come back until today. When Julian sent Scarlett back to the Wilkinson family, Vanessa was so hospitable and even invited him to stay for another few more days.

Vanessa had been smiling at Julian all the time. This was because she was truly satisfied to have him as her future son-in-law!

Her precious and obedient daughter had hit the jackpot.

While Julian was drinking tea, he asked with concern, "I haven't seen Hazel these few days. Is she not at home?"

In an instant, Scarlett's eyes showed jealousy, but she quickly hid it.

Obviously, Vanessa was not satisfied. She considered this b*tch as a person who would only seduce men everywhere she went, even her own brother-in-law. Fortunately, she had kicked this b*tch out earlier! Anyhow, she still had to continue to play her role.

The next second, Vanessa's eyes showed sadness and with a handkerchief, she wiped the tears from the corners of her eyes.

"Don't mention that unfilial daughter... You don't know that! I'm about to die of anger! Julian, you may not know but she just came home today. She clamored to move out to live together with her boyfriend! It turns out that she was not home for days because she was actually living in that man's house. Ridiculous, isn't it? I persuaded her but I didn't expect that... This child just lost her temper and said that she would cut off all ties with me. She said... She will never come back to the Wilkinson family ever again. My heart... was truly broken by her!"

Scarlett responded quickly. Actually, she had already heard from her mother regarding that b*tch and was thrilled to hear that she had been kicked out of the house!

At this time, she immediately cooperated with her mother and put on a surprised but concerned look.

"Mom, Hazel really did all these? She left home? Mom, I didn't know such a thing happened!"

Hearing that, Julian felt disturbed right away. She had a boyfriend? And she was willing to cut ties with her family in order to live with that man?

However, he only remembered Hazel as a girl of few words and who always smiled calmly. When there were too many people around, she would stay quietly in a corner or a place where other people would not notice. She always gave him the feeling that she was like a simple girl next door. So why did she suddenly become so rebellious?

Julian could not help but ask. "Is there any misunderstanding? Hazel seemed very obedient. Did she get cheated by someone? Or did she suffer any grievance?"

Scarlett was furious but she still had to put on a smile. "Indeed, I think my sister is obedient and innocent too. How could she do such a... disgraceful thing?!" A vicious look flashed in her eyes.

Vanessa's eyes were swollen and still with tears. She let out a deep sigh as if her heart was in aching pain. "You may not know but this child is not obedient and simple at all! Hazel said that she has always been jealous of you, Scarlett. And all this while, she is just pretending to behave. This is my fault. I didn't teach her well which is why she became like this! When she came home the other day, she was clamoring while packing her luggage. After asking a few questions, I tried to prevent her from leaving but accidentally tore her clothes. Then, she became so enraged that she pushed me to the ground."

Vanessa cried softly while Scarlett embraced and gently comforted her.

On the contrary, Julian only felt that all of this was just absurd.

There was disbelief in his eyes because he found it hard to believe.

At this moment, Rosie, who had always been by Vanessa's side, came forward and knelt down to this unmarried couple.

With her eyes full of grievance, Rosie said, "Madam is right. Miss Scarlett, you don't know how awful Miss Hazel has become! When Madam tried to stop her and accidentally tore her clothes, we saw... red marks on her body. Madam advised her against inappropriate behavior, but Miss Hazel admitted that she had been living in her boyfriend's house for the past few days. She declared that she would leave home forever and never come back. Madam was heartbroken and even cried secretly. I am but a servant and I really shouldn't have said these words, but I was also startled by Miss Hazel's behaviour. I simply could not bear seeing Madam being this sad hence I decided to tell you these, Miss Scarlett, Mr. Julians."

Rosie tried hard to make herself look sad. After all, she had to put all the blame on Hazel. In this way, no one would accuse them for being vicious by driving her away from home.

Hazel could only blame herself for her inappropriate behavior and shameless deceitful acts of seducing other people.

Julian's eyes dimmed. Was Hazel really such a person?

Or, did he not see through Hazel since the beginning? Was he really deceived by the illusion created by her?
