

Chapter 1344

Sabrina was speechless. "..."

She had never felt such despair well up in her heart. In the past year since she followed Sebastian and returned to South City with Aino, life had been stable, and she did not have to worry about anything. She had never felt a sense of danger.

Not only that, but she also made friends. Besides, in her spare time, she could also ask Jane about how she was holding on in terms of her survival, whether she was dead or alive. She had not felt a sense of danger in a long time.

At that moment, a sense of danger suddenly spread all over Sabrina's body. Her heart gradually turned cold. But, compared to her former self from six years ago, or even from a year ago for that matter, she was now calmer and more indifferent.

She was Sebastian's wife after all. Her poise and calm demeanor that she had learned from him was enough to handle the situation in front of her. Even if she lost, she had to try her best, and often the first battle was won before the fighting even started.

started.

Even though deep down she was panicked, anxious, and nervous, on the surface, she remained exceptionally composed, calm, and ready.

She had to observe, see what was going to happen next, and think of a way to escape. Within three minutes, she saw someone barge into the hotel. The person looked rich and glamorous, and was holding bags of various sizes in her hands.

Sabrina was stunned.

Who else could it be but her stepmother-in-law, Rose Quinton?

Rose walked up to Jennie, holding various bags of all sizes in her hands. She handed the bags to her and said, "Jennie dear, I don't know what you like, so I just bought some items from the mall upstairs. Look at you; why would you give me a pair of diamond earrings worth a million dollars? This is our first meeting..."

Sabrina: "..."

This mother and daughter pair operated on a large scale indeed. They were willing to pour money into their investment. The words 'pull out all the stops' were perfect to words 'pull out all the stops' were perfect to describe Jennie Gibson.

"Rose, look at you! You're too kind. I already knew Sean when I was still in diapers, but I had been living abroad for the past thirty years, so when you and Sean got married, I was attending university abroad. I heard you're his one true love."

Rose smiled happily. "Sean and I have been by each other's sides through thick and thin for most of our lives."

"Exactly, I regard Sean as my own brother, and that's why you're also my sister-in-law, so it's normal for me to give my sister-in-law diamond earrings as a present. You're the one who insisted on buying me so many presents in return." Jennie kept addressing the other woman as her sister-in-law, as if she really regarded her as such.

Giddy with the other woman's praise and intimate attitude, Rose was successfully hoodwinked. She said kindly, "Jennie, I know you're a good and sensible girl. You would rather stay here with your daughter to accompany Sean than follow me upstairs to choose your presents. That's why I only chose things I myself liked, so I'm not sure whether they would be to your liking. Open them, take a look."

if not sure whether they would be to your liking. Open them, take a look."

"I like them! I like all of them. Everything you bought me is perfect." Jennie did not even look at the presents, but deep down, she was delighted. The money she used to buy the pair of diamond earrings she gifted to Rose was given to her by Sean -- entering from her left hand and leaving from her right. But the items that Rose bought her were high-quality items. Jennie knew she would like them without even taking a look.

She gathered all the bags together and said to Rose, "Rose, my dear sister-in-law, perhaps you should check in with Sean first. He seemed angry just now."

Only then did Rose remember that the old man called her to come down quickly, as if he had found out one of Sabrina's weaknesses. Only then did she realize that Sean was glaring furiously at Sabrina.

While Sabrina...

Only now did Rose notice that both of Sabrina's arms were restrained by two security guards. Nevertheless, her expression remained calm as always.