

Chapter 1455

Gloria had never been one to be unreasonable and unforgiving, so she smiled. "Are you here to invite me back to the dance group?"

The woman smiled. "That is secondary. The main thing is to apologize to you. I must apologize since I have made a mistake. Of course, I also must invite you back to the dance group. Although you started late, you dance quite well still, and you're the soul of our dance group."

Gloria said, "You're too kind."

The two women then laughed. Gloria could not help but ask, "Why did you think of apologizing to me, and who told you about my family matters?"

Speaking of this, that woman chuckled. "Gloria, although your past experience is quite ineffable and your father is quite inhuman, it was your father who truthfully told me everything. He even told me to walk a mile in a person's shoes before judging the person. He said he had wronged you, so it was right for you to ignore him for life. I was originally not going to tell you all these if you hadn't asked me. The old man was the one who asked me. The old man was the one who told me not to tell you. However, since you have asked me, let me just be nosy and tell you this. I think since that old man is already ninety years old, how much longer can he live?"

Gloria was speechless. She was distracted for the whole day today. All she could think of was what the woman said to her. "How much longer can he live?"

At times, the image of that gray-haired old man in the wheelchair sneakily watching her as she was dancing would cross her mind. Gloria had a mixed feeling in her heart. The following day when she went to the dance group again, she did not see Old Master Shaw anymore. Without knowing the reason, Gloria felt a little empty in her heart and she was also absent-minded as she danced.

When she had just crossed the intersection on her way home from the dance group, Gloria saw that figure with a wheelchair. She hurriedly went up to him.

Old Master Shaw was caught right in the act. He then raised his head and looked at Gloria with incomparable guilt. "Gloria, I...I will no longer go to see you at the dance studio, and I will also no longer stop in will no longer go to see you at the dance studio, and I will also no longer stop in front of your house anymore. I...I was just passing by today."

"Passing by?" Gloria sneered.

Old Master Shaw said, "There's a renovation team near your house who does both indoor and outdoor renovations, as well as repairing old houses. A few days ago, when I was outside of your house, I saw that the corner of your house was a little sunken. If one corner of the house has sunken, then the rest of the wall would become unstable. I am here today to talk to that renovation team and have them go to your house and fix it."

Gloria was surprised.

"Gloria, I...I will never appear in your line of sight anymore. I'm leaving now. Pay more attention to your house."

Gloria was still speechless. She watched with her eyes widened as Old Master Shaw rolled further away. Gloria then made a call to Sabrina. "Sabrina, tell me, should I forgive ...him?"

Sabrina was startled. "You're talking about Old Master Shaw?"

Sabrina was startled. "You're talking about Old Master Shaw?"

Gloria replied, "Mm-hmm."

Sabrina's tone was very gentle. "Mom, actually, a lot of things are now in the past. We also can't hold a lot of grudges forever. Otherwise, the ones who will suffer are ourselves. If he treated you...It depends on you. If you want to forgive him, then you can do it. If you're still hesitating, then don't force yourself. Simply put, you have to be happy with yourself."

Gloria suddenly had a feeling as if she had understood something. "I got it."

Sabrina smiled. "In short, life will slowly get better and we'll all be happier and happier, Mom."

Sabrina was right. Life still had to go on, and it would slowly get better.

In a blink of an eye, half a month has passed.

One morning, when Sabrina was about to go out to work, her phone rang. She took it up and then answered it in surprise. "Jane ..."
