

Miss Maysun, let's go.
Follow me to a place."

Chapter 1850

Aino smiled. "I don't want to mourn with my father here because I don't really like my great-grandpa. I don't like everyone in the Ford Residence."

What Aino said was the truth. She indeed did not like the Ford Residence child. I'll just go along with your wishes. Before that, you have to know that it's because I really think you're pitiful.

You're just a child, and you're truly very pitiful. I can take you out to play, but I have to first notify your father. Otherwise, he wouldn't be able to find you." It seemed like Maysun had caught a chance to fawn up to Sebastian.

"Sure, let's go tell my dad first," said Aino as she nodded.

After taking a step forward, Aino asked Maysun to squat again, and then she leaned into her ear and said, "But, Miss Maysun, you can only let my father know that we're going out to play. You can't let others know. No one else can know, including my grandparents."

Maysun was puzzled. "Why can't your grandparents know that I am taking you out to play?

"

"Because!" Aino's expression suddenly became gloomy. Her tone also became incomparably sorrowful. "Because they are all bad people! My grandpa is also a bad person! My grandpa also would trick me! So, as long as you don't tell others that you and I are going out together to play, then no one would harm me!"

"Are you not afraid of me?"

"Maysun immediately asked.

"Ha! I have already heard it from my dad," Aino said contemptuously. "Your family, the Kemp family in Kidon City, has always been unconcerned with matters outside, and you, on the other hand, had just returned from abroad. Other than Lily, you don't know anybody in the country at all! As long as you don't tell Lily that we have gone to play,

then there won't be a problem."

Maysun was speechless.
She did not expect that
this six-year-old child
had already done a thorough check on her.

"I know that you're from a very noble family. All the children in your family are very noble, and have no bad intentions! I knew about all that! Miss Maysun, why else do you think I will choose you to b e my mother's substitute?"

Crap! At that moment, Maysun really wanted to beat someone up. She did not expect that every step taken by this little girl was so premeditated. She first ridiculed and cursed Maysun, but she was actually just testing her patience. She had already thoroughly inquired everything about Maysun a long time ago, and she already had the plan in her mind to find a temporary woman for her father. Therefore, Aino had selected her, Maysun absolutely will not return him to your mother! Not only will I not return your father to your mother, but I will also kick you out! Because kicking you out is your grandparents' intention! Because you have too many sinister ideas and evil thoughts!' However, Maysun did not say any of that out loud.

On the surface, she just went along with Aino's intentions and praised her, "Little girl, that's very thoughtful of you. I