Chapter 1867

'You were the one who talked back to your grandparents first! They didn't want you anymore! They had already made up their minds to throw you away! I can only truly marry your father without a care in the world after I've thrown you away! I'm sorry, cunning little fox! From today on, Sebastian is no longer your father anymore! You can only be a homeless person or a wandering ghost! As for your father, in the near future, he will be the father to my child. Haha!' Maysun thought about the good things while driving aimlessly.

Just as she said, she just randomly drove Aino around through all the streets and alleys. Aino, on the other hand, would poke her little head out to see this and that from time to time. What made Maysun even more secretly surprised was that Aino, the tricky little fox, actually showed her the way and asked her to showed her the way and asked her to drive her on. Also, they were driving to a place that was more and more desolate, and more and more away from the city. In the end, they arrived unexpectedly at an extremely desolate place.

Ha! This naughty little thing! She was always so full of herself and had always been blinding giving directions. In the end, she actually brought them to such a perfect place to dump a little child.

Maysun was not familiar with South City and she also did not know which end of the city they were at. She just knew that this place was very desolate. Ha! What a God sent opportunity! She could just dump this tricky and cunning little fox here and let her be utterly helpless no matter how hard she asked for help!

"Miss Maysun, this place...is so desolate," said Aino timidly.

"Are you scared?" Maysun looked at Aino in confusion. "Isn't this the place you wanted me to bring you? I even thought wanted me to bring you? I even thought that you came here to play very often. What's the matter? Are you afraid now? But what are you afraid of? This is the great outdoors. The air here is very fresh."

Hearing Maysun saying that, Aino felt relieved instantly. She looked at Maysun with a broad smile. "Miss Maysun, can I go down...go down to tinkle for a while?"

Maysun looked at Aino, but she did not say anything. She sneered. 'Do you want to escape? You're only thought of escaping now when we're already here? Ha! This place is so far away from the city. I truly want to see how you can still walk back to your kindergarten from here, and then walk back to your house from the kindergarten again!'

Ha! Maysun was truly blessed by God!

Maysun shrugged. "It's alright, little child. Even if you have tinkled once on this road, I will still think that you're an came straight into the car. In fact, the sewer was not that huge and it also was not that deep. The deepest end of the sewer only came up to the waist of a person. However, that was enough to submerge Maysun's car engine.

The pungent dirty water mixed with human waste flooded into the car from the glass window and had covered Maysun entirely. She wanted to climb out of the window to escape, but after struggling for a while, her face was covered with the dirty water. Not only that, but after she had gotten half of her body out the window, only then did she suddenly think of something. Where was she going to land? Surely, she could not dive into the pungent sewer head first, right? She then retreated back in, but then she realized her car was shaking.

She did not dare to move a single muscle as the car was shaking. If she were to retreat further back, the car may flip over
