Chapter 1259 Mentally Prepare Yourself

Grayson frowned at her story.

Yet, he withheld any comment he had. Instead, he decided to examine Sasha first before telling her anything.

Sasha had no choice but to go for the examination first.

The result was, as she had expected, threatened miscarriage.

“Dr. Wallen...”

Sasha’s face was as white as a sheet seeing the result. She didn’t even have the strength to finish her sentence.

Grayson’s expression turned somber.

00:00/00:00

“Actually, when you came in the other day, I was confused. I’m aware of your body’s condition. Under normal circumstances, there was no way you could get pregnant again, but you did.”

The creases between his brows deepened.

Sasha’s stomach plummeted at his expression. Her fingers had clenched so tightly into a fist that they appeared white.

“Let’s do another whole body check-up to see what’s going on with your body. Don’t worry too much. Let’s discuss once we have the results.”

After a long silence, Grayson finally suggested.

Sasha had no other choice but to agree.

That’s right. It will be best to do a whole body check-up.

When Sasha was undergoing her check-up, her phone rang.

"Hello, Sebby."

"You're at the hospital again. Do you need me to accompany you?"

When Sebastian got back to Oceanic Estate, he heard from Sabrina that Sasha had gone to the hospital again. Feeling worried, he called her immediately.

Sasha was anxious at his suggestion. "No, there's no need. I'm almost done; had a chat with Dr. Wallen when I bumped into him earlier."

Sebastian replied, "That's good then. Let me know when you're coming back."

Hearing his agreement, Sasha entered the examination room.

The rim of her eyes was red as she went in.

More than an hour had passed since the check-up. Worried that Sebastian would be suspicious she took so long, she quickly looked for Grayson.

Luckily, Grayson was waiting for her results in his office.

However, he was already going through the report when Sasha got there. His expression was somber.

"Dr. Wallen, you—"

"Sasha, there's indeed something wrong with your current condition. By right, estrogen levels should increase upon your pregnancy. Looking at your stats, however, the estrogen levels didn't increase but decreased instead."

Grayson pointed toward the report on his monitor.

Sasha was stunned.

She rushed to the monitor to look.

It was true, the report had shown a decrease in her estrogen levels. Not only that, her ultrasound reports had many abnormalities as well.

"It resembles a withered flower."

Grayson concluded based on her results.

Exactly. A withered flower.

But, since the flower was withered, how did she get pregnant then? Isn't that weird?

Sasha pondered as she stared at the report in her hands.

Soon, Grayson caught a glimpse of the newly issued report and was stunned by the image on it.

"How did your cells end up like this?"

"What?"

Sasha turned to look at his question.

She was thunderstruck at the image as well.

The test was primarily to examine Sasha's main body functions. So her cellular conditions were especially important.

Instead of healthy cells, she saw they were perforated. Although tiny, it was still shocking.

"How could this happen? What does this mean?"

"Not sure. But one thing is for sure. There's something wrong with your body. That's why you're showing symptoms of miscarriage," answered Grayson.

However, there was something he omitted from her. Her condition was the exact replica of Devin's when he first returned.

The only difference was his cells had started to recover by then.

Sasha's cells were undergoing apoptosis.

Could all these be related?

Grayson could feel a sheen of cold sweat forming on his back.

Before Grayson could conclude, Sasha had to depart for fear the time taken would be too long. Grayson had agreed to inform her once the final results were out.

Sasha went back to Oceanic Estate.

“How is it? Is the baby okay?”

Sebastian had been waiting for her all the while. Seeing she finally return, he went up to her and gently caressed her stomach.

There was unrestrained anticipation and happiness in his eyes.

Sasha noticed his feelings and felt a stabbing pain in her heart.

“Everything is fine. Don’t worry about it.”

“Great. Let’s have dinner then. I made some clam chowder for you.”

Chapter 1260 When You Cannot Win

Sebastian gently patted Sasha’s head as they headed for the dining room.

The entire dinner was difficult for Sasha. She didn’t have any appetite and was overcome with despair that she wanted to be alone with her thoughts and fears.

Looking at Sebastian, she had to put on a happy front for him so that he wouldn’t notice something was wrong.

That night was the most agonizing night ever for Sasha.

The next morning, she received a call from Grayson. Intending to avoid Sebastian, she intentionally stepped out pretending to go check on Jaena and went downstairs with her phone to take the call.

“Hello?”

“Sasha, I need you to take a deep breath and mentally prepare yourself. After discussing with a few radiologists, we have all concluded that you’ve come into contact with some radioactive source.”

00:00/00:00

“Radioactive source?”

Sasha’s face paled instantly.

Radioactive source?

When had I come into contact with one? I can't recall.

Grayson's next words had triggered her memory.

"Try to recall if you had come into contact with one when Eddie had taken you. His research is about nuclear weapons. Devin had almost died from his nuclear bomb."

He waited for a few beats, but there was not a single response from Sasha.

At that time, Sasha's grasp on the phone tightened. Darkness started to engulf her sight.

How could I have forgotten about it?

She didn't know if the old Durant residence had any of those radioactive sources lying around, but she remembered she was strapped with a nuclear explosive that day.

She recalled she had suffered pain in her entire back and chest.

If underneath the old Durant residence were covered with those dangerous explosives, then it wouldn't be surprising for her body to be in tatters.

Also, radioactive materials had another terrifying effect. Other than causing harm to humans, they could cause some failed organs to recover their functions to a certain level.

That was the reason cancer patients undergo radioactive therapy.

Then, for her, to had gotten pregnant when she shouldn't have been able to.

Sasha staggered backward. She would've fallen to the ground if it wasn't for the hands catching her.

"Don't you know you're pregnant? You should be more careful."

It was Sabrina. She was dropping by for a visit with her child.

Sasha tried suppressing her emotions, hoping Sabrina couldn't catch it. Alas, it was too late. Sabrina had caught a glimpse of Sasha's pale face and tearful eyes.

“What happened? Why are you crying? I didn’t mean to scold you. I just...”

Sabrina nervously explained, she thought Sasha was crying because of her harsh tone.

But Sasha suddenly wrapped her hands over her head and sat on the floor.

She started crying, but she was holding back her voice.

However, Sabrina could see Sasha’s flowing tears dripping onto the floor, forming tiny puddles.

Sabrina was taken aback by Sasha’s reaction.

Not knowing what to do, she scanned her surrounding for anyone around to help her. Finally, she bent down with her child in her arms to comfort Sasha, seeing as no one was around to help.

“Don’t cry. Tell me what’s wrong. Was it Sebastian? Don’t worry. I’ll go and teach him a lesson now.”

“No!”

Sasha stretched her hand out to stop Sabrina from leaving.

“No. It’s not Sebastian. Sab, I might not be able to deliver this baby safely...” she said truthfully with tears streaming down her face.

Sabrina was stunned by her words.

“Why not? What happened?”

“Because I don’t have it in me...” Tears continued to flow from Sasha’s eyes as she blurted out everything Grayson had told her.

Sasha merely wanted to express her sadness to someone.

She felt lost and didn’t know what to do. She wanted to tell Sebastian but fearing it would be too huge a blow to him, she stopped herself.

Also, he was in a tug of war with Eddie. She was afraid he would lose control if he knew it was all because of that a**hole. He might fall into that a**hole’s trap if he lost control of his emotions.

Sasha was certain it was all that a**hole’s plan.

Sabrina was stunned yet again at Sasha's revelation.

She hadn't thought such a huge problem was brewing beneath the peace and quiet at home.

"That a**hole! How could he have treated you with so much cruelty? He's not even a f**king human for doing that. He couldn't win against Sebastian, so he decided to use such a method to ruin him instead?"

"What?"

Sasha turned to Sabrina dumbfoundedly.

Ruin?

Oh My Gosh! My mind is just a mess. How have I not thought about that?

That's right. That f**ker had knowingly used high-intensity nuclear explosives so I could get pregnant. When delight swelled within Sebastian with the news of a new addition to the family, he would take me and my baby's lives.

Wouldn't that kill Sebastian's spirit?

Devin had said Sebastian had almost lost his mind when the museum she was in had exploded. What will happen to him if I really did die along with the child he had anticipated and loved.

Can he take it?

He might just lose it on the spot.

Returning from the Dead: His Secret Lover Chapter 1261

Chapter 1261 A Painful Decision

Sabrina's words had enlightened Sasha. In an instant, she wiped off her tears and stood up right away.

"What are you doing?" Sabrina asked her apprehensively.

"I need to leave this place. Since Sebastian is settling a score with Eddie, I must keep mum from him about this matter so he will not be distracted. I will find a temporary place to stay and get the matter resolved first," Sasha explained resolutely.

In a blink of an eye, it was as though she had thought it through and found a new path. The utter sorrow and helplessness in her eyes moments ago were prevailed by a hint of determination.

Sabrina was dumbfounded and asked quizzically, "What do you mean? Are you going to settle it by yourself? How do you think you can get it resolved?"

Sasha stared into the distance and mumbled, "I'm sure there will be a way out. After all, I'm a doctor myself. However, it will be a different case for him. I'm worried that he won't be able to take it and will get worked up easily if he happens to know about it any time now. That will certainly exacerbate the situation."

00:00/00:00

Sabrina was at a loss for words to refute her.

Undeniably, she shared the same sentiment with Sasha. That could be one of Eddie's ploys to send Sebastian into a tizzy and weaken his stamina in fighting against him. Thus, she ended up giving in to Sasha.

After Sebastian and Devin were back from the Naval Force two days later, Sasha went to see him.

"Sebby, can I stay at Aquene Temple temporarily?" Sasha asked warily.

"Aquene Temple? Why are you thinking of going there? Don't you feel like staying at home?" Sebastian was in bafflement.

"Take it easy. Since I'm still in my first trimester, I'm thinking of praying there for blessing. Besides, it's getting warmer lately. Thus, the temple is a more cooling and ideal place for me throughout my pregnancy," Sasha replied analytically.

Meanwhile, Sabrina was holding Jaena's hands and teaching her to walk. When Sebastian was about to say something, she advanced toward them with her child.

"Yeah, good idea. Come, let's go together. It's a pity that poor Jaena has been having heat rashes all over her body lately. What to do? Her daddy never really cares about her. I'm going to get him to send us over." She carried Jaena up and walked away to look for her man! It sounded as if she was helping to convince Sebastian in a way.

Meanwhile, Sebastian felt his temples starting to throb. After quite a while, he finally nodded reluctantly, giving the green light to Sasha.

Therefore, Sasha set off to the temple with Sabrina and Jaena the following day.

Shin welcomed them with open arms and arranged for them to stay in the rooms they had stayed in before. Apart from that, he kept the room next to Sasha's empty, especially for her.

Other than going to the medical storage room in the temple every day, Sasha spent most of her time conducting experiments for her body painstakingly in that empty room. Two weeks after she had consumed the medicine delivered by Xayden from Miralaea and had acupuncture for herself persistently, she finally found that her pregnancy pulse was gone.

"S-So the baby's gone?" Sabrina stammered alongside her with Jaena.

Even though she had foreseen the sorrowful moment ever since Sasha started consuming the medicine and having acupuncture for herself, she could not resist feeling a prickle of grief.

Needless to say, Sasha was grief-stricken. Her heart wrenched the moment she confirmed that her pulse rate during pregnancy was gone. After all, the baby was her own flesh and blood! Sadly, she could not let the embryo continue growing in her womb!

It had been no easy feat to talk herself into getting a grip on herself for the painful decision. Since she had conceived abnormally, it was wishful thinking to bear a healthy child. Thus, she had no choice but to put things to an end.

Sasha shut her eyes in distress. After quite a while, she dragged herself to the bed aside and lay down in weariness.

"Give Grayson a call. Bear in mind not to let Sebastian find out about this," she told Sabrina.

"I know what to do." Sabrina stepped out with tears welling up in her eyes.

A few hours later, Grayson reached hastily with two assistants, bringing his medical kit and surgery tools.

Sasha was already waiting for him in the hut outside the temple. She did not wish to cast any stain on the holiness of the temple unintentionally.

“Where is she?” Grayson asked Sabrina breathlessly.

She pointed at the big maple tree with teary eyes, gesturing to him that Sasha was in the hut.

Grayson felt a rush of complex emotions as he looked in the direction. His heart ached uncontrollably when he imagined how he had to end a baby’s life alongside the old maple tree.

By the time Grayson stepped out from the hut again, it was already more than two hours later. When an ashen-faced Sabrina was about to go over to check on Sasha, an elderly’s muffled voice sounded abruptly from her back. “Please bring this over to her.”

Sabrina turned and was surprised that Shin was just right behind her. He handed her a black singing bowl crafted with sacred words.

“Master...” Sabrina looked at him hesitantly.

“Go ahead and tell her not to dwell on the disgruntling moment. The baby’s soul will be blessed and rest in peace,” he mumbled and chanted briefly.

Sabrina recalled how Sebastian had mentioned that Shin was not a real monk as he was forced to be one.

Nonetheless, it meant no difference for Shin. The moment he made up his mind to put worldly matters out of his mind, there was inner peace within himself regardless of where he was.

Ever since Frieda was gone forever, others expected that he would not be able to get over the loss of his beloved wife for the rest of his life. Even so, things turned out the other way around.

Returning from the Dead: His Secret Lover Chapter 1262

Chapter 1262 Throw Tantrum Unexpectedly

Instead of mourning endlessly for her death, Shin chose to chant for her earnestly in the temple every day. He believed that was the best he could do for her soul to rest in peace. If there was reincarnation, he wished she could embark on a peaceful journey in her next life. He hoped the best for Sasha's poor baby as well.

It was already three days later when Sasha managed to get down from the bed again. Accompanied by Sabrina, she crouched down in front of the small mound under the maple tree and buried the cracked bloodstone in front of it.

"What is this?" Sabrina asked curiously.

Sasha smiled sorrowfully as she replied, "It's from my Aunt Sharon. According to her, it had been shielding my mom and my uncle from risks all this while. Now, I give it to my child."

Sabrina was rendered speechless as a wave of complex emotions crept into her heart. As a mother, she knew at once what Sasha meant. She was doing her best, blessing her deceased child's soul.

Three days later, they received news from the Oceanic Estate. It seemed both Sebastian and Devin had frequented the Naval Force lately. Even though Sabrina was clueless about that, her gut instinct told her that there was something awry.

On the other hand, Grayson seemed to have a clearer insight into the whole matter.

00:00/00:00

While having a check-up for Sasha, he commented analytically, "Don't you think that the despicable Eddie Limmer is manipulating to strike against the warships in the Naval Force? If that is the case, the whole military base will be in a precarious state. Not only that, the military force of other countries might take advantage of the situation and attack us at any time!"

Grayson's point of view actually made sense. After all, he had been in a military force before and still had certain knowledge about the military base.

In an instant, Sabrina's face turned ashen.

Sasha felt a prickle of anxiousness as something came into her mind. "Does that mean he will be striking back at any time?"

"Yeah, I guess so. Since he was badly defeated previously, and Old Mr. Jadeson is back in action, I bet he won't dare to have any play on the Land Force. I foresee he is targeting the Air Force and the Naval Force instead.” Grayson continued to voice up his point of view.

“But then he doesn’t have anyone in the Air Force, does he?” Sasha responded doubtfully.

“Yeah, when Carlos dragged down Desmond Croll, the Minister of the Naval Force previously, he was actually thinking of having the whole Naval Force under his control. In other words, Eddie Limmer’s men had wormed their way into the Naval Force long ago.” Grayson was seemingly confident with his point of view.

He cast the young woman in front of him an admiring glance. Sasha certainly has a clear mind. Apparently, Sebastian has an eye for her intelligence!

Grayson’s words sent a chill down Sabrina’s spine. She did not have any clue about the military forces and political issues. Even so, she knew that the hideous man and his team would surely bring disasters to the nation once they infiltrated the national military force.

Infiltration of the national military force! How is it possible for both of them to stop all these by themselves? Sabrina shuddered at the thought.

After Grayson left, she could not hold back any longer and whined, “Damn it! That old man is apparently getting crazier. What are we supposed to do now? If the whole Naval Force is under his control, it will definitely drive the wedge among the different forces and cause civil war!”

Sasha shook her head and appeased Sabrina by uttering placidly, “Don’t worry. Both Sebastian and Devin won’t let that happen. Don’t you see how they seem to be frequenting the Naval Force? This implies that they have countermeasure in their minds.”

“Hmm, you seem to have a point.” Sasha’s words tended to tamp down her anxiety temporarily.

Apart from that, they decided not to distract the two men fighting against their foes.

Since then, both women in the temple were extra careful whenever they updated the Oceanic Estate on their latest condition. They kept the tragic loss of Sasha’s baby under wraps.

Another two weeks later, Sasha was gradually recuperating. Thus, she decided to research nuclear radiation in her previous exposure.

Assisted by Grayson, Sasha's temporary room in the temple was well-equipped with advanced medical devices. One day, she took pictures of her own sectioned cells and sent them to Xayden, a genius in chemistry. "Xayden, this is my sectioned cells. Can you help to have a look?"

In the meantime, Xayden was scrutinizing the shattered pieces of the explosive. The moment he caught a glimpse of the picture for Sasha's sectioned cells, there was an instant flicker of fury on his face. "Good gracious! Whoever created it is freaking crazy!"

Sasha was startled by his sudden change of tone.

"Ah! M-Mrs. Hayes, I'm sorry for overreacting. I don't mean it." Seconds later, Xayden came to himself and back to his usual gentle self again.

Strangely, there were unknown figures all over the notebook next to him. Nonetheless, it seemed he was not solely analyzing the explosive.

Apparently, he had listed all the substances of the explosive one by one and restructured them instead. On top of that, he had added other chemical symbols to his note. At that very moment, he looked like a weirdo in the sci-fi movies.

At the same time, Matteo was peeping through the slit of the door and broke out in cold sweat.

"What is he researching now? Is he planning to turn the tables on anyone again?" he gasped.

"Could it be megalodon?" Ian asked casually from behind him.

It was natural for him to draw speculation based on the incident two days ago. Vivian was craving lobsters on that day. When trying to catch lobsters from the sea, she was hurt by one of their pincers.
