

The Man's Decree Chapter 695 (The Man like none Other chapter 695)

Josephine actually wished that Lizbeth could join her, and together they could be with Kai. The two of them were close friends, after all. They could even keep each other company when Kai was off on his trip.

Lizbeth stayed in the washroom for an entire hour before she left. Josephine's jaw dropped when she saw Lizbeth standing there. "Lizbeth, y-you've changed too. Quick, come check yourself out in the mirror."

Lizbeth hurried to the mirror upon hearing that. She jumped with excitement when she saw how smooth and beautiful her skin was.

Kai was staring instinctively as well. After taking the detoxification pill, Lizbeth exuded a different aura.

The two ladies standing side by side were equally beautiful, but their aura was completely different.

Josephine was like a graceful deity, whereas Lizbeth was like a goddess of war. Well, that made sense since the latter used to work for the Department of Justice.

Kai couldn't help thinking the dirty when he saw the two of them standing right in front of him.

Wow, if I have them both, I can hug them in each of my arms as I sleep at night. Oh my gosh, that would be fantastic!

Kai smiled like an idiot without realizing it. He was so deep in his fantasy that he didn't even notice Josephine and Lizbeth walking over.

The ladies turned to one another after they stared at that stupid smile. They shouted simultaneously.

Kai jumped in response. That was when he came around and saw that both Josephine and Lizbeth were staring at him with the strangest glow in their eyes. He sat back up on the couch right away.

Powered by Hooligan Media

"Kai, what were you smiling about earlier?" asked Lizbeth.

"N-Nothing in particular," replied Kai awkwardly.

"I bet he's fantasizing about having the two of us sleeping with him at night. That's probably why he was smiling like an idiot."

Josephine hit a bull's eye. It was exactly what was going on in his mind.

"Oh, stop bullsh*tting. That was not what was on my mind," lied Kai. He sprang up from the couch to head out. "You girls have dinner without me. I have some errands to run."

He no longer had the guts to stay at home. Who knows? Those ladies might actually con me into something.

Kai had nothing to do after he left the mansion in Dragon Bay, so he invited Tommy out for a drink. He knew a lot of people in the city, but only drank with a handful of them.

Soon, Kai and Tommy met up in a bar. The place belonged to the Templar Regiment, so the employees greeted them warmly as soon as they showed up.

"Mr. Chance, you just had an intense battle against Xander, so why aren't you resting at home? How come you are out for a drink?"

Tommy had gotten them a bottle of red wine and poured Kai a glass.

"I have two women at home. Both are annoying, so I came out to get some fresh air," replied Kai.

He grinned in exasperation before downing his drinks.

"Ah, but that life is what most men crave, isn't it?" said Tommy. He sipped some red wine as well.

"So, how are things between you and Phoenix?" asked Kai.

"Things are normal. At our age, we're not looking for fun and excitement. We just want a partner in life. Still, we are happy we could both serve under you, Mr. Chance."

Tommy had always appreciated Kai because the latter was the reason he became a Grandmaster. Without Kai's help, it was likely Tommy would never reach that level.

"Well, I'm glad you realize you're getting older. You should hurry and make a baby soon. At least give yourself an heir. It's not too bad for a martial artist in his early forties to have a kid."

Anyone who reached the level of Senior Grandmaster could live longer than an average human being. Many lived to be over a hundred. In fact, that was the norm for them because they were physically stronger and healthier than the average person.

"I have never even thought about having a kid. It's simply too troublesome."

Tommy chuckled. He had ruled as the underground king for most of his life, so he never even thought about having a kid.

Kai simply grinned in response. He had no right to butt into matter like that, so he wouldn't comment about it.