

Chapter 1989 I'm Planning To Propose To Elizabeth

Looking out the window, Janet spotted Brandon by the car, gesturing for her attention.

Janet suddenly remembered that she had a pregnancy test scheduled for today.

Addressing Tasha and Lexi, Janet declared, "I have some personal matters to attend to today. I'll be taking the afternoon off. Please manage the store in my absence. I must leave now."

"Understood. No need to worry," Lexi responded enthusiastically. Her gaze followed Janet's beaming expression as she headed towards Brandon.

Observing Janet's radiant expression, Lexi couldn't help but feel envious. "Janet is truly winning at life. She has a handsome husband, a successful career, and talent in her pursuits."

Noticing the envy in Lexi's eyes, Tasha remarked, "She's reached where she is through gradual steps. We might not see the struggles and challenges she faced, so we need to remain diligent, Lexi."

Lexi nodded earnestly in agreement.

During the journey, Janet attempted to open the window for some fresh air, only for Brandon to promptly close it.

Janet voiced her discomfort. "It's too stuffy in here. Can we please open the window?"

Chapter 1989 I'm Planning To Propo. 🎁 +120 Points at most

"It's not safe to expose yourself to the wind," Brandon asserted firmly. Offering reassurance, he squeezed her hand tightly and said, "Hang in there. We're almost there."

Looking down at her belly, Janet let out a helpless sigh.

Brandon glanced at her and suggested, "Since everything's settled, how about you take a break from work and we go out to have some fun in a couple of days?"

Curiously, Janet turned to him and inquired, "Where do you have in mind?"

"How about Rome?" Brandon proposed with a smile.

"Rome?" Janet furrowed her brow slightly. "What's the reason behind that choice?"

Vincent spoke earnestly. "Considering all the things you've been dealing with lately, I believe once everything is resolved, you deserve a break. Right now, your priority should be enjoying yourself."

Contemplating for a moment, Janet responded, "It's a possibility, but I can't travel just yet. The doctor emphasized the importance of the first trimester. I need to take it easy and avoid strenuous activities. Moreover, we need to ascertain Alexandra's situation first."

"Alright, relax. I've been looking into it. Once everything settles and the baby is secure, we'll plan a trip abroad." Brandon's face lit up with a joyful grin.

Upon Janet and Brandon's arrival at the hospital, they found Frank already present, engrossed in reading within his office.

Spotting them, Frank set aside his book and rose from his seat. "You've arrived. I'll arrange a prenatal check-up for

Chapter 1989 I'm Planning To Propo. 🎁 +120 Points at most you."

Brandon intervened, "That won't be necessary. We've found our own obstetrician, so there's no need to bother you anymore."

Ignoring Vincent, Frank walked to Janet and explained, "I've been busy lately, so I left your care to Adriana. But now that I'm back, I promise to take full responsibility for your health. Elizabeth has been reminding me to take care of you since she found out about your pregnancy. Now that I've received her orders, I won't be careless."

Janet perked up at the mention of Elizabeth and inquired, "How's she doing these days?"

The mention of Elizabeth caused Frank to blush suddenly, and after a brief pause, he confessed, "I'm planning to propose to her."