

When His Eyes Opened by Simple Silence

Chapter 1196

"I only believe what I see and what I hear." Elliot listened to her cry, and his heart was unmoved.

In the past, as long as Avery's eyes were red, Elliot would unconditionally compromise with her.

It is precisely because he has been soft-hearted and indulgent to her countless times that the current situation is caused.

Elliot has given up everything, and her plan will never succeed again.

"What did you see? What did you hear?" Avery screamed out of control, "The truth is, what you see and what you hear are one-sided. I won't break up. Wait for me for a few days. I will definitely explain it to you."

If it was before, Elliot might listen to Avery and give her a few more days. But now, let alone a few days, even a few hours, he couldn't wait any longer.

"When you're done with your business, go back to Aryadelle as soon as possible. Don't forget that you still have two children in the country." After Elliot said this, he hung up the phone.

Avery was disheartened when she heard the disconnecting sound of 'dududu'!

It's like hitting an iron plate, it's cold and painful.

Elliot said goodbye to her and handed over the child to her. Not only did he not want the company, he also didn't want her and the child.

She stubbornly dialed his number again—— ——Sorry, the user you dialed has been turned off, please try again later.

The system automatically hung up the phone, and she stared at the screen in a daze.

So Elliot resolutely left her.

Like a gust of wind, a puff of smoke, fluttering, but firmly left her.

After Elliot turned off the phone, he glanced behind him. The past, let it go.

This chapter is provided by naijdate.com. Visit naijdate.com for daily update. As if Elliot never had what he had lost. His life was just the restart button being pressed. In the future, he will no longer be held back by anyone.

In the evening.

Layla came home and looked around.

"Layla, are you looking for your father?" Mrs. Cooper saw through her thoughts at a glance, "After you went to school this morning, he went out."

Layla put down her schoolbag and lowered her eyes slightly: "Where Dad was going?"

"He didn't say where he was going. But you ignored him this morning. He was a little sad."

"He was arguing with my mother, and I ignored him." Layla said angrily, walking up to Robert. "Idiot brother, you are the only one who still calls him Dad."

Robert was stunned for a moment, then called out clearly: "Dad."

"Don't call Dad." Layla glared at him.

"Dad." Robert couldn't understand the threat.

Mrs. Cooper immediately advised, "Layla, don't quarrel with your brother. My brother is still little and can't understand your words. If your parents quarreled this time, it's not your father's fault? Do you want to blame your father too?"

Layla was stunned for a moment: "It's not my father's fault, is it my mother's fault?"

Mrs. Cooper was afraid that Layla thought she was blaming her, so she spoke softly, "I don't know exactly what happened between them, but your mother told me privately that she was wrong this time. So You shouldn't be so indifferent to your father. Whether it's your father or mother, they are the people you love the most."

"Okay!" Layla pouted With a small mouth, reluctantly, "then I'll see him later, it won't be so fierce."

"Well. Layla, you play with your brother first, I'll call your dad and ask him if he wants to come back for dinner." After Mrs. Cooper finished speaking, she went to call Elliot.

Two minutes later, Layla asked, "Is my dad coming back for dinner at night?"

Mrs. Cooper shook her head, "His phone is off."

"Oh..." Layla was very disappointed, "Then my mother's phone number Can you get through?"

She was afraid that her mother wouldn't be able to get in touch.