

Barren Mother Give Birth To Sextuplets To The Hot CEO Chapter 19

Amy and the children soon appeared at Nell's room. This time, Nell was already awake. When she saw the kids with Amy, she asked, "I have been worried since I can't find them here, did you take them out?"

"No, ma..." Amy said, she didn't know how to tell Nell that the children left themselves and started playing around the mansion. Nell counted the children but realized that there were only three boys and two girls here," there is one more, where is she? "That's Debbie, she can be quiet and weird at times, she refused to follow his brothers and sisters here. I'll go and get her now," Amy said and left the kids. "Come around," Nell said and gestured for the kids to take their seats. The children sat but were not happy because Amy was not with them. It had been a few days that they had not seen their mother and now that they saw her, she had gone out again. They hoped that when she brings Debbie back, they would be able to spend time with her.

Broderick carried Debbie in his arms out of the office and began to walk over to Nell's room. Debbie had made him promise her to be good to their mother and he promised immediately, believing that Nell was their mother. Debbie wanted to tell him before that Nell was not their biological mother but she thinks that she would be betraying Amy, her sisters and her brothers that way. Amy had told her that in order for them to be protected, they had to hide their identity as their mother. Nell was a woman that he respected so much. He can never forget how good she was to him during the crisis of his parents years ago, he feels like he owes the woman more than he had rewarded her.

Because when Broderick grew to become the most powerful and richest man in the country, he went to Nell's city and gifted Nell some expensive stuffs.

He was now walking towards Nell's room, when he walked inside, he saw Nell arranging the children's clothes in the wardrobe. Nell smiled on seeing him, "Hey Broderick." "Mother, how are you doing?" He greeted. "I'm fine, son. So Debbie is with you?" Nell asked as she saw him carry her with so much affection. Plus there were similarities between him and Debbie. "Yes, she made me promise her that I must be good to you. Even without her promise, mother. I'll never have any reason to treat you badly," Broderick said. Nell walked over to him with a smile and said to Debbie who was sitting on his muscular arm majestically, "Debbie, Broderick likes me just as he likes his mother and he can never do anything bad to me, okay?" Debbie was dissatisfied at how it all turned out, Broderick had thought that the mother she was referring to was Nell. Debbie regretted not telling Broderick the secrets he really wanted to. Nell collected Debbie from Broderick and placed her down gently, she squatted before her and said, "Debbie, don't worry, okay? We are safe in this house." Debbie didn't even nod her head, she just kept staring at Nell's face. Nell looked up at Broderick and Nothing Special in you — said," she's naturally quiet unlike her brothers and sisters. I think it's normal for children to differ in characters, right?" "Sure," Broderick said and took a look at the other children who sat quietly and had a sad look on their face. He walked out quietly and as he walked towards his office, he wondered what made the children sad? He felt very unhappy seeing them that way. He didn't know why he feels some connections towards the children. Few minutes ago in his office, the children were lively until he broke the sad news to them that he was not their father. Was that the reason why they were sad? Or does Nell had anything to do with their sadness, shouldn't they cheer up since they were now with their mother? He sighted Amy all of a sudden trying to peep through the door of his office, he felt angry from within and already felt like smashing this woman. What was she doing in the entrance of his office? Amy had no idea that Broderick had seen her and was fast approaching her, she was still trying to examine if the door before her was either locked or not. She wondered if he locked himself up with the kid? She wasn't even hearing any sound? She felt a hand grab her arms all of a sudden and twisted her in a swift and hard manner that her back smashed to the door and she was now facing Broderick who had a murderous look on his face. "What are you trying to steal from me?" He asked. Unless she was trying to steal something from his study room, she couldn't have been doing anything here. "Nothing..." Amy shook her head quickly in fear. "I'm not.. trying to steal anything." Broderick frowned deeper, she hated the fact that the woman before her never says the truth, he pulled her away from the door and opened it then pushed her inside. Amy staggered inside the room and almost fall, when she managed to stand, she watched him close the door and at that moment, she knew she was doomed. Her heart began to thump and she had no idea what he would do to her this time. "Here is my home office and I hate it when people come to disturb me. Whoever told you this is my home office should have told you that I hate to be disturbed," Broderick said. "No one described this place to me...I was just taking a stroll around the mansion," Amy said. He walked towards her slowly but intimidatingly while Amy started adjusting back until the wall betrayed her. Standing tall before her, he said," you are so poor in lying. I'll give you the last chance to explain what it is that you are doing in my office." "Sincerely, I didn't even have any idea it's your office, I

..." Before she could say another word, he covered her small mouth and nose with his big palm. She couldn't breathe from both the nose and the mouth and she tried pushing his hands away but it was impossible. When she was almost giving up on life, he removed his hand and grabbed her arms then dragged her out. They both got inside the elevator and the elevator soon began to move upstairs. Amy kept wondering what it was that he wanted to do to her, "Please pardon me, I promise not to..." "You always promise but never keeps to promise," he interrupted her.

"Please, I..." If only another word. I'll make your death faster," he said and Amy frowned her brow in shock. Was he planning to kill her?

The elevator stopped and he dragged her out as soon as the door opened, he took her to the rear end of the tall building and made her stay at the edge of it. "Just one push and you will fall off these five story building, that way, you will die a brutal death and it won't be said that I was the one who killed you. It would be regarded as an accident," he said standing right behind her. Amy could see how far the ground is from where she stood, if she falls from here, there is no doubt that surviving is impossible. "Please, I don't want to die this way," Amy was so scared that tears had already begun to stream down from her face. She can't afford to die now for the sake of her children. They are still young and they are the reason why she's living and doing all these. Infact, she had come back to the city because she wanted a better education for them. "Then you should never have come closer to me, you should never have kept appearing before me. I told you I will make your life miserable. Everytime I see you, I feel so much disgust in my bones and marrows yet you keep appearing before me. When my mother sees that you fell off the building and die, she would be sad for a few days and cheer up, probably get me another woman," Broderick said. "You can do all you want with me but please don't kill me," Amy pleaded earnestly. Her heart almost fall off her chest. Amy felt a hand in her back and her heart raced even faster, "who are you to tell me what to do? Bye!" He said and pushed her.

Amy fell and screamed in pain, wondering if this was how she was going to die. But a hand grabbed one of her hands making her not to fall freely. She looked up and saw Broderick squatting by the edge of the building, she pleaded earnestly with a teary eyes, "please save me. Please don't let me die." "Why are you scared to die?" Broderick asked emotionlessly. From my research, you are not on good terms with your father and you are a divorced single mother living a desolate life. Nobody will miss you if you die." He said. 'My children will miss you,' Amy thought painfully but couldn't utter that out, "I promise to do whatever you want, please...just spare me." She pleaded with tears literally blurring her vision. Though there was no sense of hope at all on his face and he look ed like a devil. His face was absolutely devoid of mercy and she considers herself lucky to be held until this moment. “No, I’ll let you die,” he said and he began to loosen his grip around her hand. “Please! Please...save me? Save me! I have people that will miss me, I don’t want to die this way,” she pleaded and cried so hard. He pulled her up all of a sudden making her lean towards his chest, she cried even more on his chest and all she wanted right now was to leave this mansion. She has thought that his being mean would not extend to killing her but the man standing before her would not mind killing her at all.

I will leave and never return,” she said with so much determination and ran away from him to where the elevator was, Once the elevator took her down, she went to Nell’s room and when she walked in, she saw that she was busy telling the children stories.

Nothing Special In you 1 She faked a smile and didn’t know how to interrupt, but remembering how she almost died few minutes ago, she said, “ma’am... Please spare me a minute.” “I’ll be back, babies,” Nell stood and walked out with her. “What’s wrong?” Nell asked. “I’ll be leaving with the kids now. Please explain to Mrs. Elizabeth that I can’t cope with Broderick anymore and I know you will miss the kids too,” she said. “Oh! Now?” Nell asked. “Yes,” Amy answered. When Amy saw that Nell was quiet she thought that she was not pleased with it but she had no choice but to leave

Nell walked inside all of a sudden leaving Amy confused, when Amy was about to walk in nevertheless to take her kids away, a voice stopped her from behind. “If I can kill, I would have killed you,” Broderick said and Amy turned at once. “Are you trying to stop me from leaving?” She asked. “You think too far, woman. There is nothing special in you and you are just another promiscuous woman who would do anything to get noticed by me. You even made me sleep with you years back. Your attempt to leave is just a mirage to claim decency but no matter what you do or how you act, you will always remain a shameless woman before me. You disgusts me so much but don’t be too silly to think you can leave here. As long as my mother lives, you are stuck with me,” Broderick said, turned majestically and walked away nobly.