Chapter 856 Injustice For Who

Samuel drawled, "Yes, that is the truth."

"I don't believe it." Natalie leveled her gaze at Samuel. "You're lying to me."

"I have no reason to lie to you."

"Then why did you have Justin bring me here?" Natalie chewed on her lip. "Didn't you want to propose to me?"

"I was planning to propose today but not to you." Samuel's eyes darkened as his tone turned cold. "The reason I asked him to bring you here was to end everything here tonight."

He reached for Luna's hand gently and pecked the back of her hand.

"Clearing up my relationship with you is something I owe to Luna." Samuel continued stonily, "She's hesitant about my relationship with you, so I want to show her my determination to cutting off all ties with you during this ceremony."

All this nonsense is coming out of the mouth of the man that loves me the most. Everything seems real. His story matches his actions, but I just can't believe it. The sincere feelings I felt from every minute we spent together weren't something he could erase with a few words.

"Samuel, I'm not going to fall for your lie so easily." Natalie gritted her teeth and stared at him coldly. "Are you sure you want to cut off all ties with me? Once our ties are severed, I'll marry someone else and be his wife."

She thought Samuel would lose his composure, but instead, he seemed relieved.

"If you truly love him and he can treat you well like I used to, I think it's fine for you to marry him." Samuel stared pointedly at Natalie with sincerity in his gaze. "After all, it was my fault for being confused about the woman I truly love. I'm not going to blame you for my mistake."

"You!"

He didn't get jealous as I expected. Instead, he was giving me his blessing for the start of a new relationship. It seemed like he had already let go of his relationship with me in such a short period.

Luna could feel how hard he was holding himself back from his grip. He loves her so much yet has to act like he doesn't.

"Ms. Nichols, I know you're upset." Luna said, "But since Samuel chose to marry me, that meant he had thought things through. I hope you can accept the reality and we can all live our lives peacefully. Let's not get involved in each other's lives anymore."

Samuel nodded with agreement. "Have you heard everything Luna said?"

Tears were still falling down Natalie's eyes.

Samuel and Luna had thrown my heart on the ground and trampled on it. I should keep my head high and leave without looking back if I want to preserve my pride. Yet my body and heart refuse to take another step away from here. The pain I feel now is equivalent to the pain I felt six years ago in that fire.

Then, the door to the greenhouse slammed open, and Steven strode in hurriedly.

Trailing behind him was Justin tugging on him. "What are you doing? Your brother is proposing. Come on, let's-"

However, when Justin studied the scene in front of him, his words were stuck in his throat.

Steven caught the tears on Natalie's face and Samuel's grip on Luna's hand and immediately realized what was happening.

He stood beside Natalie and accused, "Samuel, are you still human? How can you do this? Natalie had given you so much, and this is how you repay her?"

"Is this how you speak to your brother?" Samuel barked back.

"Do you think you deserve my respect?"

"Are you feeling injustice for Natalie?" Samuel asked as his gaze filled with mockery. "Or are you feeling injustice for yourself?"

Chapter 857 So Wrong About You

"You!" Steven was stunned. However, he couldn't help stealing glances at Luna.

Luna returned his gaze but kept quiet.

After all, the Garcias were indebted to the Bowers. Arlo had told her repeatedly that she had to return the favor before he passed away. The only thing she could do now was to complete the mission Samuel gave her to lighten his burden of being poisoned.

She didn't have the right to reach out to Steven even though she was reluctant to part with him.

After calming herself down, Luna took a deep breath and looked up at Steven. "Mr. Steven, I've accepted your brother's marriage proposal. I might have done something wrong for you to misunderstand my intentions. The person I liked since I was a kid is Samuel, not you. So I hope you can think of me as your sister-in-law from here on out."

Steven's heart wrenched upon her words.

He thought they had something going on between them. He thought she had harbored feelings for him during their time together at the aquarium. He thought he was special to her, as she was to him. It wasn't until today that he realized he was already emotionally attached to her.

"It's okay that you don't like me." Steven forced a smile and stared at her with conviction. "But have you thought of her? I'm sure they still have lingering feelings for each other after everything. What will you do if Sam regrets his decision one day? Are you sure you still want to stick with him?"

Luna kept up with her act. "Samuel has given me a diamond ring and has cleared things up with Ms. Nichols. I believe he truly loves me. Trust me. He won't regret his decision with me around. Please don't worry about me anymore."

"Hehe."

Steven sneered.

"Samuel, you b*stard. Learn how to treat a woman right."

"It's survival of the fittest," Samuel said coldly. "Luna chose to be with me instead of you. I chose her instead of Natalie."

"Samuel! Are you still my brother? How could you say that..."

Steven couldn't stop himself from cursing. However, Natalie quickly tugged his sleeve. "Steven, stop it."

"Natalie!"

"It's pointless." She looked a little lost after she stopped crying.

Steven kept quiet.

“Let’s go,” Natalie continued. “This is the place where everything started for them. We shouldn’t be here.”

“Samuel, I’ve been so wrong about you,” Natalie sighed before leaving with Steven.

She left right after without a moment’s hesitation.

What the f*ck is going on? Justin thought as he swiveled his head around.

“Samuel, I thought you prepared this marriage proposal for Natalie?” Justin knew better than anyone to who Samuel wanted to propose.

“You’ve misunderstood my intentions,” Samuel mumbled. “I never said it was for her.”

Justin finally registered what was going on.

“Haven’t I told you how much Natalie had put herself through to find you the antidote?” Justin frowned. “Samuel, how could you chuck her aside like that even though you don’t find her sexually appealing?”

Samuel hummed in acknowledgment. “It’s my fault, but I don’t want her anymore.”

“Samuel, I’m so disappointed with you!” Justin left right after.

At that moment, Samuel and Luna were the only ones left in the greenhouse.

It wasn’t until then that Samuel finally let go of her hand. He couldn’t hide his pain any longer.

“Luna, I’m so sorry…” he said. “I will explain everything to Steven after I die.”

Chapter 858 Something Fishy Is Going On

On the way back.

“Do you know about Samuel and Ms. Garcia before this?” Natalie lifted her head and asked.

Steven told her the truth since he knew it was impossible to hide it from her. "Yes. I once saw him at Luna's place when I visited her. They don't look like they were just friends back then..."

Natalie clenched her fists so hard that her nails dug into the flesh of her palms.

"I'm sorry, Natalie. I should have told you about this sooner," Steven apologized.

"It doesn't matter anymore." Natalie's eyes reddened as she spoke. "Because I don't believe that Samuel would do that to me."

"Natalie..."

"He put up such a good show for everyone." Natalie wiped away her tears with the back of her hand. "If this is what Samuel wants me to believe, I will play along."

An act? Believe him?

Steven was downright confused.

Worried that it was too much to bear for Natalie, he couldn't help but ask, "Are you okay?"

"I'm fine," Natalie said hoarsely. "I wish to be alone."

"Natalie, we can grab a drink together if you want," Steven suggested.

Natalie stared at Steven.

Samuel must have destroyed his trust after everything that has happened tonight.

Natalie smiled. "Okay, let's go get wasted."

Hence, the both of them headed to the bar.

Steven was a regular at the place. The bar manager immediately ushered them to Steven's private room the moment they arrived.

There were two temperature-controlled wine cabinets in the room to store different kinds of wine.

Steven opened both wine cabinet doors, turned to Natalie, and said, "Help yourself."

Natalie checked out the various bottles of wine in the wine cabinet and reached out without hesitation.

She opened the bottle with a bottle opener, poured herself a glass, and downed it.

Steven was stunned when he saw how fiercely she was drinking. "Slow down."

However, Natalie shook her head and chuckled. "Drinking slowly will only upset you even more when you're already upset. Didn't you say you would drink with me? Come on, bottoms up!"

"Bring it on."

Steven took a bottle of vodka out from the wine cabinet, poured himself a glass, and downed it like Natalie.

They didn't have much to talk about at first. Nevertheless, they started to socialize under the influence of alcohol.

Steven hugged the sofa legs and rubbed himself against it.

"Say... why do you think Sam is suddenly so infatuated with Luna?"

"Are you stupid? Something fishy is going on," she said drunkenly. "He might just be putting up a show with Ms. Garcia to trick me."

"Trick you?"

"I'm too smart to be tricked by him." Natalie patted her chest. "Sometimes the heart sees what is invisible to the eye."

Steven narrowed his eyes and asked, "Why would they do that?"

"I don't know." Natalie took a sip of her wine. "I don't care what the reason is. I'm super mad at him. Just wait, Samuel. I won't forgive you so easily this time around."

"My brother is such a d*ckhead!"

"Yes. Your brother is a d*ckhead!"

Natalie left after having too much to drink, wanting to find the restroom.

She was dressed to the nines tonight when she went to the greenhouse. Moreover, being drunk made her look even more attractive.

She was now the hot girl instead of being the innocent hot girl.

She attracted lots of attention from men as she strutted around the bar in her drunken state.

Chapter 859 In The Nick Of Time

“Hello beautiful. Are you alone?”

A feminine-looking man with shoulder-length hair made his way toward Natalie and gave her a devilish smirk.

“Tsk tsk. How could such a beautiful young lady be drinking all alone in a bar in the middle of the night? How about I keep you company?”

Natalie was so drunk that she could no longer tell who or what was standing in front of her. What a noisy prick.

“Get out of my way!”

Harry laughed out loud when Natalie told him to get lost. He touched the bottom of his lip with his thumb.

“I would have shown you who’s boss if you were someone else. But you’ve piqued my interest.”

“Don’t touch me!”

“You can stop the act. I know about your true intentions, being here alone so late at night.”

With that, Harry gazed at her lecherously and reached out to caress her cheeks.

He was stunned as his fingers came into contact with her flawless porcelain skin.

He never thought her skin would be so smooth and silky as he merely thought her skin looked smooth.

However, Natalie grabbed his hand and bent it the other way two seconds after.

Hiss!

He never expected for Natalie to be good at self-defense as he felt a sharp pain in his wrist.

Harry quickly returned to his senses and broke free from her iron grip.

His eyes burned with passion. “Tsk tsk tsk. Who would have thought that you even know how to fight aside from being pretty. What do I do? I’ve completely fallen for you.”

“Get out of my way!” Natalie remained sober as she stared at the man in front of her blurrily. “Don’t you dare lay another finger on me. You must be tired of living!”

“I cannot bear to leave you alone when you’re so alluring,” Harry said bluntly. “Dying for a beautiful woman is the most worthy cause there is. I don’t mind being dead if it means I can eat you out and lick you dry.”

The bar was filled with heavy metal music.

Natalie was so drunk that she couldn’t keep her balance, not to mention mustering the energy to defend herself.

She was only sober enough to tell that this man was a better fighter than she was. Offending him wouldn’t do her any good at this point.

“I’ll come with you,” Natalie said.

“Now that’s a good girl. I’ll let you experience the joy of being a woman in a bit.” Harry laughed.

“Okay.”

Natalie followed the man toward his private room.

Halfway through, she noticed a decorative metal piece shaped like a deer antler along the walkway.

She was about to pick up the decorative metal piece. However, the man beside her reached out and grabbed it first. At that moment, she had exposed her true intentions by reaching out for the metal piece.

“Darling, it looks like you’re just putting up an act for me.” Harry stared at the metal deer antler in his hand and smiled wryly. “I’ve always had a soft spot for women. But I’m not interested in women who want to harm me no matter how beautiful they are.”

Natalie knew her plan had failed and tried to get away. Nevertheless, Harry grabbed her wrist and threw her against the wall.

She felt a sharp pain in her lower back.

Harry had raised the metal deer antler in the air before she could even catch her breath.

“W-What are you trying to do?” Natalie widened her eyes in horror.

“I originally wanted to treat you well, but it seems like all you want is to harm me.” Harry sneered. “Didn’t you like to pretend to be a chaste woman? I’ll let you do so then. I’ll lose interest in you once I ruin your pretty face with this metal piece.”

Natalie turned away in fright as the metal piece hits the wall.

Harry spat in anger when he saw that he had missed his target. He raised his hand and launched another blow at her.

Natalie’s knees went weak. All she could do was watch as the man raised the metal deer antler in the air as she was backed into a corner.

Just as Natalie thought she was doomed, someone else came to her rescue and pinned the man down.
