

Chapter 1756

About half an hour later, Tammy's family came to Avery's house. Avery warmly welcomed them. She saw Kara for the first time, so she wrapped a big red envelope for her.

"Kara's so young now, why are you giving her the red envelope?" Tammy couldn't refuse, so she could only accept it, "My daughter is stupid, she sleeps all day besides eating. She doesn't recognize birth now, so give her only a hug!"

Avery wanted to hug her, but she was a little worried that her eyesight had not returned to normal, what if she accidentally fell the child?

But looking at Kara's obedient little face, she couldn't hold back and took Kara from Tammy.

"Newborn children are like this. When she grows up, she won't sleep so much." Avery sat down on the sofa with Kara in her arms, looking at the little guy's chubby face, smiling and teasing, She said, "Kara, have you gone to play with Layla's brother Robert?"

Tammy said, "Robert and Layla have both gone to school, so I can only bring Kara to play on weekends. But on weekends Elliot is also at home, so I don't dare to stay there. The atmosphere is weird, you know?"

Avery: "You can ask Mrs. Cooper to bring Layla and Robert to your house to play."

Tammy complained, "Layla has training classes on weekends. I'm not that familiar with Mrs. Cooper, why would I be so embarrassed to make such a request? Anyway, it's inconvenient if you're not here."

Avery's eyes slid with discomfort.

Tammy can at least see Layla and Robert, but she hasn't seen the two children for a long time.

"Avery, why are your eyes red?" Jun was on the sofa opposite Avery and saw that her eyes were red.

Avery's eyes were a little red just after the stitches were removed.

"Maybe I didn't rest well." Avery found a reason casually.

Tammy said angrily, "Jun, didn't you ask this knowingly? Can Avery sleep well? Not to mention that Elliot, that b*stard, did a bad thing, he just took away the custody of Layla and Robert, Can Avery feel better?"

Jun reached out and covered his mouth.

"Tammy, I'm much better now. As long as Layla and Robert are fine by his side, I'm not so worried." Avery smiled, and added, "Let's take a step and see."

"Well, how is Hayden?" Tammy looked at the living room, "You really don't see any children living in your house."

Avery explained, "Hayden's things are in his room. He has a lot of schoolwork now. I'm still busy. Usually I'm alone at home."

"Didn't you go to work?" Before Tammy came over, she didn't know Avery's current living condition.

Avery's mobile phone has never been turned on, and she didn't tell her the first time after turning it on. In addition, Tammy has just given birth to a child and is busy taking care of the child, so she doesn't have that much energy.

In addition to visiting Avery this time in Bridgedale, it was also because she wanted to come out and get some air. Taking children at home every day, her mental state is about to collapse.

Avery shook her head: "I've been resting at home recently."

Tammy: "I thought you would do a lot of things like before, so that you wouldn't think about it."

Avery said calmly, "Actually, it was an escape. If you want to open it, you won't be thinking wildly."

"Avery, why are you so open-minded now? How did you want to open it?" Tammy felt that she had changed her personality.

Avery asked, "How long are you going to stay here? I'll show you around with Mike then."

"My mother only gave me a week. I'll stay at your house for a week. It's too cold here. I dare not take my daughter out. I can still wear skirts in Aryadelle. It's all about wrapping coats here." Tammy complained.

Jun suggested: "Tammy, you can go out with Avery. I'll just take care of the children at home."

"Are you sure?" Tammy felt agitated in her heart.

Jun said to himself, "your mother said that I can do better, have you forgotten?"
