

Chapter 851 Arrived At The Venue

After packing their things, Janet and Brandon got onto the helicopter.

The propeller rotated in the dark of the night. The sky was dotted with bright stars. The moon hung amidst them, high and round, and, to Janet, seemed to practically be within reach from their vantage point.

But Janet wasn't in the right frame of mind to appreciate this breathtaking scenery tonight. She had been nervous ever since she had made the decision to attend the Iridescent Show. She looked down at the documents in her hands, reading them over and over again, hoping that this might calm down her nerves.

Just as Janet concentrated on trying to remember every detail of the designs in front her, she felt a warm feeling around her ears.

Brandon placed a headset over her head.

Janet instantly took it off and set it aside. "Brandon, I'm not in the mood right now. I haven't memorized enough documents yet."

Janet had actually read all the documents before and she had thought the whole thing was quite easy. That was simply because Draco had been taking care of everything and she didn't have much to worry as his assistant. But ever since she had made the decision to attend the Iridescent Show. She looked down at the documents in her hands, reading them over and over again, hoping that this might calm down her nerves.

Just as Janet concentrated on trying to remember every detail of the designs in front her, she felt a warm feeling around her ears.

Brandon placed a headset over her head.

Janet instantly took it off and set it aside. "Brandon, I'm not in the mood right now. I haven't memorized enough documents yet."

Janet had actually read all the documents before and she had thought the whole thing was quite easy. That was simply because Draco had been taking care of everything and she didn't have much to worry as his assistant. But now that Draco couldn't go with her, it wasn't easy to deal with all of this on her own.

Janet could now see Draco had made so many preparations for the Iridescent Show.

Years of hard work on the part of a designer were all condensed into a one-hour fashion show. For Draco's sake, she just had to make sure that everything would be perfect.

"How can you remember any information when you're this tense?" Brandon said to Janet, "Why don't you take a look at the beautiful scenery around us and relax yourself? There's only half an hour left before we'll be above Northcliffe. There is a large lavender field in Northcliffe. The scenery is beautiful."

"But I can't take the time to appreciate it right now!" In time it would take to gaze at the view, Janet felt she could have gone over at least two more documents.

Brandon grabbed the papers from Janet's hand and blocked them from her. "You can enjoy the view now."

Angrily glaring at him, Janet asked, "What are you doing, Brandon?"

Why did Brandon want to piss her off, now of all times?

Why was Brandon being so thoughtless?!

Brandon approached her and grasped her chin, saying, "I'll help you relax."

A moment later, Brandon leaned in and kissed Janet.

The sound of the propeller continued thrumming in their ears. Brandon darted his tongue into Janet's mouth, teasing the tip of her tongue. He slid his hand from her chin around to the back of her head and drew them even closer. Moaning, the two of them kissed passionately.

Brandon slowly let Janet go and guided her gaze to the window. "Look."

The helicopter had arrived at Northcliffe. Janet saw a sea of clouds. The sun was slowly rising in the East. Its light broke through the clouds, warm and magnificent.

Janet saw the shape of the light as it grew. Sunbeams pierced the clouds, one after another. The breathtaking sight captured her attention completely. She couldn't take her eyes off of it.

The helicopter landed slowly on a lawn outside the venue of the Iridescent Show, causing a sensation. Many people came over to watch it descend.

"Wow! This is the first time I've ever seen a guest come here by a helicopter!"

"It's so cool!"

"Wait! That man in the black suit is so handsome!"

When Janet got out of the helicopter, she saw a large crowd of people in front of her. It made her so nervous, she had to take two steps back.

"Don't be afraid."

Brandon's deep voice sounded in her ears. Janet suddenly turned around to face him.

Holding her trembling shoulder, Brandon comforted her softly. "You represent Draco now. Even if you did something embarrassing, they'll only blame him."

He then gently kissed Janet's cheek from behind.

Janet smiled. "Don't let Mr. Wesley hear you say that.

He'd be furious!"

Brandon snorted. "He needs to get better first."

"Stop joking. You must have a meeting, right? Don't waste time here with me. Take care of what you need to do first." "Meanwhile I'll do my work." Janet urged him to leave in a low voice.

"Fine," said Brandon with a half-smile.

Janet smiled sweetly in return.

She composed herself and rushed into the main hall.