Novel When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2939 -“Today?” Joanna asked.

“Yes, today.” Hayden’s tone was undeniable.

“Actually we don’t have to meet.” Joanna didn’t want to meet him, fearing that it would be inconvenient to lie after meeting him.

After all, a successful person like Hayden, who had seen countless people, must be able to easily see through other people’s lies.

“Mr. Tate, you came to me about the child, right?” Joanna took the initiative, “It is true that I sent someone to send the child to your home. Because I am poor and cannot afford to raise the child, it is better to send it to your home.”

“You are poor, why did you give birth to him?” Hayden questioned, “Just to give it to me? Do you not ask for anything in return?”

Joanna’s face turned red and hot.

Hayden’s tone was aggressive, but luckily he was just talking on the phone and didn’t have to face his stern face.

“It’s not... people are very complicated. The ideas at each stage are different. I also thought about killing the child at the beginning, but I didn’t dare to perform the abortion operation, and I dragged on, the child’s grown up. In the end, it was found to be a boy, and I was afraid that he would suffer with me, so I sent the child to your home.” Joanna told him the reason.

“So you really don’t ask for anything in return?” Hayden asked.

“Mr. Tate, it was an accident between the two of us. You don’t have to take it to heart.” Joanna wanted him to let go of his doubts, and they would be safe in the future.

“You don’t have any feelings for your son? You don’t plan to see him again?” Hayden asked the last question.

He couldn’t believe that this woman was so cold-blooded and ruthless.

If she was really cold-blooded and ruthless, how could it be possible to be afraid of having an abortion.

Joanna was silent.

She knew she should say 'yes, I won't bother you in the future', but it was hard for her to say it.

"Why don't you talk anymore?" Facing her silence, Hayden sneered, "Why don't you agree to talk face to face? What are you afraid of?"

"I'm not afraid. I'm just very busy." Joanna answered immediately, "I work in a dessert shop, and now I'm busy."

"Aren't you a reporter? Why did you change careers?" Hayden's tone was unhurried, without any guilt for disturbing her work.

Joanna: "No one stipulates that a job must be done for a lifetime, right?"

"Send me your location. I'll go find you." Hayden had a tough attitude.

Joanna: "Wait a minute. I'll send you a location when I'm done."

It was impossible for Joanna to let Hayden come to the dessert shop.

This was the dessert shop opened by Juliette and her.

Juliette invested money, and Joanna managed it.

Since this store had been operating for six months, business had become largely predictable.

Joanna didn't want her personal affairs to affect the store's business.

After Joanna finished speaking, she hung up the phone.

Hayden stared at the hung up call and was stunned.

This woman actually hung up on his phone!

"Hayden, were you talking on the phone with the child's mother just now?" Avery walked to Hayden holding the little milk bag, "How did your chat go?"

"She said she didn't ask for anything in return." Hayden told Avery the key points.

"Sometimes the most expensive thing is not asking for anything in return. It means that our family owes her a lot of favors." Avery didn't think there were women who gave without expecting anything in return, but she also didn't think mothers could be so callous as to kill their own child.

“She said she was poor and had no money to raise the child. So she sent the child here.” Hayden told his mother exactly what Joanna said, “I’ll meet her later and give her some money and end this ridiculous thing.”

Avery: “How much do you plan to give her?”

“I’ll ask her to make an offer.” Hayden didn’t know how much to give.

“What if she doesn’t ask for a price? If she wanted to ask us for money, she would have already asked for a price.” Avery wanted Hayden to be mentally prepared.

Hayden was silent for a few seconds, and asked, “Mom, how much do you think is more appropriate to give her?”

This question stumped Avery.

Novel When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2940 -“You’d better have a good talk with her first! If you don’t know how much to give at once, then give it on a monthly basis. Anyway, you have to ensure that she won’t live in poverty anymore.” Avery said, “Otherwise, when the child grows up, how hard it must be to see his mother suffer so much!”

Hayden: “Mom, if the child has never been with his biological mother, he will not have feelings. Do you think Dad has feelings for his biological mother?”

Avery: “...”

Hayden: “Mom, put the baby down! Aren’t you tired from holding him all the time?”

Avery: “It’s okay. He doesn’t sleep now, so I can hug him and play. Otherwise, it would be so boring to lie down all the time!”

“Isn’t there a baby stroller? You can buy a baby stroller.” Hayden hugged the child and knew that the child was actually quite heavy.

It’s okay to hold the child for a while, but if he hold him all the time, his arms would definitely be sore.

“Well, I’m going out with your father today, and I need to buy a lot of things!” When Avery and Elliot were sleeping on the bed last night, neither of them could fall asleep.

The two of them wanted to give their grandson an official identity, and they had to buy a lot of things for his grandson.

It's a pity that the child's name had not been taken out yet, so there was no way to fill in the birth certificate for the child.

"You can make a list and ask the driver to buy it." Hayden wanted his parents not to be so tired.

The two of them didn't sleep well last night with their children, and if they went shopping during the day, their health might not be able to bear it.

"You have to buy things for the child by yourself. You can go to meet the mother of the child with peace of mind. You must hold back your temper. Do you know how difficult it is to conceive and give birth? They gave birth to you without complaining, really it's very rare." When Avery said this, she suddenly changed the topic, "Why don't I go with you! I'm afraid you won't speak and make people angry."

Hayden: "Mom, I'll go by myself. You are so talkative, I'm afraid the other party will talk too loudly. I didn't ask her to give birth to this child. I can compensate her for her hard work. Besides, she has been hiding it from me. I am very unhappy."

Avery: "Maybe they didn't want to hide it from you, but they couldn't contact you!"

"Then how can she send the child to our house accurately? I don't know what's going on in her mind." This was why Hayden wanted to meet and chat with Joanna.

"Anyway, be a little more polite when you talk to her. Don't scare her." After Avery instructed Hayden, seeing Elliot finished his breakfast, she was ready to go out.

"Is the mall open so early?" Hayden looked at the time.

It's only half past seven.

It was impossible for the mall to open so early in winter.

"Let's go to the hospital first." Avery replied, "Take the child for a physical examination first. By the way, you have to take time to think about the child's name."

Hayden: "Mom, are you sure the child is mine?"

"You're going to see the child's mother, aren't you sure yet?" Avery's retort left Hayden speechless.

"You can choose the child's name!" Hayden didn't know how to name the child. He never thought he would have a child at such a young age.

"You really don't want to name your child?" Avery asked, "You may only have this child in the future..."

“Mom, I don’t know how to take it.” Hayden didn’t care about the child at all, “You are more experienced.”

“Your father really wants to name the child.” Avery said, “Do you want your father to choose it? If he doesn’t like it, I’ll do it.”

Hayden knew that his mother would be careful, so he nodded.

After the parents took the children out, Hayden sat down in the living room and waited for Joanna to locate him.

This kind of waiting made him very tormented.

Judging from the information obtained so far, the other party was relatively poor, and her speech was fairly organized, and the other party knew his identity from the beginning, and it seemed that the other party did not intend to pester him.

She used to be a reporter, but now she worked in a dessert shop. It could be seen that she’s really poor.

Novel When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2941 -After a while, Robert went downstairs.

“You don’t have class this morning?” Hayden looked at Robert and asked.

“Well. Brother, are you okay this morning?” Robert yawned, “Where’s your child?”

“The appraisal result hasn’t come out yet.” Hayden reminded.

“But that’s your child! I haven’t slept with a woman before, so I can conjure a child out of thin air.” Robert said, feeling funny to himself, “Brother, why are you still unwilling to accept this fact?”

Hayden ignored Robert’s ridicule.

“Brother, it’s normal for you to have children at your age! Why can’t you accept it? If I have children, I should be more happy! After all, parents seem to want to have grandchildren at this age.” Robert laughed. He didn’t understand his brother’s feelings at all.

“Go and have breakfast.” Hayden didn’t want to talk about this topic with him.

In his eyes, Robert was just a br@t.

Even though Robert was thirty years old, in Hayden's eyes he was still a child.

Robert had never had any troubles since he was a child, and he was cheerful all day long, like a little fool.

About half an hour later, Joanna sent Hayden a location.

Hayden went out immediately after seeing the message.

Coffee shop.

Joanna uploaded all the photos of Gia in the phone to the private album, and then deleted all the photos in the public album.

After a while, a tall figure blocked the light in front of her.

She raised her head and met Hayden's probing eyes.

"Hello." Joanna put down her phone and greeted him.

Hayden sat down on the sofa opposite her.

Hayden: "May I have your name?"

"Joanna." Joanna answered truthfully.

"Why didn't you contact me after you found out you were pregnant?" Hayden continued to interrogate.

What his mother reminded him, he had already forgotten all about it.

"Why do I need to contact you?" Joanna hesitated for a few seconds before asking, "Take what happened that night as a one-night stand. Afterwards, you live your life and I live mine."

"Do you often have one-night stands?" Hayden looked at her seemingly free and easy face and asked.

Joanna blushed immediately, "Not really. But we two had a one-night stand that time! And our identities are also very different, so there is no need to contact us."

Hayden: "You mean, you want to draw a clean line between me?"

Joanna nodded without thinking: "Mr. Tate, that child is very healthy. If you take him to live in Bridgedale, I hope you treat him well. I will not disturb your life. If the child wants to see me in the future, I can meet him, but certainly with your permission."

“The child will live in Aryadelle in the future, mainly my parents will take care of it.” Hayden told her about the child’s arrangements.

“Oh...do your parents like him?” Joanna wanted to confirm the child’s situation.

“Yes. They took the child to the hospital for an examination today.” Hayden asked again, “I can give you a sum of money as compensation for having a child.”

“No. Although I don’t have much money, I can support myself.” After a pause, Joanna pushed the menu in front of Hayden, “I can still buy you a cup of coffee.”
