

Read I Am A Quadrillionaire Chapter 1841

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1841—"Miss Fellowes, thank you so much. I hope you can be as fast as possible. There are more and more powerhouses from the Lightfoot family gathering outside. Besides the ones from the Lightfoot family, there are many other powerhouses as well. They will discover this place sooner or later," David urged.

"Don't worry, Master David! I will definitely finish it as fast as I can, and you don't have to worry too much. Although there are many powerhouses outside, Grandmaster Roald is here, so they will not dare to come in," Alba comforted.

She wanted to hurry up as well, but Grandpa Vai had given the order not to be perfunctory.

Alba could only follow suit.

"Okay! Get back to work then, I believe in you."

"Thank you, Master David, I will not disappoint you. I will get back to work first, so please wait patiently for another two days."

After hanging up the call with Alba, David was in a good mood.

Although he still needed to wait three days and he was impatient, the total value of 200 trillion Star Dollars was very gratifying.

Originally, David thought it would be good to have 100 trillion Star Dollars, or that it would not exceed 150 trillion at most.

After all, he almost completed his goal back then and it had only cost him about 100 trillion Star Dollars.

He did not expect to reach 200 trillion this time. This made him overjoyed.

Even though it was just tens of trillions more, this was equivalent to hundreds of thousands of lavish points.

Furthermore, he was getting it at such a critical point.

If he only had 150 trillion, he would not be able to continue upgrading after he got to True Saint Rank.

His final combat power would most likely be fixed at beginner True Saint Rank.

In the event the two True Saints of the Lightfoot family came to him, a beginner True Saint would be dwarfed in comparison.

Even if David's mind power and his first-rate Soulbound Weapon the Evil- Splitting Sword were added to the mix, he was probably not their opponent.

However, if he had extra hundreds and thousands more lavish points, David's combat power might get to the late or peak True Saint Rank. By then, the effect would be completely different.

It would then be possible for him to fight against two people.

Just when David was looking forward to completing the deal with Valerio three days later, getting two million lavish points, and raising his strength to the late True Saint Rank in one fell swoop... Knock knock knock!

Suddenly there was a knock on the door.

David was puzzled.

'Who would knock on my door at this time?'

Normally, only Alba would come to him.

However, David just contacted Alba, so it should not be her. 'Who would it be?'

David was puzzled, but still asked, 'Who is it?'

"David, it's me, Roald." Roald's voice came from outside the door.

David hurried to the door and opened it.

"Roald! Please come in!"

"I'm sorry to bother you without any warning," Roald said politely.

David had already reached Saint Realm at such a young age, and he had a Sacred Saint master behind him.

Roald did not dare to behave arrogantly in front of such a peerless genius.

If not, he would have brought Moby here without consulting David.

'What are you saying, Roald? I'm so bored here. Since you're here, you can talk to me.'

“Are you saying I came just in time?”

“Of course! You’re always just in time.”

After exchanging pleasantries, Roald went straight to the point.

“David, the reason I’m here is to talk to you about something.” “What do you mean by that? Just tell me whatever you want to say, Roald,” David said magnanimously.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

Read I Am A Quadrillionaire Chapter 1842

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1842—He still needed to rely on the Fellowes family to break through to True Saint Rank and even Sacred Saint Rank.

Thus, he naturally needed to have a good relationship with the Fellowes family.

‘There’s someone who wants to meet you. He’s in Treasure Trove now, so I wonder if you’d like to see him?’ Roald revealed his purpose.

“Who wants to see me?” David asked.

It was fine for him to meet someone, but the main factor was this person’s identity.

If it was a True Saint of the Lightfoot family, David would refuse.

He was only a partial True Saint now and he did not even have the power to fight back against a True Saint.

He might not even be able to run away.

Wouldn’t he be asking for trouble?

“A Saint directly under TSA. His name is Moby North,” Roald replied.

‘Moby North?’

‘What an odd name.’

David was pretty sure he did not know him.

Of course, he had not been in Star Kingdom for long, and he did not know many people here.

The only Saint he knew was Roald, and he knew a little about the Saints Association.

It was one of the five largest trading companies in the Central Sacred Continent and the actual controller of Holy Root.

It was also the largest force in Star Kingdom.

The Saints in the entire Star Kingdom were under the management of the Saints Association.

However, generally, the Saints Association would not restrain anyone.

Only when there is serious internal friction in Star Kingdom would they show up to stop it, for example when two forces were about to start a battle or when Star Kingdom was being invaded.

The Saints Association would also gather all the strength of Star Kingdom to resist foreign enemies.

Normally, everyone would just mind their own business.

The ones directly under the Saints Association were trained by the Saints Association themselves, and they were not the same as those from various forces who joined much later.

Since Moby was someone sent by the Saints Association, David guessed that he should have come to prevent the two families from going to war.

After all, both sides had gathered such a powerful force here and it seemed like a war was about to start.

There was no way the Saints Association would allow this kind of infighting to happen.

“Roald, I came to the Central Sacred Continent this time under the order of my master. I haven’t been here too long, and I’ve never been here before, so I’m sure I don't know this Moby person. Why would he want to see me?" David asked.

"David, you have no idea how famous you are now! Not only are you famous in the Central Sacred Continent, but even in the entire Star Kingdom. Among the people gathered from all over the Star Kingdom this time, a lot of them came on account of your reputation and want to see you," Roald explained.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

Read I Am A Quadrillionaire Chapter 1843

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1843—"Roald, since Moby is from the Saints Association, let's meet him!" David thought for a while and agreed.

As the force to maintain the order of Star Kingdom, the Saints Association was doing very well in all aspects.

At the very least, he had not heard of any incidents of the Saints Association bullying vulnerable groups. 1

Everyone had only one word in mind for the Saints Association.

Awe.

This was enough to show that the Saints Association was quite popular among the people.

Once they learned that a big war was happening, they would immediately send people to stop it to avoid the loss of life.

Just like the conflict between the Lightfoot and Fellowes families this time.

"Thank you, David. I really don't know how to answer the other party if you said no,"

Roald said happily.

Upon hearing that David would like to meet Moby, Roald also breathed a sigh of relief.

Although the Fellowes family was not weak, these two were existences that the Fellowes family could not offend.

One was the peerless genius David who had a Sacred Saint master while one was Saint Moby directly under the Saints Association.

Roald could not afford to either side.

However, if Roald had to choose a side, he would definitely choose David.

After all, David was already a Saint at a young age, and he would be a proper Sacred Saint in the future. Furthermore, his master was also a Sacred Saint.

A sect with two Sacred Saints was the stuff of legend in Star Kingdom.

On the other hand, Moby was directly under the Saints Association and backed by Star Kingdom's most powerful force, but he was a pre-Saint, so he did not have a high status in the Saints Association.

Comparing the two sides, David was clearly superior.

"Roald, you're too modest! I'm not a woman who should hide herself, so why would I say no? Plus, I have a good impression of TSA, therefore it's good to meet their people!" David said with a smile.

"David, you're so righteous. I'll go and bring him over here, okay? You two can meet each other."

"Why don't I just accompany you there?" David thought for a while and suggested.

"No! Let me bring him here! David, don't go out now. This is the deepest part of Treasure Trove, so it's safer. The Saint from the Lightfoot family was here just now and I'm afraid he will find you."

"The Saint from the Lightfoot family was here too? How many Saints did they send this time? Is there a True Saint?" David asked.

"Currently there is only one Pre-Saint, but there should be more in the future. They may eventually send a True Saint too," Roald replied truthfully.

"Understood! Roald, go and bring the guy from TSA here. I'll wait."

“Okay! Wait a minute, David. I’ll go right away”

Roald left after speaking.

David remained in the room.

There was a high probability that the Lightfoot family already knew his whereabouts.

The reason why they did not take action yet must be because of the Fellowes family.

Now, the Saints Association had come to mediate this matter.

With the three parties plus countless spectators, things were getting messier.

No matter what, David would only think about this when he got to True Saint Rank.

He would only have the right to speak when that happened.

If not, a partial True Saint like him would not be the opponent of the Lightfoot family’s True Saint.

Roald went back to the drawing room.

Moby was still waiting here.

When he saw Roald, he got up and asked, “How was it? Did he agree?”

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

Read I Am A Quadrillionaire Chapter 1844

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1844–“Yes, but Moby, I have to explain David’s basic situation to you first so that you won’t be surprised when you see him,” Roald replied.

“Oh? Tell me, what is so amazing about this David person that can surprise me?”

Moby became interested when he heard what Roald said.

Originally, he thought he would be disappointed when he saw David.

He was just a young man under a thousand years old, so even if there was something peculiar about him, it was likely only just enough for Moby, a Saint, to take the initiative to meet him.

Unexpectedly, when Roald said such a thing, Moby's curiosity was piqued to the extreme.

"Moby, do you think that a young man like David is not worthy of you meeting him?"

Roald did not answer Moby's question directly but asked rhetorically.

"I really thought so just now! But after hearing what you said, I think it was right for me to stay," Moby replied honestly.

"The Fellowes family are not stupid. Since we dared to offend the Lightfoot family for David's, and did not even hesitate to fight them, we naturally have our reasons."

Moby did not answer. He was waiting for Roald to continue.

However, the curiosity in his eyes could not be concealed.

Roald glanced at Moby and continued, "David is the most exceptional person I've ever seen. Any genius in Star Kingdom, in my opinion, is rubbish in front of him and can't be compared with David at all."

Moby could not hold himself back anymore after hearing this.

He asked, "The Star Kingdom Six as well?"

"Yes! Although the Star Kingdom Six can be regarded as geniuses among geniuses in the entire history of Star Kingdom, they are still far behind David. To put it bluntly, they are not even worthy of kissing David's feet," Roald said with a very positive tone.

Moby could not believe this.

He felt that Roald must be exaggerating.

One of the Star Kingdom Six was in the Saints Association.

His name was Tanner, and he was the personal disciple of the head of the Saints Association. He was very talented and was a partial Saint at less than three thousand years old.

The head said if there were no accidents, Tanner could become a Saint before he turned five thousand.

Meanwhile, the rest of the Six were at about the same level too.

However, there were not many Saints under five thousand years old in the history of Star Kingdom.

This time, there might even be six.

Not only that, aside from the Six, there were also a lot of geniuses in Star Kingdom.

All of their talents were incomparable.

According to ancient records in the Saints Association, every once in a while, a golden age would come to Star Kingdom.

During this period, such an age had arrived.

However, every golden age would be accompanied by a catastrophe.

Even so, no one knew what the catastrophe would be this time.

In Moby's opinion, the Star Kingdom Six already represented the pinnacle of Star Kingdom's young generation.

Now Roald told him the Six were not even worthy to kiss David's feet.

How could Moby believe this?

This completely subverted his expectations.

No matter how talented a person was, there had to be a limit!

No matter how much of a genius David was, he was only a thousand years old.

Even if he started practicing from his mother's womb, how many years would that take?

Anyway, Moby did not quite believe what Roald said.

If Roald said David was almost as good as the Six, Moby would have found it more believable.

“Roald, what you said is too absolute and exaggerated! Who are the Star Kingdom Six? They are the leading figures of the younger generation in the entire Star Kingdom. David is just a guy who popped up out of nowhere. How can he be on the same level as the Six?” Moby said with a look of disbelief.

“Moby, you have misunderstood! I didn’t say he’s on the same level as them, but that the Six are not worthy to kiss David’s feet at all. The gap between the two are miles apart,” Roald corrected.