

When His Eyes Opened Read Novel Chapter 3075

Novel Chapter 3075 -Joanna was astonished and moved.

Hayden continued: "I understand that the difference in our identities will make you feel inferior and sensitive, but I don't want similar things to happen in the future. If you feel that you are not worthy of me, you can learn and improve yourself at any time. Escape is the most useless method."

Joanna's eyes turned red, and she confessed: "Yes. I will never do this again. No matter what happens in the future, I will tell you."

"If you have something you don't want to tell me, you can tell my sister." Hayden looked at Hazel at this point and said, "Hazel, thank you for helping us clear up this misunderstanding."

Hazel's cheeks were slightly red: "Brother, we are a family!"

Hayden asked: "After you graduate, what are your plans? Have you thought about it?"

Hazel thought for a while, and now that everyone was here, she should tell everyone, so as not to worry about it.

"I want to go to Thopiavelle first. My mother-in-law, who raised me, is buried there. I want to visit her grave and stay in Thopiavelle for a while." Hazel explained her plan.

The expressions on everyone's faces froze.

Since Hazel returned to Aryadelle, she had never been to Thopiavelle again.

In a flash, three years had passed, and Hazel had changed from a girl with low self-esteem before to a confident and generous girl.

Robert didn't pretend to think: "Little sister, wait until I have summer vacation, and I will accompany you to Thopiavelle. I also want to go to Thopiavelle for a while."

Hazel smiled and said: "Second brother, to be honest, there is nothing interesting in Thopiavelle. I'll just go and have a look, maybe I'll be back soon. I'll just bring a bodyguard when the time comes. "

Avery especially understood her daughter's desire to go back to Thopiavelle. After all, she had lived in Thopiavelle for more than ten years. Even though she lived in poverty in those years, it still contained her memories from childhood to adulthood.

Avery: "Hazel, mom really wants to go with you."

Hazel: "Mom, you and Dad need to prepare for the wedding between Big Brother and Sister Joanna. I'll just go by myself. I'll come back when Big Brother's wedding preparations are almost done."

Avery: "Okay, when did you go? Where did you go to live? You don't have any acquaintances in Thopiavelle, do you?"

Hazel: "After I turn in my thesis, I'll leave. When the time comes, I'll stay in a hotel. It's easy for me to live there as long as I have money. Even though the place as a whole is pretty backward, the city center is still very wealthy."

...

After dinner, Joanna and Hayden went back to their room.

Although Hayden forgave Joanna, Joanna still wanted to have a good chat with Hayden.

Joanna pulled Hayden to sit down on the small sofa in the bedroom.

"Is your company's problem really solved?" Joanna was not at ease.

Hayden: "I asked my dad to help solve it."

Joanna was stunned for a moment: "Don't you like letting your family meddle in your work?"

Hayden: "I really don't like letting them intervene in my work, but the problems I encountered this time are not about my business, but about some domestic laws and regulations. After all, Aryadelle and Bridgedale are different in many aspects. My network is not as good as my dad's, so I asked my dad to help me solve it. It's just a small problem, not as scary as you think. Even without my dad's help, I can solve this problem, it just takes more time and money."

"So that's the case." Joanna felt even more guilty, "Hayden, I'm sorry. I don't want to be separated from you anymore. I miss you so much these days."

Hayden hugged her: "I miss you a little too. I'm not used to you being gone for a few days."

Recommended Novels