Divorced but Delighted By Millie Huffman Chapter 356

Chapter 356 In a Bad Mood!

“Do you mean that you won’t mind if my brother marries you?”

Cierra asked with a teasing smile.

“I...”

Lydia hemmed and hawed, not knowing what to do.

Of course, she didn’t mind, but she didn’t know how to answer for a while.

After all, she never thought about it.

Not to mention that William was the son of the Barton family, and even if he didn’t have the support of the Bartons, just as the president of Los Angeles was not something that she could reach.

She had never thought about it, so she naturally didn’t know how to answer.

But subconsciously, she was probably... willing to do so.

She admired him so much, she would secretly praise and discuss William with others.

Outstanding people always attracted others.

What’s more, Lydia had been suppressed by the Navarro family since she was a child. She had been marginalized and almost believed to be a good-for-nothing.

If it weren't for the fact that she had learned something from her teacher, she would probably have obeyed her family.

In addition to contributing nothing to the Navarro family, there was probably no other fun.

Instead of taking another path like this.

Lydia knew that she was a weirdo.

Endurance, inferiority, obedience, and rebellion would appear in her at the same time.

She was not satisfied with her life, but she also felt a little helpless.

Therefore, she didn't know how to answer the question.

After a long while, she answered.

"Cici, don't joke with me. Of course, I don't mind, but this kind of good thing won't happen. What kind of family are you from? Even if you really want to unite by marriage, you don't have to come to

New York to choose such a poor family as the Navarro family."

Everyone knew that the Navarro family had gradually declined.

Although it was not a big deal to marry her, it would not be of much help to his family.

The more upper-class people were, the more they liked a well-matched family.

Obviously, the Navarro family was no match for the Barton family.

It was impossible for her and William.

She just met William a few times.

The first time was when she was slandered on the Internet. He helped her.

Then...

At the hospital, he asked her to take out the key and asked her to be his driver.

Although she knew that Mr. Barton wanted to send her home.

She took it for granted—she should have done these things for him.

They had no relationship.

She felt that it should be like this.

At least it made her feel that she was not completely useless in this world.

Look, at least she could drive for her boss to support herself. She didn't have to be their puppet daughter in the Navarro family and couldn't even decide her marriage.

“Well, Cici, let's not talk about this. I'm going to start filming, so I won't talk to you anymore!”

As if he was afraid that Cierra would try to persuade her again and arouse her unnecessary thoughts, she hung up the phone after saying that.

If she hadn't tried it, she might have been able to endure it.

Once she was given hope, she was afraid that she would not be able to control herself.

She was even more afraid that she would do something bad.

After hanging up the phone, Cierra was still in a daze.

She listened to the busy tone of the phone for a long time before she forced a smile and put her phone aside.

Although she didn't get a definite answer from Lydia, Cierra was at least sure that she didn't hate him.

Maybe she didn't like him, either.

However, compared to the things that the Navarro family had found for her, William was a good choice.

If it really didn't work out in the future, she would also support Lydia's divorce.

At that time, she would no longer be under the Navarro family's control.

Without thinking about those depressing things, Cierra still hoped that William could get what he wanted.

After getting out of the car, she also sent a message to William.

It was about Lydia's attitude. She also warned William to be gentle with girls and not to let her drive like last time.

What a stupid man!

He was probably busy and did not reply to her message.

Cierra was not in a hurry. She went to the company to look for Jaquan in the bright sunshine.

In contrast, the atmosphere in the president's office was not so pleasant, and the atmosphere was.

even a little depressing.

They felt cold in such hot weather.

Evans had been scolded by Jaquan in the morning, so he was a little timid with the document in his hand.

“Wanda, are you free now?”

He asked for Wanda’s help.

In the past, when Jaquan had a bad temper, the staff in the president’s office had always asked for Wanda’s help.

They did this again.

But surprisingly, Wanda, who had never refused others, didn’t move.

“Assistant Evans, I’ve already submitted an application to Mr. Barton and I’m waiting for his approval. Maybe I won’t be the president’s assistant anymore, and I probably won’t be able to help you in the future. So, there are some things that you have to deal with it.”

In the past, she had helped out because she cared about her juniors.

She had been working for Jaquan since she graduated. She thought that she was experienced, so she was willing to take responsibility for everything.

On the other hand, she was selfish.

Even if he was in a bad mood and might vent his anger on her, she was willing to help send documents or ask some other questions.

As long as she saw him, she would be happy even if she was scolded.

But it was different now.

She had already proposed a transfer and given up Jaquan. There was no need to do this anymore.

Besides, she could help them this time, but what about next time?

Assistant Evans didn't know what Wanda was thinking. He was just shocked by the news.

"You want to be transferred? Why? Isn't the President's Office a good place? If you want to be transferred, where are you going?"

属

According to Wanda's working experience, she had reached her limit by following the president.

She could be the senior management of the company, but her work experience was not enough.

If she was transferred to other places, she would be demoted!

This...

Wanda knew what he was thinking and smiled calmly. "It's my own fault. It has nothing to do with the company. I've been working for the president since I graduated. I'm a little tired and want to try something else."

Assistant Evans didn't understand.

A few days ago, Mr. Barton confessed his love for Wanda. It was more understandable for her to resign and become Mrs. Sherman than to be transferred.

While he was in a daze, the frosted glass door of the president's office opposite him was suddenly pushed open.

"What do you want to talk about?"

Jaquan's fall figure suddenly appeared at the door. His face was slightly gloomy, and it could be

"Mr. Barton!"

Assistant Evans was shocked and immediately stood up straight, looking like a student who had done something bad when he saw the dean.

Jaquan did not look at him. Instead, he glanced at Wanda indifferently, who was still sitting on the chair.

In comparison, the latter was much easier.

She didn't get up. Instead, she turned over the office chair unhurriedly and said to Jaquan with a smile, "It's Assistant Evans asking me about something at work. He brought a document to you. We didn't talk about anything else."

Assistant Evans also came to his senses in an instant and hurriedly said, "Yes, yes. I'm here to ask.

Wanda a few questions and bring you a document!"

He held the document to show his position, indicating that he was not talking about anything else during working hours.

Jaquan was not angry because they were chatting.

He glanced at them and said after a long while, "Wanda, come in. Take the documents with you."

As soon as he finished speaking, he turned around again, leaving behind a half-closed door. His intention was obvious.

“Wanda...”

Assistant Evans had not yet recovered from the shock.

Wanda gently got up from the chair and tidied up her clothes. She was as gentle as ever, and even her smile was the same as before.

“Give me the document.”

She smiled at Evans, took the document, and calmly pushed the door open into the president’s office.

Jaquan was not at his desk.

The tall figure stood in front of the French windows, looking a little lonely.

Hearing the sound of the door closing, he turned around.

“Mr. Barton, I’ll put the documents on the table. If you have any problems, remember to communicate with Assistant Evans.”

She gently placed the document in a corner of the desk and straightened her back.

Jaquan was stunned.

He was very sure that she had made a serious decision.

She was about to leave him and no longer cared about anything.

Even a document had been sent to him at his request.

“Why?”

Jaquan stared blankly at her for a long time. Probably because he still couldn't accept the news that she was leaving, he was confused.

His eyes were burning with passion and sincerity, making it so that no one dared to look straight at him.

She lowered her gaze and said, "Mr. Barton, it's working time now. I don't think we should talk about this."

"Then I'll give you a holiday. Let's go out and talk."

Jaquan walked over from the French window, looked through the document casually, and signed his name on the last page.

When the document was closed,

he raised his head and stared straight at her..

"Your salary is ten times higher than usual. Can we have a chat?"

"Mr. Barton, are you... spending money to buy my time? Or..." She raised her eyes gently, looked into his eyes with a smile, and added, "Or are you buying me?"

Her self-deprecating tone made Jaquan frown, but he could tell that there was something else behind it.

"Wanda, that's not what I meant."

There was a hint of helplessness in his eyes.

"I just... don't know how to have a good chat with you. If you feel offended, I apologize to you."

His attitude was very sincere.

It could be said that among the men that Wanda had seen before, Jaquan was very polite.

Even if he occasionally did something that made her feel uncomfortable because of his growing environment, or it could be said that she thought too much because she was too poor, after he realized it, he would quickly apologize to her and correct it.

It seemed difficult not to be moved by such a person.

But she didn't dare to approach such a person easily.

They were not from the same class. If they forced themselves to be together, they might not have a good ending.

So it was better to cut off all ties before it started.

"Mr. Barton, I think I've made myself clear enough before. I've told you more than once. Why do you have to ask me again?"

There was a gentle smile on her face, and her gentle voice was like a sharp knife that mercilessly, pierced into Jaquan's heart.

They were fine that day.

He didn't understand.

He didn't know what to do.

He had lived for more than 30 years. In the past, he had only focused on his studies and career. He had not spent much effort on anything else. For the first time, he realized that he had feelings for a girl and expressed his love for her. In the end, he got nothing.

What kind of feeling was that?

It was thousands of times worse than his first failure.

Every cell in his body was shouting, hoping that she would stay. He couldn't bear to see her leave, and he didn't want her to stay away.

He even regretted expressing his feelings for her.

But at this point, reason finally brought him back to reality.

Jaquan withdrew his gaze and looked through the documents on the table at a loss.

“Have you decided which position to be transferred to?”

As soon as he finished speaking, he found that the last page of the document had been signed by him. He could only close the document.

Wanda saw everything, but she didn't break the embarrassment. “I've thought about it. I want to be transferred to the logistics department. Is that okay?”

The logistics department only needed to deal with goods. If there was anything she needed to find, she didn't need to find anyone else.

That's good.

If she was transferred over, her salary might be greatly reduced, but it would be easy.

She could also learn some other knowledge to enrich herself. When she felt bored, she could take the postgraduate entrance examination or other certificates, and then plan some other ways out.

If she didn't feel bored, it didn't matter to live like this for the rest of her life.

Would it be enough for a person to find the most comfortable way to live for a lifetime?

Now that Roger had been dealt with, it was said that he would be sentenced. She no longer needed to worry about him coming to make trouble for her every day.

As for the child, if she stayed in Los Angeles or even the MRC Group, she would always have a chance to see Will.

She could even meet Miss Barton.

As long as she was thick-skinned, there would always be a way.

She was slowly paying back the mortgage with her salary, and her life would slowly get better in the future.

As for Jaquan...

She was happy to know that he liked her.

She also hoped that he could find a girl of equal status in the future, and she would bless them.

She hoped that they would treat Will well.

“The HR department of the company? You don’t want to be transferred to another branch? If you want to, you can go to another branch to work in management, and your salary will be higher. If you are transferred to the HR department, it may not be as good as your current position.”

Probably because he had figured it out, he didn’t ask about her personal affairs anymore and asked her about her work seriously.

After getting the answer and knowing that there was a result, Wanda calmed down.

She smiled and nodded. “Thank you for your concern, Mr. Barton. I just want to relax. I’m afraid I’m not qualified for the management of other companies. The HR department may be demoted, but it’s not difficult to get a job. I hope you can approve it.”

“Okay.”

Jaquan heaved a sigh of relief when he saw that Wanda couldn’t see his face.

“I’ll approve it as soon as possible, but I’m afraid that you’ll have to hand over the work to Evans for a few days. I’m afraid you’ll have to put in more effort to keep the other documents confidential. As for your salary, I’ll discuss it with HR when I approve it. If there’s nothing else, you can go back.”

“Thank you, Mr. Barton.”

After getting a more definite answer, Wanda didn’t stay any longer. After exchanging some pleasantries, she turned around in her high heels.

With her back to him, she naturally did not know that the moment she turned around, the man who was pretending to be busy suddenly raised his eyes and stared straight at her.

The HR department was not too far away.

As long as she was by his side, he should... still have a chance.

“Daddy, is aunty here?”

A childish and sleepy voice came from the lounge next to her, which made Wanda, who was about to push the door and leave, stop.

out thinking, she turned around.

Only then did she realize that she had lost her composure. She hurriedly glanced at Will and left.

It was as if there was a fierce beast chasing after her. She just wanted to escape as soon as possible.

But only she knew that she was afraid that if she looked at Will, she would be reluctant to leave him.

She made up her mind and left.

When Jaquan saw it, he had another feeling.

Jaquan’s eyes darkened. Looking at the closed glass door, he pursed his thin lips tightly

After a short while, he slightly recovered his composure.

“Your aunt will be here soon. Will, play by yourself for a while, okay?”

When it came to educating children, Jaquan was patient enough.

"Got it, Dad. Go ahead with your work."

Will was very obedient..

There was a tablet on the coffee table in the office. He was holding his small kettle and sitting there watching the class.

After a while, in the office....

Someone knocked on the door gently, and Cierra poked her head in with a smile.

"Hey, brother, and Will!"

Jaquan smiled and welcomed her.

"Jaquan asked me to pick up Will. How can I be lazy?"

Cierra closed the door and walked over to Will. She casually sat down next to Will and couldn't help.

She held Will like she held a kitten. However, for fear of scaring the child, she stopped quickly.

However, she didn't show any mercy.

"It's been a long time since I've been next to you. Hurry up and give me a kiss. Why are you so cute?"

"I love you so much!"

He still had a milky fragrance. Not to mention hugging him, even touching his little head made her feel comfortable.

Cierra felt that the worry caused by the incident in the hospital was gone in an instant.

Looking at Cierra, Jaquan felt helpless..

He did not stop her and allowed her to continue to play with his son.

Will didn't stop her either. His back was stiff as he allowed Cierra to control him. He didn't say anything even after Cierra had finished speaking. Only his small ears were visibly red.

Cierra was in a much better mood, so she took Will's hand and got up from the sofa.

"Brother, I'll take Will back."

Jaquan nodded at her and reminded her in a gentle voice. Then he began to deal with the documents.

Because there was something wrong with the company, Jaquan had to change the schedule. He could only ask Cierra to come over and take the child home first.

In addition, Wanda had put forward an application for a transfer. The projects she was working on needed to be handed over and confirmed, so she was not as free as she had been a few days ago.

After thinking about it, it was better to take the child home.

He left a mark on the document. In the silence, he suddenly felt a little annoyed.

He didn't want to work anymore.

He simply put down the pen and looked up at the door.

The thin figure was still there.

Sitting straight, she was probably busy handing over the work. She was tapping on the keyboard, and occasionally, she would look through a pile of documents beside her before looking at the computer on the table.

Involuntarily, the frustration in his heart dissipated a lot.

If he didn't think about that she would transfer.

Outside the office, Wanda was pretending to be busy.

She watched Cierra walk into the office and they were happy.

She also saw that Will was holding onto Will's hand with a smile on her face.

In fact, when Cierra passed by her, she hoped that this young lady would stop and greet her as usual, and gently and sweetly call her Wanda.

By the way... she could see the child.

Unfortunately, she didn't.

In contrast to what she was thinking, Cierra was even more ruthless than her.

Wanda watched as Cierra left with the child. She couldn't tell whether she was feeling relieved or regretful.

When the figure completely disappeared from her sight, she finally withdrew her gaze from the document and looked at the computer screen again.

Forget it.

That was how it should be.

She and they were not from the same world. They could not be family or friends.

They wouldn't have any relationship anymore.

However, Wanda didn't know.

After turning the corner, Cierra, who was holding Will, suddenly heaved a sigh of relief.

Chapter 359 Are You Afraid?

"Aunt, what are you doing?"

Will looked at Cierra in confusion.

Cierra pressed the elevator button and lowered her head to smile at him. "We're making a big bet."

When she met the little fellow's confused gaze, her smile widened.

"You're still young. You don't need to know too much."

Although there might be something wrong with what she had done, as William had said, since she had doubts in her heart, she should verify it.

Before coming to the company, she asked Bruno for help. She took Will's hair and Wanda's hair to the hospital for a test.

The test results had not come out yet, but according to Wanda's reaction, she already had a general idea.

For a mother who loved her child, not letting her child see her was no different from cutting her heart out.

She might have been able to endure it in the past, but now that she'd spent some time with him, could she still remain indifferent?

However, no matter what, it was only Cierra's guess.

So, she was gambling.

She was betting on whether Wanda could keep her cool.

If her guess was wrong, perhaps Jaquan was destined not to be with her, and there was no need to force her to love him.

If the result was right, she had to get to the bottom of it.

Why was she willing to give up her child?

Why didn't she dare to admit it until now?

"Even if it's because Jaquan likes her, she should make it clear. Why should she hide it from him?"

Of course, she needed the report.

The elevator stopped, and Cierra cleared her mind.

But as soon as they entered the elevator, she received a call from Bruno.

There was a hint of helplessness and apology in his deep voice. "The hospital said that the equipment has failed and is under repair. They may not be able to get the results for the time being. It will probably take place tomorrow."

When she heard the news, her heart sank, and she couldn't express her emotions.

"I'm free. However, would I bother you too much? After all, William doesn't seem to like me very much."

Bruno laughed in a low voice and deliberately used William as an excuse,

"Don't take it to heart. He's already returned to New York."

Not to mention that William had already left Los Angeles, even if he was here, Cierra still had to return the favor.

She wouldn't be so stingy about treating someone to a meal.

At this point, Bruno naturally didn't refuse.

Even through the phone screen, she could hear the joy on the other end.

The man's voice was also full of joy.

It was like a spring breeze.

Cierra hung up the phone, and her smile widened. She held Will's hand and almost jumped for her car.

"Aunt, are you in a relationship?"

Will usually didn't like to talk, but when he did, his words were shocking, Cierra was stunned.

are you so happy?"

Cierra was stunned.

She couldn't help but think of the sentence "See you tonight" which made her want to record it and play it again with headphones.

"Does this..."

Cierra was unsure.

But she was sure that it had been a long time since such an emotion had appeared.

It seemed that a long time ago when she was bullied by her classmates and protected by Draven, she had such an emotion.

Sometimes, she would feel very happy when she received a gift from Draven or a compliment from him.

However, she didn't smile because of a phone call from Draven.

Now that she thought about it, there seemed to be only sadness and anger left between her and Draven.

She loved him very much and waited for him to give her a look. When she saw that he was defending Aleah, she was sad...

Was it because she felt sad and reluctant to give up what should have belonged to her, or because she liked him so much?

“Aunt? Aunt, what are you thinking about?”

As she was immersed in her thoughts, Cierra was woken up by the childlike voice.

She didn't recover from her memories, nor did she care who was in front of her. It was as if she were grabbing onto a life-saving straw.

“Do you think I'm in love because I am very happy to talk to the person? If the person on the other side always makes me angry, is it love?”

Her probing question sounded in the garage.

At the same time, it also caused Cierra to feel a bit ashamed. Immediately, she came to her senses.

“Damn it, what did I say to a child?”

She smiled self-deprecatingly, closed the door, and went to the driver's seat.

After she fastened her seatbelt, Will, who was sitting in the back seat, spoke again with a serious face.

“If a person can make you feel angry, it's probably because you have feelings for him. Maybe you like him. But if he always makes you sad and angry, he's not worthy of your love. Why don't you take back your love?”

As if clear spring water was dripping down on one's head, immediately making the heat completely disappear, Cierra became incomparably clear-headed.

Her paused.

She was stunned for a long time, and then she smiled.

“I took it back a long time ago, so it doesn’t matter.”

So what if she liked him? Who hadn’t taken the wrong path when they were young?

So what if he had never liked her?

All she needed to do was focus on her present and future.

Perhaps...

The smile reappeared on Cierra’s face when she thought of the phrase, “See you tonight”.

Perhaps she could try to date Bruno,

While she was thinking, she couldn’t start the car.

He pulled out the key and twisted it again to restart the car.

Cierra frowned and complained as she drove, “Why is there something wrong with the car I’ve just got? No way...”

At the same time, she had a bad feeling.

There was no one else in the car, so she could only tease the child in the back seat.

“It’s not my day. It’s said that people’s sixth sense is very strong. If something goes wrong all the time, there may be a disaster. Will, are you afraid?”

Will shook his head. “No, Auntie. I’ll protect you.”

She didn't recover from her memories, nor did she care who was in front of her. It was as if she were grabbing onto a life-saving straw.

“Do you think I'm in love because I am very happy to talk to the person? If the person on the other side always makes me angry, is it love?”

Her probing question sounded in the garage.

At the same time, it also caused Cierra to feel a bit ashamed. Immediately, she came to her senses.

“Damn it, what did I say to a child?”

She smiled self-deprecatingly, closed the door, and went to the driver's seat.

After she fastened her seatbelt, Will, who was sitting in the back seat, spoke again with a serious face.

He said seriously after thinking for a while.

As if clear spring water was dripping down on one's head, immediately making the heat completely disappear, Cierra became incomparably clear-headed.

Her paused.

She was stunned for a long time, and then she smiled.

“I took it back a long time ago, so it doesn’t matter.”

So what if she liked him? Who hadn’t taken the wrong path when they were young?

So what if he had never liked her?

All she needed to do was focus on her present and future.

Perhaps...

The smile reappeared on Cierra’s face when she thought of the phrase, “See you tonight”.

Perhaps she could try to date Bruno,

While she was thinking, she couldn’t start the car.

He pulled out the key and twisted it again to restart the car.

Cierra frowned and complained as she drove, “Why is there something wrong with the car I’ve just got? No way...”

At the same time, she had a bad feeling.

There was no one else in the car, so she could only tease the child in the back seat.

“It’s not my day. It’s said that people’s sixth sense is very strong. If something goes wrong all the time, there may be a disaster. Will, are you afraid?”

Will shook his head. “No, Auntie. I’ll protect you.”

Cierra smiled at him. “Sure.”
