Chapter 1181

Since Planet Buck was too far from the Royal Region and had too low a value, the Grim family did not waste huge amounts of finances and resources to build a communication center there.

This was the reason Planet Buck was very behind on news, which explained why they did not know about the huge event that had happened in the Royal Region recently.

In reality, Earth was in a similar situation.

However, Earth had David Lidell's system acting as a hub, which connected the network between them and the rest of the galaxy. If not, it would have required a great sum of money for Earth to build a huge communication center to connect with the Royal Region's network.

As David connected the network, he also limited the earthlings' access to anything beyond the surface information of the Milky Way. They could not access more in-depth information.

David had also used the system's stealth function to prevent the earth's location from being exposed.

Truth be told, the system was extremely brilliant, and David had no idea who created it.

It was impossible for a Level 9 Civilization to comprehend a God Tier Civilization creation. Even though the former may seem like it was merely one tier away, the actual difference between the two was as different as the skies and the land.

However, David had a feeling that as long as he relied on the system to increase his abilities, there would be a day when he would finally know all the secrets the system held.

Julius Grim and the others from the Grim family gawked at David in shock.

The Grim family had been eradicated?

How was that possible?

Even if they had not returned to their families in a long time, the Grim family was still ranked fourth out of the eight prominent families of the Milky Way Empire, and was a reputable force even amongst the Royal Region.

They may not be the strongest, but they certainly were not weak at all.

How was eradication even a possibility?

They did not believe David at all.

“You... You... You’re lying! Us Grims are one of the prominent families of the Milky Way Empire. How could you possibly have eradicated us? If you dare do anything to us, the grandmaster of the Grim family will make you pay.” Julius retorted loudly.

Internally, he was in a stage of utter horror since he saw Balu at David’s side.

Just like the people on this planet, there was a “slave” marked on the forehead of this man. He also looked like the chief that was brought away from this planet all those years ago.

Julius had a feeling that this trio was here for revenge.

When he thought about all the things he did to the people on this planet while he ruled Planet Buck for the past hundreds of years, causing the people to drop from a population of a hundred million to about only ten million, Julius felt his blood run cold.

He was dead!

He was extremely dead. If these people knew about this, they certainly would not let him go. He was done for!

It did not matter if the Grim family was indeed eradicated because his death was imminent.

David did not want to pay attention to people like him. It would be too easy to just let Julius die, so David spared his miserable life for Balu to torture him slowly, like how he had tortured the Buckeranians. David looked at Balu, who was at the side, and said, “Let’s go, Balu! I’ll bring you to rescue your people. Your people are waiting for you to come back and save them.” “Thank you, Master!” Balu replied with his eyes red-rimmed. Right after that, David brought the other two with him and left to rescue the Buckeranians.

As for Julius and the rest, they were left in place, but their bodies were completely disabled, and they could not move even if they wanted to.

Planet Buck was not huge. With David's mind power assisting them, it was an easy task for him to locate the people were. First, they needed to free the Buckeranians that were slaving away under the Grim family's control.

Then, they would look for the rest of the people that were hiding in the shadows, away from the Grim family's pursuit.

Chapter 1182 David Lidell and the other two went toward their first stop, which was the nearest mine.

Planet Buck was rich in a certain kind of ore that could be extracted and refined into low-grade metal. Even if its value was not great, large volumes of it could be worth quite a lot. If not, the Grim family would not have sent so many people there.

Julius Grim's task was to control the indigenous people so they would mine ores and refine them into metal. The Grim family would be there to collect it once every few decades.

The mine that David and the rest were heading toward was a bigger mine, with at least thousands of Buckeranians working in captivity as mining slaves. As they were just approaching the mine, they could hear all kinds of insults from the Grims. "Be quick! Did you not f*cking eat? I'll break your f*cking legs if you continue dilly-dallying." "What the heck are you looking at? Don't you have your job to do? Wanna stand up for him, huh? You looking for a beating?" "Smack! Smack! Smack!"

"Ahh! I won't do it again, I won't do it again!"

"Master, someone passed out."

"Trash! Doing such little work and they dare pass out? A few of you, drag him out, throw him to the beasts! Don't get in the way."

"Yes, Master!"

"Ding! Ding!"

A noise combination of scolding, people shrieking from pain, and clanging of the ore mining filled the ears of David and the other two.

Balu's eyes were bloodshot as he trembled with rage.

If David was not at his side, he would have rushed in and killed everyone in there.

David's expressions were stormy as well.

That was the result of implanting the slave mark.

If earth also had the slave mark implanted on it all those years ago, it would probably be in a similar state to Planet Buck.

Mia Concord did not feel as emotional as the rest.

She was born in the Royal Region, and even though she was born to a small force, she was used to watching injustice.

One could only rise above the crowd if one had the ability and background to match. Or else, if one lived in the lowest tier of society, they would not have it easy. There were even a few arenas that had secretly organized matches to pit human against human just to entertain the rich and powerful.

Losing meant death, and to die a gruesome death was way crueller than what was happening in the mine.

David and the rest continued walking forward and were quickly stopped by two Grims.

"Who are the two of you? You look unfamiliar! This is the heart of the mine, you can't enter without the Master's permission."

Naturally, they assumed that David and Mia were Grim, because, on Planet Buck, other than the indigenous people that had the slave mark implanted, the rest of the people were all Grims.

There was no slave mark on Mia and David's forehead, so it was clear that they were not one of the indigenous people.

David ignored them and continued walking forward.

The two Grims were about to stop him when they realized they could no longer move their body.

Not only could they not move their body, but they also could not speak a word.

It was like there was a hand squeezing their throats.

Slowly, the two Grims lost their lives and fell to the ground.

As David and the two entered the mining area, they were immediately greeted with the sight of countless Buckeranians hard at work.

Each and every one of them was so thin they were skin and bones.

80 percent of them were men, and 20 percent of them were women.

There were also a few of them pushing the ores out from the mining hole.

“Ding! Ding!”

The sound of mining was a lot clearer once they went in.

The miners were hard at work while the supervisors from the Grim family were seated at the side surrounded by meat and fruits. There were beauties serving them, massaging them, and feeding them.

David and the two also saw a pile of about ten bodies stacked casually on top of each other. These were probably the miners that had fainted or died today.

In reality, with the abilities of the Grim family in the Milky Way, it was entirely plausible to hand the mining jobs over to machines, since the technology on level 3 civilizations in the Milky Way was already very advanced.

However, they chose to use human labor to save costs.

Planet Buck had so many slaves anyway, they might as well put them to use.

The arrival of David and the other two caught the attention of the supervisors.

However, before they could say anything, David had already broken their necks with his mind power.

Chapter 1183

“Ahhhh!”

The sudden death of the supervisors from the Grim family provoked a shriek from the beauties that were serving them.

At the same time, it had also drew the attention of several miners. They stopped what they were doing to look at the dead supervisors, and then at David and his troop.

Ever since Balu stepped foot on Planet Buck, he had been restricting himself, until he saw how it was almost like a living hell before his eyes. Now, he could not hold back anymore.

These were his people.

Once, they had such blissful, free lives, but here they were at that moment, knowing nothing but pain and suffering as they trudged on, barely living. They were living completely hopeless lives. David did not say anything. He knew he needed to hand it over to Balu at that moment.

After managing his emotions, Balu knelt before David and bowed three times. Then, he got up and faced the Buckeranians without any emotion on his face.

“Good day, Buckeranians! My name is Balu, my father was Babu, and he was once the chief of this planet. At that time, we were all living blissful, free lives...

“But, ever since these scums arrived, our peaceful days have been disrupted. My entire family has been abducted, and we were forced to painfully live as slaves, while all of you were left behind to fend for yourself...

“However, it’s all good now, Master has killed that bunch of scums, and I’ve been rescued by Master. What we will do next is to free the entire Planet Buck and liberate our people. We have to work together to rebuild our home. We will go back to living the peaceful lives we once had...

“Lastly, I would like to apologize to all Buckeranians on behalf of my father, Babu. He did not manage to protect you and has caused all of you the hell you have to live with. I’m sorry!”

Balu spoke all these with tears streaming down his face, and when he was done, he collapsed to the ground on his knees.

The Buckeranians, who had initially lost all hope and were emotionless and expressionless had dazzling light shining from their eyes after they heard what Balu had said.

They were not the generation of Buckeranians from hundreds of years before, but the third, the fourth generation after that, with some of them being the sixth or seventh generation after that.

Due to long-term malnourishment and timeless working, these people had very short lifespans.

However, this did not stop them from knowing about Planet Buck's past glory, since it was passed down via word of mouth from generation to generation.

Planet Buck was once like paradise. They had no oppression, no fights, and no forced labor regardless of the time of day. They never knew what kind of lifestyle the Buckeranians had in the past because they had never experienced it before. It was merely a dream to them. They could only imagine it. Did they finally wait long enough to see their dreams fulfilled?

All of the workers placed their tools down, fell to their knees, and wept. David brought Mia with him as they walked away. He knew these people had been holding it all in for too long a time, and they needed to let it all out.

David and his troop took a few days to go through each and every mine on Planet Buck. There were thousands of them.

The smaller mining areas had a few hundred people, while the bigger mining areas had tens of thousands of people. In total, they freed millions of Buckeranians.

Along their journey, they found that the entire Planet Buck was littered with dead bodies everywhere. It was like they were walking through hell.

There were many workers that had died, after which their bodies were carelessly discarded, welcoming the wild beasts to feast on them, and there were bones and corpses strewn everywhere.

Planet Buck used to have close to a hundred million people, but all that was left were the measly ten million people. The death rate was over 90 percent, and their remains could be easily seen all over Planet Buck.

Only the area around where Julius Grim stayed was clean. Looking at the horrible, hellish scene before them, not only were David and Balu shocked, even Mia's heart trembled.

One of them was glad that Earth had escaped such fate.

The other was flabbergasted. These were all his people.

David showed no mercy to the cruel supervisors from the Grim family. As soon as they arrived at a location, the first thing he did was take care of the supervisors.

After freeing the slaves, they went to look for the other people that were in hiding.

There were quite a number of them, and they were nearly all hiding in the deep forest.

If the Grims wanted to find these people, it would not be hard for them. The only reason why they did not was due to the issue of sustainability.

Chapter 1184

If they were to all be captured, it would not take long till there was no one left to work in the mines.

Only when these people were spared could they continue to have offspring, by which time the Grims would have an unending supply of slaves to work the mines.

In the beginning, Julius Grim was not aware of this problem, causing the number of Buckeranians to decrease drastically. He only slowly came to realize the gravity of this issue after some time.

If there was no one left on Planet Buck, they would most certainly be called to go back to the Grim family, and the paradise-like life as they knew it would come to an end.

This was the reason they developed a strategy like this.

If they let the hiding Buckeranians breed, when there was no one left to work the mines, all they needed to do was uproot one or two groups of people from their hiding places to continue the work.

The Grims repeated this many times, successfully extending their days in paradise.

After freeing all the slaves, David and the two breathed a sigh of relief. Looking for the others was no longer urgent after knowing that at the very least, they would not be in danger.

David and the rest were also prepared to continue their search mission after a night's rest. Just as David returned to his Galaxy Warship, his communication device rang out of the blue. "Ring ring!"

It was a message from Princess Astrid.

Even though Planet Buck could not connect to the Royal Region's network, David had the system with him!

He was able to completely ignore the distance. No matter where he was, he was able to connect to the network.

As for Astrid Barlowe, David had decided to try his best to keep his distance, and not have too many interactions with her. This was because he knew that Astrid Barlowe had started to grow fond of him.

If they were to continue interacting, it would cause a lot of trouble in the future.

The main issue was Astrid's very unique identity. As the only Milky Way princess, who was also Emperor Nimbus' favorite daughter, if something were to happen between the two of them, the issues would be immeasurable.

David did not need to be fearful of anyone, especially with his current ability, but he was still not very fond of being under the limelight, and being at the center of attention of the entire Milky Way.

His current relationship status was very complicated, and the more it was probed the more complicated it would get. At this point, he had no idea how he was going to deal with all it.

If he were to add another princess to the mix, would that not be equivalent to him digging his own grave? Shaking his head, David opened the message.

Astrid, "Where are you now, David?"

David, "I'm not in the Royal Region at the moment. I'm very far away. What can I do for you, Your Royal Highness?"

Astrid, "Oh, you're still not done with your business, David?"

David, "Nope! It might still take a very long time. If there's anything I can help you with, please feel free to say it, Your Royal Highness." Astrid, "David, three months from now, Father will throw a state banquet at Planet Royal, and all the different forces of the Milky Way will be there in celebration. I'd like to invite you to come along. Will you be available?"

At Planet Royal far, far away, Astrid Barlowe sat in her room, staring nervously at her communication device after she had sent the message. She was so worried that David would say that he did not have time.

It took her so long to find an excuse to invite David to Planet Royal.

If he rejected her, what should she do?

Did she really have to ask Father to step in personally, and have him captured so he would be her husband?

No, no!

No way.

If she did that, David would be really angry. She could not be selfish like that.
