A Man Like None Other Chapter 2329

A Man Like None Other Novel

Matthew had no idea how long he could protect Kai. The mention of self-destruction was merely an empty threat to scare Wrey. Even if Wrey was unfazed, the various sect members at the scene would surely intervene.

They would do their best to stop Matthew's self-destruction, as it would undoubtedly cause harm to those around him.

These people had no qualms about uniting with opposing sects to protect their selfish interests. Once that happened, Matthew's Luminous Sect would have no means to defend itself against their attack.

He had to send Kai away while Wrey was still frightened by his threats. Kai nodded toward Matthew and fled.

Wrey noticed Kai's escape and was about to act. However, Matthew rushed forward and blocked his path, acting as though he was fighting for his life.

Alas, Wrey could only watch Kai slip through his fingers. "Flying Star Sect and Luminous Sect are sworn enemies from now on, Matthew," seethed Wrey.

"Please, did you think I'm scared of you?" replied Matthew fearlessly. Matthew and Wrey glared at each other. A moment later, Wrey's lips curved into a smirk, and he drawled, "I fell for your trick earlier, Matthew. Now that everyone's here, plenty of people will stop you from self-destructing. If your claims are even true, that is. You're not getting your way today. As long as Kai is in this secret realm, I will not let him escape, even if I use all my resources from Flying Star Sect."

He turned to the others and announced, "Listen up. I'll award three years' worth of Flying Star Sect's resources to the person who captures and kills Kai. You've seen for yourselves that Kai is seriously wounded. He's no better than a cripple. Killing him should be child's play!"

Wrey knew Flying Star Sect's members would have a hard time scouring the vast secret realm for Kai. Besides, Matthew would be attempting to stop their efforts at every turn.

It made more sense to capitalize on the manpower from the other sects to hunt and kill Kai. Besides, Wrey believed Matthew would not dare to make enemies of all the sects in the hidden realm. As expected, everyone's gazes glinted with greed at Wrey's declaration.

Though they had no bad blood with Kai, the sheer number of resources Wrey was offering in exchange for Kai's life was too tempting to reject. Matthew was clearly perturbed by Wrey's challenge. He roared, "I will fight anyone who harms Mr. Chance."

Alas, his threat barely frightened the crowd. They knew Matthew was not strong enough to go against all the sects in the hidden realm.

At this moment, there was nothing Matthew could do but fervently pray that Kai had run far, far away from that place, or even escaped the secret realm.

At the same time, Kai was running for his life. With his abilities suppressed, he could only protect his life by fleeing. Unbeknownst to him, many people were hunting him down in the secret realm.

Just then, Ranzoph's voice rang out beside Kai's ear. "You need to hurry and find the marked location on the map. Once you're there, I can help you."

Kai wanted to rant about the impossibility of his situation. He wished to find the location quickly, but the dense forest and constant checking of coordinates greatly reduced his movement speed.

He asked, "What is this place that you're trying to find? Will you come back to life at that spot?" Kai had no idea who the old man was. He doesn't even have a soul. Can he come back to life with his skeleton? He had witnessed souls coming back to life, but not skeletons.

"What do you know? My soul hasn't entirely dissipated. It's just not here. Once I'm at the marked location, I can use my skeleton to summon my soul. And once my soul is here, I can easily get rid of all the people who bullied you earlier!" boasted Ranzoph.

Kai scoffed at his claims and argued, "Stop tooting your own horn. You're just a pile of bones after someone dumped your body in the ocean.” The old man sputtered furiously, “Y-You insolent child! You have no foresight at all. I wouldn’t have bothered helping you if not for your Dragon Vein.”

“If you know about my Dragon Vein, do you know who I am? Who’s my father?” asked Kai. He hoped to get news about his father from the mysterious old man. To his dismay, Ranzoph replied, “It’s good enough that I can see your Dragon Vein. Why would I know about your father? If I can be revived, I can perhaps use my powers to determine your father’s identity.”

Kai immediately wrote the elderly man off as a clueless person, and he turned his focus to running faster. He had just passed the foothills when two strangers blocked his path. Based on their attire, Kai surmised that they were members of a sect from the hidden realm.

Beyond grudges against Flying Star Sect and Stormwind Sect, he had no interactions or known grievances with other sects. Hence, when Kai spotted the two sect members, he thought he could walk around them and continue on his way.

The two men stretched out their hands and blocked Kai. The shorter of the two, a man named Ronan, stared at Kai excitedly and muttered, “Lady luck is smiling on us today.” Kai noticed Ronan’s nefarious gaze and frowned. He demanded, “Who are you? I don’t believe there is bad blood between us.”

“That’s not important. Yes, we’re not enemies, but Flying Star Sect has offered three years of resources for your head, so don’t even dream of escaping! Now, we can end your life painlessly if you surrender. If you insist on being stubborn, don’t fault us for playing rough.”

Ronan slowly unsheathed his long sword and stared at Kai greedily as if the latter were a treasure. Kai was stunned and instinctively backed away. He never imagined Wrey would offer such a lucrative reward for his life.

It seems Matthew could not stop them. Luminous Sect can’t afford to antagonize all the sects in the hidden realm, after all!

Kai stared at his two assailants. They were Fifth Level Martial Arts Gods who were hardly worth a second glance if Kai’s own abilities had not been repressed. Sadly, that was not the case, and Kai was in no shape to defeat the two men.

He mulled through his options and concluded that using the Dragonslayer Sword was his best bet. The sword possessed its own sword spirit and could attack autonomously without Kai's control.

That was enough to fight one attacker, but it still fell short of overcoming two Fifth Level Martial Arts Gods. "If only Blazing Tiger were here..."

Kai began missing Blazing Tiger. If it was still alive, I wouldn't feel this scared going against those two men. His lack of action spurred Ronan into waving his sword. The motion unleashed a bright ray that beelined for Kai at a startling speed. Kai gritted his teeth and mustered every bit of his spiritual energy to protect his body.

Bang! The strike landed on Kai's body and sent him flying. A bloody wound quickly appeared across his body. "His body is pretty strong. That strike only left him with a wound," Ronan uttered in wonder.

His taller companion, Grant, whipped out his own sword and said, "Let's hope his neck isn't as hardy. We'll just need to put in a few extra slashes."

As their words hung in the air, the two men stalked toward Kai with matching, arrogant smirks on their faces.

"Scram now if you want me to spare your lives," Kai said icily while glaring at them. The two individuals paused briefly before erupting into laughter.

"Are you out of your mind? Do you think we need you to spare us when you already look like. cr*p? I could finish you off with just one swing. of my sword!" Ronan exclaimed, raising his sword threateningly toward Kai.

Upon realizing that Kai posed no real threat, he grew overconfident. In his eyes, Kai was nothing more than a defenseless prey, ready to be conquered.

In response, Kai brought his fingers together and swiftly flicked his hand. A dazzling beam of golden light shot forth, followed by the descending Dragonslayer Sword. Its gleaming blade resembled a cascading silver waterfall, slicing through the air with unrivaled power.

Ronan froze for a moment, feeling an overwhelming sense of danger from above. The terror of that impending doom sent shivers down his spine.

As he looked up, he witnessed an onslaught of light descending from the sky. This sudden twist of events drained the color from his face, and panic gripped his heart.

He could never have anticipated that the seemingly unthreatening Kai would exude such a terrifying aura of imminent death. At this moment, he finally realized that Kai was far from the weakling he had initially perceived him to be.

“Take this!” Kai swung his palm, directing the Dragonslayer Sword toward Ronan’s head! Kai knew he had to take advantage of the man’s carelessness and end the fight swiftly by: killing him in one strike..

Otherwise, even with the Dragonslayer Sword, he would not stand a chance against the two men before him. Ronan, seeing the incoming torrent of light, swiftly brandished his long sword, attempting to defend himself against the light that the Dragonslayer sword emitted.

Swoosh! A golden radiance pierced through Ronan’s body, eliciting a cry of shock. Although his head remained intact, Ronan’s arm was instantly severed and fell to the ground.

He immediately retreated, pulling himself away from the Dragonslayer Sword. Meanwhile, Grant watched Kai in astonishment. He never expected Kai to possess the skill to control the treasured sword. and cleanly sever Ronan’s arm.

It was clear that Kai’s actions revealed his formidable defense and that he was not one to be underestimated or taken lightly. Ronan hurriedly tended to his wounds, his gaze filled with disbelief as he looked at his opponent.

“So, you’ve been pretending all along. You weren’t injured at all,” remarked Grant, realizing that Kai was not only unharmed but also possessed greater strength than them.

"I never claimed to be injured. It was your own assumption." Kai coldly smiled, raising the Dragon Slayer Sword and pointing it directly at the two. "You wanted to take my head in exchange for resources, right? Now you can try. but I doubt you have what it takes to achieve your goal!"

Kai maintained a calm and disdainful expression as he spoke to them. The two gradually began to retreat, intimidated by Kai's composed demeanor and the terrifying display of his swordsmanship.

"This is all a misunderstanding. We don't hold grudges against each other anyway. There's no need for a fight to the death. Farewell," Grant said, supporting Ronan, as they turned and left. As Kai watched them depart, he finally let out a sigh of relief before turning and walking away.

Beads of sweat covered his forehead. If the two had not backed down and attacked together, even with the Dragonslayer Sword, Kai would have undoubtedly met his demise.

Now that the two men had retreated, Kai needed to leave this place quickly, as he might encounter others soon. Kai quickened his pace, running continuously. Meanwhile, Grant and Ronan, after turning away, seemed to realize something.

"Wait a second. The aura seemed to originate from the sword, not Kai's body. It's possible that Kai is genuinely injured, resulting in a significant decline in his strength. That sword must be a spiritual sword with the ability to fight independently," Ronan analyzed.

"Yes, it's highly possible. Let's not be deceived by Kai. If he still had enough strength to easily kill us, he wouldn't have let us leave." Grant, too, came to that realization. "Come, let's go back and take a look." With that, the two turned around and returned to the previous location, but Kai was nowhere to be found.

"D*mn it, we've been deceived. Let's go after him!" Grant exclaimed with a grim expression, grinding his teeth. They immediately unleashed their spiritual senses to search for Kai, knowing that he could not have gone far. Once they sensed Kai's whereabouts, they swiftly pursued him.

Meanwhile, Kai was still relieved that he had managed to deceive those two individuals. However, soon enough, he was startled by two spiritual senses enveloping him, prompting him to accelerate his pace. The two men chased after Kai from behind, while he desperately ran ahead.

Kai seethed with anger, feeling utterly frustrated as he was relentlessly chased by disciples from the hidden realm. He could not help but express his annoyance, running through the mountains while cursing under his breath. This is so embarrassing!

“Who the hell created this d*mn secret realm and suppressed my strength with Heavenly Law? If I find out who’s behind this, I’ll curse them for the rest of their lives!” Kai cursed as he continued his escape.

Had it not been for the overwhelming power of the Heavenly Law within the secret realm, his current situation would not have reduced him to running around like a hunted animal.

“Be careful with your words. That old monster might hear you and come after you!” Ranzoph’s voice emerged all of a sudden. Kai could not help but wonder if the elderly man knew who the creator of the secret realm was. The creator must be someone from the Ethereal Realm because no one from the Eight Major Secret Realms or the mundane world has the power to create a secret realm! Not even Tanner from the Evil Heart Sect possesses such abilities. Otherwise, he would have simply created his own realm instead of searching for ownerless ones. Taken aback, Kai asked, “Do you know who created this secret realm?”

“Of course, I know the creator. He deliberately crafted the secret realm to summon my spirit back. Otherwise, an entrance wouldn’t have appeared in the middle of the ocean! It’s all your fault because you took my skull. Otherwise, I would have completed the summoning and returned to the Ethereal Realm!” Ranzoph complained.

Kai felt embarrassed. He had taken the skull because he noticed a treasure map on it and wanted to obtain it. He had not anticipated that his actions would cause such a significant delay in the old man’s summoning.

It was clear that Ranzoph was no ordinary individual. The fact that someone had gone to the extent of creating a secret realm specifically to summon his spirit back to the Ethereal Realm spoke volumes about his importance.

“Who are you exactly? Someone actually went through the trouble of creating an entire secret realm just for you. That’s quite impressive. Who is the person who created the secret realm? Tell me, I’ll give him a piece of my mind. Or when you return to the Ethereal Realm, help me convey my frustration to that person. And why did he create a secret realm that’s governed by the Heavenly Law? No other realms are suppressed by the Heavenly Law. Is he deliberately showing off his power?” Kai grumbled in dissatisfaction.

Suddenly, Ranzoph burst into laughter. “How dare you curse that old monster? He might actually hear you. You’ll meet a miserable end, mind you.”

“Whether I scold him or not, it doesn’t change the fact that I’m going to die, so why not give him a piece of my mind? I’m already being chased like a prey.” Kai vented his frustration.

Just as Kai finished speaking, a wave of immense danger swept toward him. Acting on instinct, he swiftly dove forward and rolled on the ground, narrowly evading the attack.
