I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1724—The Lightfoot family would even give him a stronger protector.

“Master Archi, we will also suffer if we don’t show any respect to the Fellowes family and they decide to look into this,” Bernard advised.

“Are we disrespecting them? I didn’t bid on everything. Only 80% of the stuff.”

Archimedes was indifferent.

“Master, I know you’re mad and you need to vent. Now that you’ve done that, please calm down. Don’t bid for anything after this. If not, we won’t be able to explain it to the family.” “What’s so hard about that? Uncle Bernard, just leave me alone. Since I’m at an auction, I should buy to my heart’s content. I have all the money in the world.”

“Master Archi, you should think clearly. If the Fellowes family decides to look into this, the family will also be upset with you. You might not get the support of the family anymore if you want to use the family’s power to handle certain people later on.”

Bernard’s words went straight to Archimedes’ heart.

If he wanted to get rid of everyone who saw him wet himself at the tavern, he surely needed to use the family’s hidden power.

If the seniors disagreed, it would be a little troublesome.

He could only tell them what happened so that the family would destroy those people for him.

However, how could he tell them what happened?

Archimedes would never tell his family what happened even if they killed him.

Once he did, his position in the family would plummet.

They might even kick him out and cultivate another first-in-line heir.

“Uncle Bernard, I got it. I will restrain myself next and not bid recklessly. I’ll only bid for the things I like,” Archimedes said.

“Thank you for being wise, Master.”

On the other side, after Alba walked down the stage, she ran to Valerio.

“Grandpa Val, that rascal Archimedes is here to make trouble. If he continues, our auction.

won’t achieve its desired effect,” Alba cried angrily in front of Valerio.

Valerio did not expect someone to cause trouble at this auction, and that this person was even the first-in-line heir of the Lightfoot family.

‘Is the Lightfoot family trying to have a fallout with the Fellowes family?’

‘No, what would they gain from this?’

“Alba, I see. Go back and continue hosting. A lot of them are still waiting. No matter what happens, we have to continue the auction,” Valerio thought about it and said.

“But what if Archimedes continues to do what he did just now? If we continue, it will only serve his purpose.”

“Let him continue then.”

“But…”

“Alba, why don’t you continue hosting the auction? I will pay attention to him. If he continues, I will find a few people to raise the price. If he still wants to bid, it will be at a premium several times higher than the value. If he doesn’t, we won’t lose anything if we bid on it ourselves.”

Alba thought about it and figured this might work.

“Alright, Grandpa Val, I’ll go back now. You should be quick. I think he’s here to make trouble and he won’t stop just like this.”

“Okay, go now. Don’t let everyone wait.”

Alba left quickly and continued hosting the auction.

Valerio did not move. However, his brows were tightly furrowed.

‘What’s the Lightfoot family trying to do?’

‘Did Archimedes’ family order him to do this? Or is it all Archimedes?’

‘What’s the purpose of this?’

Countless questions were swimming through Valerio's brain.

After he thought about it, Valerio still could not understand.

He took a deep breath.

This was such an eventful period for the Fellowes family.

Even a junior like Archimedes dared to come to challenge the family's bottom line.

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1725—Alba went back on stage to continue hosting the auction.

As the second phase started, the items were wheeled onto the stage one by one.

The treasures were clearly better than the ones during the first phase.

The bottom price also doubled.

Not to mention the final price, some even increased by four or five times.

Under the stage, David finally started getting interested.

He casually bid for three items and spent nearly 300 billion Star Dollars. At the end of the auction, he would get 3000 lavish points after the transaction was completed.

This was still very far away from his goal of coming to the auction.

David wanted to bid on a few more, but if he did this, it would be too eye-catching.

Even if he only bid three, he had already attracted the attention of a lot of people.

Luckily, Archimedes bid on more than ten items in one go during the first phase, so he was already at the center of attention.

Therefore, David did not stand out too much after bidding for three goods.

During the second phase, Archimedes only bid once, which relaxed Alba a lot.

The Fellowes family was not in the position to have a conflict with the Lightfoot family now. Judging from Grandpa Val's action, he would surely demand an explanation from the Lightfoot family if Archimedes did not stop.

They were all in this field, so if you could come to cause trouble at my territory, I could do the same at yours.

At the end of the day, both sides would suffer, allowing others to benefit from their suffering. Since Archimedes stopped in time, the Fellowes family pretended like they did not see that. At most, they would take out more treasures. The Fellowes family could afford to sacrifice something so small.

After all, the items during the first phase were not so precious.

If Archimedes continued doing what he did during the second and third phases, the Fellowes family would have become hostile to them.

If that happened, both sides would suffer.

Even if the Lightfoot family were the ones to take advantage of them, they would also suffer.

There were initially only about 20 items during the second phase.

After Archimedes stopped, Valerio asked them to add 10 more at the last minute.

Which meant 30 items were sold during the second phase.

David got 3, Archimedes got 1, and the remaining 27 were shared among the other guests.

This was more fitting to Treasure Trove's initial purpose of hosting this auction.

This was a situation where everyone would be happy.

Soon, the third phase which everyone was waiting for arrived. It was also the climax of the auction.

Alba cleared her throat and said in a clear voice, "Fellow guests, the third phase of the auction will start soon. This is also the last phase of bidding. I believe you can't wait anymore. Everything that's coming up next is very valuable so you all better check if you have enough money in your pockets."

After she said that, someone under the stage said, "Miss Fellowes, hurry up! We can't wait anymore. I didn't bid just now because I was waiting for this moment. I want to take one of the valuables you mentioned home!"

"Yeah, Miss Fellowes, stop keeping us on tenterhooks! Even though the treasures just now were not bad, it's only valuable for certain people. They're not enough to make us want to take them home even if it will bankrupt us. I hope the treasures up next won't disappoint us."

"We're waiting for the final item to come up."

"Me too!"

"Me too!"

The guests under the stage started to make noise.

No matter who the host of the auction was, the final item would be the most valuable one. A lot of people came just for this.

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1726—The goods before were just appetizers.

Only those small families would bid for them.

The major forces would not be bothered by those treasures.

What they needed was the treasure Alba mentioned.

Now that they were at a critical moment, they could not wait anymore.

"Don't worry, since I told you it's very valuable, I won't let you down. Treasure Trove put in a lot of money for these items. Next, please welcome our staff to bring the first treasure on stage.'

After Alba said that, someone wheeled the first item over.

It was still covered by a red cloth.

Everyone under the stage was staring fixedly at it.

Alba walked in front of the treasure and pulled a corner of the red cloth.

The entire scene was silent.

One could even hear the crowd's heavy breathing.

David's eyes were shining as he stared straight at the stage as well.

This treasure would determine whether he could spend the remaining 900 billion Star Dollar to achieve his goal.

Even if this treasure was not good enough, the next one had to do it.

Alba pulled on the corner of the cloth but she did not reveal the item for a long time, keeping everyone on tenterhooks.

When it was about time, Alba quickly pulled away the red cloth on the treasure.

An iron hammer shining with a blue light appeared in front of everyone. Inside the blue light were flashes of lightning.

'Is that... a hammer?'

Alba started introducing it.

"Don't blink. This is... um... a hammer.

"But it's not an ordinary hammer. It's a mid-level Soulbound Weapon. At the same time, it's at the highest level among mid-level Soulbound Weapons. It's only one step away from being a high-level Soulbound Weapon.

"Its name is Hammer of Thunder!

"The Hammer of Thunder is the maximum mid-level Soulbound Weapon. It is very powerful, and it's made from the Thunder Heart Stone that was refined by the Heavenly Thunder. It has a very strong thunder and lightning attributes. Whenever you're fighting an enemy, thunder and lightning will come out at the same time with just a smash of the hammer. Your enemy will not be able to resist, and its attacking range is flexible.

"If you use it at large range, it will simply display more of the hammer's power.

"According to historical records, a powerhouse used the Hammer of Thunder to break apart a continent with just one smash, causing countless casualties. You can see how powerful it is, and it's definitely rare.

"Imagine this, if you cast the Eternal Golden Body and you have the Hammer of Thunder that will emit lightning, what would the effect be like?

"You might even smash planets with just one blow.

“You will be the embodiment of the God of Thunder if you have this.”

Alba rattled on.

In the end, she did not forget to add, “Only true men use the Hammer of Thunder.”

All the men at the auction were staring straight at the hammer.

This hammer was gorgeous.

It glowed with a blue light along with the occasional lightning.

When they heard what Alba said, they started to imagine themselves casting the Eternal Golden Body and fighting their enemies with the Hammer of Thunder.

As thunder and lightning roared, they were like the embodiment of the God of Thunder. It would look so domineering.

They could feel their adrenaline pumping as they imagined that scene.

No man could resist showing up on the battlefield and using this combat skill in such a domineering way.
