

Read I Am A Quadrillionaire Chapter 2235

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2235-A deserted area outside the borders of The Spirit Cage.

More than half a year ago, a world-shattering and startling battle took place here.

Both sides of the battle were in the Overlord Realm.

On one side was Empress Elora, one of the five Leila Rulers, and on the other side were the Robotias and the Soul Devourers.

Overlord Realm was the realm after Divine Realm.

With David's Divine Realm beginner Ancestral Deity Rank, he would not be the slightest resistance to an Overlord.

Calling him an ant would be complimenting him.

Deities were not even comparable to ants in front of Overlords.

The difference between the two was only one level, but their strength was very different.

The final result of this battle ended with Empress Elora sacrificing herself to severely injure the Robotias.

Although Elora did not die, only a trace of her soul power remained. Then, she was sent to The Spirit Cage for nourishment by her sword which had gained intelligence and had fought with her for many years.

When her soul power was restored, her sword would go to

The Spirit Cage.

However, judging from Elora's state at that time, she would need a long time to restore her soul power to her original state if she did not have luck.

If anything happened during her recovery, Empress Elora would die and disappear into the universe.

More than half a year has passed, but the traces of the battle remained.

The entire barren land was devoured by the battle, leaving behind a void and countless terrifying giant space cracks.

From a distance, it looked like a hole in a map.

In this forbidden land where no creature dared step, an excited voice suddenly exclaimed, "I've found it, I've found it! It's here, it's here! There must have been a shocking battle here not long ago! I can feel the lingering breath of Elora. She must have participated in this battle and her disappearance is definitely related to this!"

Immediately afterward, another voice added, "I can also feel it. This is surely caused by a terrifying battle. What a scene. This battle was terrifying. Drogo, you are good at detection and analysis. See if you can evaluate the battle situation so we can find out what happened. How can there be such a fierce battle on the edge of The Spirit Cage?"

The scene fell into silence.

After a while, a third voice said, "The battle was really fierce. In addition to Elora's residual aura, there was also the Robotias'. If I'm not wrong, this battle should be provoked by the Robotias. I heard that they found a special metal that can make Lv6 bodies that are comparable to an Overlord. Could it be that they want to test it on Elora?"

"What are the Robotias trying to do? Are they trying to provoke a war between the two domains? Have they forgotten the fear of us chasing them to their lair and wiping them out? Come, let's go to the Robotias' lair and see what they are trying to do," the first voice said again, utterly discomfited.

"Wait a minute! Lufian, it's better to discuss this first. The Robotias won't start a war for no reason. We should figure out their purpose before making a decision," the second voice interrupted.

Then, the two started an intense argument.

"So what if they have a purpose? Elora's whereabouts are unknown now. I can't stand this. I must make the Robotias pay or I will kill them directly."

“Lufian, I understand how you feel, but our top priority now is to find Elora first. Only she knows the specific situation at that time. It stands to reason that the Robotias would not dare to provoke The Spirit Cage, not even if they’ve created a Lv6 body comparable to an Overlord.”

“Valentin, didn’t you hear what Drogo said? It was the Robotias who fought with Elora and caused Elora to disappear. And now you’re saying that they dare not provoke us? Since the Robotias dare to do that, we can’t let this matter go no matter what their purpose. If not, they will think they can do whatever they want to us! Maybe Elora is in the Robotias’ lair right now.”

“Lufian, I hope you will not be blinded by your emotions. We know you like Elora, but now is not the time to act emotionally. If the Robotias dared to attack Elora, they will definitely think of us. Maybe they are waiting for us to fall into the trap in their lair right now! It would be unwise to rush over.”

“Valentin, what are you talking about? What do you mean I am acting emotionally? Aren’t the five Leila rulers a whole? Now that something happened to Elora, should we just watch helplessly and do nothing?” Emperor Lufian’s voice sounded urgent.

His pursuit of Elora could no longer be counted by days or years but by epochs.

After such a long struggle, Empress Elora had finally given in slightly. As long as he worked hard, he and Empress Elora could become a match made in heaven in The Spirit Cage or even the entire universe.