

Chapter 1414 Don't Let Anyone Escape

Brandon examined every nook and cranny along the corridor. Sure enough, he saw some signs of dragging a few yards away from the runway.

Mandy also saw it and stared in disbelief. "So Janet was so close to the runway when she disappeared. No wonder I could hear her scream even when the audience was so loud..." she mumbled.

Suddenly, a tinge of guilt flashed through her eyes. "If I had been more alert and came over to check as soon as I heard her voice, perhaps Janet would still be safe," she scolded herself.

"It was not your fault," Brandon assured. He didn't want to vent his anger on others. Instead, he said sensibly, "The kidnapper obviously had a plan. Even if you rushed over, it would probably have been pointless. You might even be taken away alongside Janet."

Besides, Brandon knew how shrewd the mysterious pharmacist was. The pharmacist could easily administer a drug that causes their victims to faint without them noticing.

Therefore, there was nothing Mandy could do, even if she rushed over. Things might even be worse if she did.

Despite Brandon's assurance, Mandy still felt a little guilty. Her eyes were slightly red as she bit her lip and silently prayed for Janet's safety.

Brandon quickly dialed his subordinate's number and ordered, "Block every exit in this venue. Don't let anyone escape."

His subordinate replied respectfully, "Roger that. We are now dispatching our men to guard every doorway and the underground garage. No one or vehicle will be allowed to leave."

Just then, Sean finally arrived. He felt extremely guilty after learning about Janet's disappearance from Brandon.

"I'm sorry, Boss. This is my fault. Had I arranged enough bodyguards around Mrs. Larson, she wouldn't have been kidnapped," Sean apologized

Brandon looked at Sean coldly and asked, "Where were you?"

Sean felt Brandon's murderous gaze on him and quickly explained, "We found the suspect who poisoned the models in the bathroom. I was afraid he would escape, so I led the team to pursue him. I didn't expect... I didn't expect the perpetrators would use this as an opportunity to kidnap Mrs. Larson."

Brandon's eyes were dark and cold as if a storm was brewing deep within him. "Good, excellent... They are toying with me. How intriguing!" he chuckled ominously.

Despite working for Brandon for many years, this was the first time Sean felt such a terrifying aura from Brandon. Sean was almost scared out of his wits. He dug his nails into his palms to maintain his composure as he asked, "Boss, what should we do now?"

Mandy was also struggling to keep calm as she was intimidated by Brandon's aura. She never knew that people could be this terrifying. It was as if a demon was rising from hell, ready to destroy the world.

Brandon glance at Sean coldly and ordered, "Go and watch the doorways in this building. Do not let anyone slip away."

He stared straight at Sean and emphasized, "You must find her for me."

Sean nodded and rushed off with his subordinates to guard the doorways.

This time, Brandon brought many highly skilled bodyguards with him to prevent Jeremy from interfering. In no time, all four doorways were soon sealed off under his orders.

Soon, the fashion show ended. Many people were trying to leave the venue but were stuck.

The fashion show organizers received news that Brandon was blocking the exits. They quickly found Brandon and scolded, "What are you doing? Get your people out of here now! If you refuse to comply, we will take the necessary actions!" 3
