

Chapter 148

Behind Kevin was a team of photographers, a boy as the ringbearer and a girl as the flower girl, plus a whole bunch of people. It looked official and grand.

When Kevin's words subsided, thunderous applause sounded.

The people who he paid off started to cheer and applaud loudly.

"This is so romantic!"

"I'm so jealous! Ms. Timberland is really the happiest woman on earth!"

"If I'm Ms. Timberland, I might cry a river!"

"Marry him, Ms. Timberland!"

"Marry him!"

The crowd was ceaseless with their merriments.

The cheers and comments, plus the crowd pressure pushed Sonia under the spotlight.

The crowd then cheered louder en masse.

If Sonia rejected Kevin, she would be identified as a cold and heartless woman, a woman who could not read the room.

Sonia was in a delighted mood today. She invited Andrius to the event because she thought of advancing on him.

However, with Kevin pulling this fiasco in front of her and Andrius, everything was messed up.

She got to her feet without saying a word.

"Marry him!"

"Marry him!"

The cheers grew louder when Sonia stood up.

Under everyone's anticipated gaze, Sonia grabbed the bouquet of roses and tossed it onto the floor.

With contempt on her beautiful face, she sneered, "Kevin Longtide, have you looked into the mirror this morning? Or can't you afford to buy one?"

"Look at you? You? Proposing to me? Are you even worthy of me?"

Her words silenced the entire hall.

so was her use of words as well.

soul vu

The atmosphere became incredibly depressing, and Kevin's expression turned bitter. He took a deep breath and glared at Sonia with narrowed eyes. He said deeply, "Sonia, tell me. What kind of man do you like? What kind of man is worthy of you? Tell me, so I can change."

The crowd saw the scene and was impressed.

Kevin was indeed infatuated with Sonia. Sonia rejected him brutally, yet he was not angry and did not want to give up.

He really loved her with his heart!

Kevin was great at crafting his personality in front of the crowd, but Sonia did not buy it. She glanced at Kevin with disdain and then looked at Andrius. Her scornful gaze turned into admiration.

She pointed at Andrius and said boldly, "I like... a man like him!"

The banquet hall was once again silenced.

Sonia liked Andrius?!

There were many people in the banquet hall who had never seen or heard of Andrius before.

Only a handful of people knew of his existence. They knew him as Luna's husband, yet Sonia just confessed to him in front of the public.

What was going on?

Everyone had a hard time wrapping their head around the situation.

What good was Andrius? Why would Sonia fall for him? Or was it just an excuse to reject Kevin?

Luna's expression became complicated as well.

When Kevin was proposing to Sonia, she was looking forward to an exciting show, but as the situation unfolded, she became part of the show.
