

Read Married at First Sight Chapter 2542

Married at First Sight Chapter 2542-Who knew if this girl might be the suitor of a certain young master?

This young woman was Carrie.

After Carrie got off the car, she walked straight to the window of the security booth and slapped the security guard with the mobile phone in her hand.

The security guard didn't expect that she would hit someone. She slapped him for being unprepared. After reacting, the security guard immediately got up and backed away, avoiding Carrie's second attack.

The security guard: "Why did you hit me, miss?"

"What's wrong with just beating you like a watchdog? I'm telling you, let me go immediately! Do you know who I am? I am the younger sister of your second young mistress, her biological sister! I am the biological sister-in-law of your second young master. You dare to stop me? If you don't let me go up the mountain, you're looking for a beating!"

The second young mistress' biological sister?

In the past, the Newman family had not been friends with the York family. After Camryn and Callum got engaged, most of the workers in the manor only knew that the second young mistress had a younger brother who was in college, but they had not heard the second young mistress mention her younger sister.

The security guard had never heard of it either.

The man in the passenger seat and the man in the back seat also got out of the car.

The taxi driver quickly said, "If you can't drive up the mountain, I won't go up. You pay me the fare and walk up the mountain."

"That's not possible. It's so tiring to walk up the mountain. Just wait there and take us to the entrance of the villa in a while. Then I'll pay you the fare."

Carrie didn't want to walk up the mountain.

This mountain may not look high, but walking on it was very tiring.

She was not as pampered as before, but now that she was out and she was the second young mistress of the Newman family, why was she still walking up the mountain?

There was no car available, and she could only take a taxi. Carrie felt extremely wronged.

The taxi driver had no choice but to continue waiting.

After talking to the taxi driver, Carrie ordered the security guard arrogantly again: "Let us go right away. I am the second young mistress of the Newman family and Camryn's biological sister. I tell you, if you don't let me go, I'll tell Camryn, and she will definitely sue you and let you go home and eat your own food."

When the security guard saw that Carrie was no longer taking action, he walked back to the table, took out the visitor registration book and a pen, put them in the window, and said to Carrie, "No matter who you are, this is our rule here: visitors are welcome. You need to register. If you register well, I will naturally let you pass."

"If you want to break through and have such courage, I'll not give you the pass."

Anyway, he had worked in Wildridge Manor for many years, and he had never seen anyone dare to break into Wildridge Manor.

Carrie was about to hit someone again, but her two cousins, Owen and Pablo, held her back.

"Carrie, don't make trouble with him here; it's boring." Owen said.

Owen, the eldest son of Brenda, was a ferocious-looking man.

Brenda and Amy arranged for Owen and Pablo to accompany Carrie to Wildridge Manor. Last night, these two people accompanied Carrie back to the Newman family villa, thinking of poisoning the four wolf dogs at night and then climbing in through the door.

As a result, they didn't see the four wolf dogs guarding the door, so they thought the wolf dogs were tied up.

Then they boldly opened the door and went in.

Who knew that when they opened the door and walked into the middle of the yard, the four wolf dogs rushed towards them while barking.

Owen and his cousin, Pablo, ran fast and rushed to the door, climbed over it, and fled.

But Carrie couldn't run fast enough. She ran to the door and climbed onto the door. The wolf dog jumped up and bit her, dragging her from the door to the ground.

Four wolf dogs would have torn Carrie apart last night if the butler hadn't heard the dogs barking and quickly gone outside to check.

Married at First Sight Chapter 2543-Even so, the wolf dog bit Carrie's foot.

Camryn was not at home, and the butler did not let Carrie enter the house without her consent. He only paid Carrie to go to the hospital for vaccinations.

Carrie was so frightened by the wolf dogs that she took the money the butler gave her for vaccinations and ran away quickly. Before running away, she said harshly that she would settle the score with Camryn.

She returned to the Newman family villa this morning with her two cousins, only to discover that Camryn wasn't there last night and had followed Callum back to Wildridge Manor for the weekend.

Carrie was so angry.

Immediately, she took her two cousins, hailed a taxi, and went straight to Wildridge Manor.

Camryn raised a wolf dog and bit her. She wanted to settle the score with Camryn and also complained to the wives of the York family to let them clearly see the viciousness under Camryn's kind appearance.

No matter how bad the relationship between the two sisters was, they were still sisters. They were biological sisters, born to the same mother.

Camryn actually raised a dog to bite her. She was so vicious. How dare the York family want such a daughter-in-law?

Owen picked up a pen and wrote down their names and contact numbers in the visitor registration book.

After looking at it, the security guard let them pass.

The taxi driver took three people up the mountain.

Owen said to Carrie, "Carrie, this is the territory of the York family. Calm down your temper and don't do anything. If you do, the three of us will only suffer. The security guard also has a good temper. Seeing that you are a girl, he didn't argue with you; otherwise, even if he doesn't call the police and call their colleagues, we won't get any good results."

Carrie curled her lips and said, "Now I am bullied by a tiger, and it was Camryn who hurt me. If it weren't for her and Serenity, I would still be the second Miss Newman in the Newman family, and I don't have to be stopped by a security guard when I go in."

When both cousins stared at her, Carrie said impatiently, "I know, I won't do it again. I didn't hit her hard just now. The watchdog dodges fast. If he dodges slowly, a little bit, I really want to blow his head off. He's just a watchdog. What's the big deal? How dare he stop us from coming?"

"These are people's rules." The taxi driver couldn't help but say something. He said, "I have sent guests here in the past, and they just registered honestly and passed by. But you still cursed and beat people. Fortunately, the security guard has a good temper; otherwise,

Carrie quickly said, "Driver, mind your own business."

Everyone blamed Carrie, which made her look very unhappy, and scolded the taxi driver.

She also had to rely on her two cousins to give her courage. She couldn't scold her cousin, and the taxi driver was nothing but someone who had the nerve to preach to her.

The taxi driver stopped talking.

Thinking of such a person, even if she were sent to the gate of Wildridge Manor, she might not be able to get in.

However, it had nothing to do with him.

He sent them to the gate of the villa, received the fare, and ran away, too lazy to care about them anymore.

When he saw that they were blocking the car in the future, he would rather not do their business than pick them up again.

There were no buses or taxis here, unless they booked a taxi to come over, but it would take time for the taxi driver to come over, so these three people should wait for the taxi slowly when they leave!

Halfway up the mountain, there was another security booth.

This time, even though Carrie had some objections in her heart and disliked going up a mountain and being stopped again and again, she didn't dare to be as arrogant as before, and she didn't get out of the car.

It was Owen who got off the car to register.

He had the best temper among the three.

Married at First Sight Chapter 2544-After a few minutes, the taxi driver sent the three of them to the entrance of the villa.

“Guys, we're here. One of you can pay the fare.”

The two cousins got out of the car on their own.

They were just acting as bodyguards for Carrie and emboldening her. There is no need to pay for running errands, but no more money could be taken out of their pockets.

They were no longer young masters from wealthy families. They bid farewell to the days of spending money like water. They worked on their own and earned a monthly salary of several thousand dollars. They also had to support their wives and children, so they had to save money.

Unlike Carrie.

No matter how bad the quarrel between her and Camryn was, even if she couldn't enter the Newman family's villa, she was still the second young lady of the Newman family, and she could get a share of the Newman family's property.

As long as she returned to Newman's house and got back her bank card, mobile phone, and car keys, she would have endless money.

Carrie should pay for the fare.

Carrie saw her two cousins getting off the taxi and made it clear that they would not pay the fare. She curled her lips, cursed in a low voice, and reluctantly paid the fare.

The driver received the fare, and after she got off the taxi, he quickly turned around and drove down the mountain.

Owen suddenly said, "Hey, driver, don't leave yet; wait here; we will take your car back to the city later."

They couldn't take a taxi here.

The York family had many vehicles, but they wouldn't let them use them, let alone send them back to the city.

Pablo and Carrie also reacted and wanted to keep the taxi driver. Unfortunately, the taxi driver stepped on the accelerator and ran very fast, not wanting to do their business at all.

"Running so fast to be reincarnated" After failing to stop the taxi driver, Carrie cursed loudly while driving.

The driver said, "Okay, let's make an appointment for a ride later."

Owen said, "Carrie, you really need to control your temper and accept the reality. Now that my uncle has entered, Camryn is the head of the Newman family, and you still suffer a big loss like before. No one can help you.

Even if you have to pretend, you still have to pretend and coax Camryn. Otherwise, how can you live if you can't even get in?"

They couldn't afford to support this hot-tempered cousin.

Although Carrie was not as idiotic as before after being imprisoned for more than half a year, her temper was still too bad.

During the time when Carrie was in jail, she went from being arrogant at the beginning to being beaten down and then suppressing her bad temper, making her look very honest.

But as soon as she came out, her bad temper returned to its original state.

It's easy to change a country, but it's hard to change one's nature.

Carrie said, "It's not like you don't know about the festivals between Camryn and me. We haven't had a good relationship since we were young. She doesn't see me as a sister, and I don't regard her as a sister. During the festivals for more than ten years, even if I humiliate her, she will not be deeply attached to my sister."

She still had this self-awareness.

Carrie said, "I am the second young lady of the Newman family. The property of the Newman family was left to me and Trenton by my parents, and it is not her turn to inherit it yet. Two cousins, I tell you, as long as you help me, we can get everything back. You two have worked at Newman's for so many years, and you have worked hard without any credit. It is so ruthless for Camryn to kick you out of the company as soon as she takes over.

If I take over Newman's company, I will immediately invite you back, arrange the positions of senior executives, and let you help me take care of the company's affairs."

Carrie made a blank promise.