

Chapter 66 You Have To Make Him Happy And Comfortable!

Claribel's face lit up with delight as she witnessed the thriving bond between Rena and Waylen. Seizing the opportunity, she prepared an elaborate breakfast to further contribute to their happiness.

Rena retreated to her room, intending to collect Waylen's garments and deliver them to the law office along with the breakfast. All of a sudden, a blush crept up her cheeks as an inexplicable embarrassment washed over her while she contemplated taking the clothes she had recently purchased for him. Instead, she selected a set of his usual attire, carefully packing them into a bag.

Hailing a taxi, she headed towards the Sterling Law Firm.

Reluctant to disturb Waylen, Rena called Jazlyn upon her arrival, explaining her purpose for visiting.

Jazlyn, already present in Waylen's office, discreetly covered her phone and informed her boss, "Miss Gordon has arrived. She brought breakfast and a set of clothes for you. She mentioned leaving them at the front desk for convenience."

Waylen, engrossed in perusing a document, raised his head upon hearing Jazlyn's statement.

He fixed his gaze on her for a moment before calmly instructing, "Please fetch them."

Jazlyn blushed under his penetrating gaze, momentarily swayed by his charm.

If her circumstances were different, she might have found herself attracted to him.

Yet, she couldn't help but wonder why he hadn't acknowledged Rena's presence.

Waylen continued reading the document, seemingly aware of Jazlyn's thoughts. He said in a nonchalant tone, "I see her every day. There's no need to be overly attached."

Silently acknowledging his words, Jazlyn proceeded downstairs promptly.

Just before Rena departed, Jazlyn received the breakfast and clothes, even extending an invitation for Rena to join her upstairs.

Rena graciously declined, stating, "No, thank you. I have to visit the hospital later."

Engaged in light conversation for a few moments, Rena bid Jazlyn farewell and departed.

After that, Jazlyn ascended the stairs with the breakfast and clothes, presenting them to Waylen. Having toiled through the night, his hunger had awakened. He quickly showered and changed his clothes in the lounge.

Emerging from the shower, he felt rejuvenated and full of energy.

Watching him sigh as if he was ready to conquer the day once again, Jazlyn unconsciously grazed the tips of her fingers under her eyes, feeling the dark circles that covered them. She thought that Waylen had a lot of physical strength.

After finishing his breakfast, Waylen sent a message to Rena, surprising her.

"Didn't you buy shirts for me yesterday? Why didn't you send them instead?"

Rena hadn't anticipated his message, and the contact from him made her blush with shyness. Without hesitation, she replied, "I didn't buy shirts for you, Mr. Fowler."

The man held his phone, a smile forming on his lips. He appreciated her modesty.

She, on the other hand, waited eagerly for a response, but none came.

She didn't dwell on it, assuming he was preoccupied.

Just as she was about to call a taxi, her phone rang. It was Vera.

Vera, known for her directness, immediately delved into the matter. "Rena, you won't believe what Aline has done this time! She's so wicked!"

Intrigued, Rena inquired, "What has she done this time?"

Vera sneered. "I heard that Harold broke up with her. Instead of seeking revenge on him, she decided to target you! Aline has managed to gather some teachers from our school, and even some influential parents of the children from the music studio. Her aim is to ensure you're ruined."

Rena couldn't fathom the depth of Aline's animosity towards her.

How come that woman hated her so much?

Silence hung in the air as Vera expressed her concern, asking, "Has Waylen agreed to help you?"

Rena chose not to hide the truth and replied softly, "He mentioned attending the school reunion with me the night before yesterday, but he's been incredibly busy now since he took a new case. I'm afraid he won't have the time to accompany me."

Vera found herself torn between laughter and frustration.

With a smile, she scolded, "You're being naive! No matter how busy he is, he can always spare a few hours if he wants to. Let me enlighten you: if you want a man to help you, you must first make him happy and comfortable."

Make him comfortable?

A blush crept up her cheeks. She was too embarrassed to admit that she had not experience with intimacy, nor had anything actually happened between her and Waylen yet.

With a sly smile on her lips, Vera teased, "You must let Waylen attend it with you!"
