

Impulsive Vow to an Enigmatic Husband (Cornelia Stewart) Chapter 961

Chapter 961

Natalia kicked off the conversation, "I'd be happy to take your last name, no matter what the first one is"

Cornelia retorted, "You can't just pick a name out of thin air."

She pondered for quite a while, thought it through and finally came up with something she was pleased with. "Natalia, how about Tahlia Stewart?"

The name was her previous name with a twist. Cornelia hoped that with Natalia adopting the name Tahlia, she would emerge from the darkness into a life filled with light.

Natalia responded, "I love it. It's a great name."

Patricia savored the sound of the name Tahlia, sounds good to me."

Natalia chimed in, "We're all set with the name then."

Cornelia gave her a curt, "Sure."

After the initial excitement, Natalia, or rather Tahlia now, started to fret, "We're going to have a hard time getting me out of the Reese family"

Cornelia reassured her with a smile, "Don't worry, I'll handle it. No matter what the Reese family pulls, I'll make sure you move out."

In the middle of this, the doorbell rang.

Patricia rushed to open the door, "Mr. Wilson, what brings you here?"

Marc asked me to help his wife, how could I say no?" Leonardo stood at the doorway and called out, "Cornelia, Març told me you're going to the police station with Natalia?"*

Cornelia ran out immediately, "What did you say?"

Leonardo replied, "Marc told me you and Natalia are going to the police station. He asked me to drive you there."

"Give us a few minutes to change, and we'll be right out." Cornelia returned to the living room, "Tahlia, you heard that. Go change and we'll leave."

Tahlia nodded eagerly, "Okay"

Just when she had lost all hope of ever escaping the Reese family, she saw a glimmer of light.

The nearest police station to Lakeview Estates was four miles in a straight line, six miles by road. So, Leonardo personally drove them there. Leonardo's curiosity was killing him, but he held back for a while before finally asking, "Natalia, you're Cameron's sister. How did you become Cornelia's sister?"

Tahlia replied, "My name is Tahlia now!"

Leonardo said, "Alright. Miss Cornelia, Miss Tahlia, could you guys clue me in on what's happening?"

Cornelia asked, "Didn't President Hartley tell you?"

Leonardo replied, "You know how he is, do you think he would tell me anything? He only told me that Natalia needs to go to the police station and instructed me to help you guys"

Cornelia said, "We're going to the police station to get Natalia a new ID. From today onwards, there will be no Natalia in this world, only Tahlia." Leonardo said in a wronged tone, "I helped you guys escape, now I'm your driver, and I don't even have the right to know what's going on?"

Cornelia asked, "What do you want to know?"

Leonardo said, "How did you guys suddenly become sisters? If I remember correctly, she used to bully you."

Hearing this, Natalia felt a wave of shame, "Sis, I'm truly sorry!" She didn't know how to bully people, she picked it up from novels and TV shows. Thankfully, she always ended up on the losing side.

Chapter 962

Cornelia said, "Let's drop the past."

Leonardo asked, "Then can you tell me why you think she's your sister?"

Comelia replied, "Because she's my real sister"

Leonardo immediately imagined a complex family drama, "Could it be that Clair couldn't have children after marrying the Reese family, so they adopted a child. And now the kid's real family has come looking."

Cornelia asked, "Been watching any new shows lately?"

Leonardo said, "I've been hooked on a young actress recently. Her show is airing right now, and I've been binging it to show some support."

Cornelia curiously asked, "What's the show about?"

Leonardo replied, "It's a drama about families and their love-hate relationships."

Cornelia didn't know what to make of his taste.

Leonardo got back to the previous topic, "C'mon, spill it. Did I guess it right?"

Cornelia replied, "Did you ever consider that Clair might be our real mother?"

Leonardo said, "No way! They say life imitates art, but it seems life is more complicated than any drama. But how did Clair end up being your biological mother? She was so cold to you at Granger's birthday party. Did she know you were her daughter then?"

Cornelia gave a slight smile, "If she hadn't known, maybe she wouldn't have gone to such lengths to be mean to me."

Before, Cornelia couldn't figure out why Clair was so hostile towards her. After learning about their relationship, everything fell into place.

At this point, Leonardo fell silent.

Thanks to Leonardo's help, the process of getting a new ID went smoothly. When it was their turn, it took only minutes.

When Cornelia saw Tahlia's name on the new ID, she felt a little emotional.

From now on, she had a real sister.

Tahlia was still a bit dissatisfied, "Leo, can I throw away this old ID? I don't want to see anything related to the Reese family."

Leonardo replied, "Now that we have your new ID, this old one is useless. Dispose of it however you want."

Tahlia quickly said, "Then I want to cut it up."

Cornelia nodded at her, "Okay, there will be no Natalia from now on."

Tahlia hugged Cornelia tightly, "Nelly, I really am your sister now. I feel like I'm dreaming."

Cornelia said, "Me too."

Tahlia asked, "Do you have anything urgent to do now? If not, can we take a leisurely walk home?"

Cornelia nodded, "Sure."

The new lakeside district had a beautiful environment, wide streets, and many parks. From where they were, there was a lakeside park stretching for miles. Walking through the park not only provided exercise but the chance to appreciate various plants.

Leonardo firmly said, "I'm not walking."

Cornelia said, "I didn't ask you to. You can drive home first, and stay for dinner. We can celebrate finding my sister and our moving to a new place."*

Chapter 963

Leonardo said, "So let me get this straight, not only did I work my butt off today, but I also have to bring you guys gifts?"

Cornelia replied, "I'm cool with that."

Leonardo said, "Y'all are ruthless."

Cornelia said, "Leonardo, you're giving us gifts now. But when you get married, I'll give you an even pricier gift. You won't be at a loss"

Leonardo said, "I have no intention of getting married, how am I supposed to accept your gift?"

Cornelia gave him a disgruntled look, "You have a bunch of girlfriends but no plans to settle down? You're treating these girls like a total jerk!"

Leonardo fired back, "A jerk is a guy who says he loves you but chases after other women. I lay everything out before I start dating. If my girlfriend can bring me happiness, I can give her the money she wants. We both get what we want and if we get sick of each other, we can split anytime. How am I a jerk?"

Cornelia said, "That's complete nonsense!"

Leonardo said, "How is that nonsense? I'm a good guy! Do you think every man should be like your husband, not touching women for decades to be considered a good man?"

Leonardo continued, "A man like Marcus could have issues! Certain functions need to be used frequently to know if they're working properly. If they're not used, people might start to wonder..."

Leonardo started to crack jokes. No one knew Marcus' situation better than Cornelia. She glared at him, "Leonardo, shut up!"

Leonardo said, "Did I mention any of Marcus' flaws? Are you trying to shut me up because you can't argue back? Well, I won't shut up."

Cornelia said, "Then you keep talking. We're leaving."

Leonardo blocked

Cornelia's way, "Cornelia, do you know how well other women treat me? Do you know how much they want to be with me? Opportunities that others can't get are right in front of you, but you're not cherishing it."

Cornelia gave a faint smile, "My husband is Marcus!"

That answer was more hurtful than any other words. Leonardo said, "Sigh!"

This round, Cornelia totally won. She smiled smugly. "Are you staying for dinner?"

Leonardo said, "Yes!"

Even if he didn't stay, he still had to give them gifts. Might as well stay. Tonight, he was going to eat like a king and get his money back.

Cornelia said, "Good. We'll need about an hour to walk home. When we get there, we plan to pick up a few things from the supermarket at the entrance of our community. We might not be able to carry everything, could you give us a hand?"

Leonardo said, "Are you treating me like your servant?"

Cornelia said, "Not at all, it's just that you're the only man here, so we're troubling you."

Leonardo drove off angrily.

Cornelia took Tahlia's hand, "Tahlia, let's go."

Tahlia said, "I never knew that Leonardo had such a sense of humor."

Cornelia asked, "What was he like in your eyes before?"

Chapter 964

Tahlia answered, "He's tight with Cameron and Marc, especially Marc. Most of the time when I see him, he's with Marc. So he seems kinda hard to approach."

Suddenly, Tahlia seemed to realize something, "Hold on, I gotta start calling Marc, Mr. Hartley. You took me in and let me live at your place, will I mess up your relationship with him?"

Cornelia replied gently, "He knows I took you in. He's really sweet and considerate. I don't have to ask for anything, and he just takes care of it all. Most importantly, despite his high position, he doesn't disrespect people like some men do. He respects my decisions and always listens to my opinions in life. He's a really good man, the best I've ever met."

Tahlia asked, "You're talking about Mr. Hartley?"

Cornelia replied, "Who else could it be?"

Tahlia said, "He must really love you."

Cornelia said, "He's just a responsible good man. He married me, so he has to be good to me. Despite saying this, Cornelia felt really warm inside."

Even though she never had a romantic relationship before, Cornelia wasn't a fool. She could tell Marcus loved her. He had said more than once that he liked her. So he must like her, probably even more than she thought.

Tahlia said, "Don't deny it, you're his wife, and it's so wonderful that he loves you."

There were many rumors about Marcus. Some said he was heartless, some said he was ruthless. Many people, including those in the Reese family, felt fear at the mention of his name. Tahlia once witnessed Marcus' ruthlessness. But in Cornelia's heart, the man everyone feared was a gentle, considerate, and respectful husband. Tahlia thought, this must be love.

No matter how tough Marcus was outside, he was just an ordinary man in front of his wife.

They walked into the park's green path.

Tahlia asked again, "Did you marry him first or become his assistant first? Can you tell me how you guys got married?"

Cornelia answered, "Our grandmothers were friends when they were young. After they each got their own families, they still kept in touch. Before cell phones, they kept in touch through letters

"Later I came to Riverton for college, and our grandmothers secretly planned to pair us up. We both agreed to get married to give them peace of mind. After we got married, Marcus went to the U.S. for a year and had no contact with me. I was so busy with work that I almost forgot about him. During this time I was transferred to the Hartley Group's headquarters. After a series of evaluations, I became his assistant the day he returned. But I had no idea that he was actually my husband."

Tahlia said, "Your story is even more bizarre and exciting than novels and TV shows."

Cornelia laughed, "Indeed!"

Tahlia said, "Cornelia."

Cornelia asked, "What's up?"

Tahlia asked, "I've always wanted to marry Marc. Will that cause a rift between us?"

Cornelia said, "Ask yourself, do you really like him? Do you genuinely want to marry him?"

Tahlia answered, "Actually, I think I crave freedom more." She had been reflecting on this. Marrying Marcus wasn't what she truly wanted; it was just something ng her family kept saying. Hearing it so many times, she just assumed she wouldn't marry anyone but Marcus.

Chapter 965

Cornelia said, "You don't have to give me an answer right away. I'll be hanging out with you at home these days while you get back on your feet. Take your time to think about it. When your wounds are healed, I'll take you back to Rosenberg to visit our grandma and dad. They'll be over the moon if they knew! found you.

"Alright." Tahlia nodded, then said, "You and Bri have both told me before that I should have my own gig. I've been thinking about getting a job after a while..."

She said this in a small voice, afraid that Cornelia might reject her. It was like when she was in the Reese family, every time she mentioned wanting to work, Cameron would always knock her down, saying she wasn't cut out for any job. But sometimes, she also wanted to prove herself.

Cornelia said, "Sure thing! You're a grad from a reputable university and you've studied abroad. You're a talented individual. Loads of companies would be fighting over you"

Tahlia asked, "Really?"

"If you don't believe me, we can make a bet. First, you apply for jobs online. If a company wants you, you're treating me to dinner with your first paycheck. If no company wants you, I'll treat you to dinner." Cornelia encouraged Tahlia to give it a shot in a light-hearted manner.

And Cornelia believed that as long as Tahlia took that first step, she would absolutely kill it.

Tahlia laughed and said, "Deal!"

Seeing Tahlia's bright and radiant smile, Cornelia clenched the new ID card in her hand. She looked up at the cloudless sky and silently said in her heart, "Grandma, dad, if you're in heaven, you should be able to see my little sister beside me. She is also a child of our family. Today, I brought her to change her name and get a new ID. I named her Tahlia, I hope she can live her new life with this name. Don't worry, I will take good care of her."

Meanwhile, at the Reese family.

Granger came home and lashed out at Clair, "Clair, you're something else."

Clair, who didn't know Natalia had already got a new ID, took Granger's suit off as usual and replied with a smile, "I'm only something else because of you. I'd be just another Joe without you."

Granger sneered, suddenly grabbing Clair's throat, "Who the hell did you tell that Natalia isn't our kid? Why does Marcus know she's a Stewart?"

He tightened his grip on Clair's throat, leaving her gasping for breath. She struggled to hit his hand, her face turning red as she said, "Let go first."

She had been with him for twenty years, and indeed made his life comfortable. Granger was somewhat reluctant to hurt her, so he chose to let go "Speak."

Chapter 966

After being set free, Clair took a few deep breaths. Once she'd somewhat collected herself, she looked at Granger with a mournful gaze, "Granger, I've been with you for over twenty years, gave you my youth and my body, and took care of you with all my heart. Have I ever thought of betraying you during these years?"

Granger took a moment to ponder. This woman loved money. She married him for money, and she pleased him for money. Because her goal was so clear, she'd always been by his side all these years, never betraying him.

"Now when shit hits the fan, you don't even ask me, you just assume I leaked the information. Do you think I'm stupid?" Clair blinked, a couple of tears trickling down, "I don't even know what happened. How can you accuse me..."

She sobbed pitifully, causing Granger to feel a pang of guilt. He reached out to pull her into his arms, "I'm sorry."

Clair nestled in his arms, the smell of him making her nauseous, but she had to bear it, "So what the heck happened?"

Granger explained, "Marcus sent Leonardo to me today, saying that Natalia isn't the Reese child, and he wanted to arrange a new identity for her. My staff told me they've already done it, even changing her name to Tahliana. I only found out today that Marcus' assistant is from Rosenberg, the daughter of the Stewart family. And if she wasn't so lucky, she'd be dead by now."

Clair asked, "Do you know why Marcus always protects his assistant?"

Granger replied, "That woman is indeed beautiful, even more so than you when you were young. After all, Marcus is a man, and with that woman in front of him every day, how could he not be moved?"

Clair revealed, "I just found out that Marcus' wife is Cornelia. Her grandmother just passed away, and Marcus went to Rosenberg with her."

Granger raised his voice, "What? What did you just say?"

Clair repeated, "I said the wife of Marcus we've been looking for has been right under our noses all along."

Granger immediately whipped out his phone to call Cameron, "You've always said you were close to Marcus, so why didn't you know his wife has been right here? What did I do wrong to end up with such a useless son like you!"

Without Natalia, Cameron vented all his anger on the house servants. Now he was getting a call from Granger. As usual, when Granger called him, it was an endless stream of scolding. He had to deal with the troubles of the Reese Group during the day, and be chewed out by his father at night.

The more Cameron thought about it, the angrier he got, so he did something he'd never dared to do before, "Yes, I'm useless. Marcus is useful, but would you want a son like him? Can you afford it? If you were his father, you'd probably be in jail by now, not here yelling at me."

"What did you say?" Granger's voice suddenly turned cold, "Cameron, do you know who you're talking to?"

Cameron just hung up the phone.

Infuriated, Granger tried calling him back, but all he heard was the automated voice message that the phone was switched off, "He dared to defy me. Has he forgotten who raised him?"

"Serves him right!" Clair felt a sense of satisfaction, but she still had to comfort him on the surface, "Don't get mad. It'll hurt your health. He's probably just stressed out because of the current situation. Once the crisis at the Reese Group is over and everyone gets a chance to rest, things will get better."

Chapter 967

When it came to the crisis of the Reese Group, Granger was like a balloon that had been popped, completely deflated, "Marcus is ruthless, he never planned to let us off from the get-go. Every decision we made was under his control. If we can't find a solution, the massive Reese Group will crumble in the near future, and Riverton will no longer be our territory"

Clair said, "I have an idea."

"You?" Granger raised an eyebrow, looking at Clair with a sneer, "I must admit, you know a lot about men, but what do you know about business?"

Clair said, "I don't know much about business, but I know how to win a man's heart better than you do."

Granger scoffed, "Don't joke around. If you were twenty years younger, Marcus might still be interested in you. You still have your charm, but you can't compare to the young girls."

Clair laughed, "Don't forget, my name is Clair, and those two bitches' mother's name was also Clair. They still don't know I'm not the real Clair. All I need to do is show up as their mother, and Marcus won't be able to touch me."

Granger's eyes lit up, but he was still worried, "They knew Natalia wasn't a Reese child. Wouldn't they know you're not the real Clair?"

Clair said, "If they knew I wasn't the real Clair, they definitely learn that the real Clair is dead, do you think they would let me go? If they knew the truth, it would have caused a sensation. Now they just took the traitor Natalia away, which proves they don't know the truth"

Granger said, "Okay, give it a shot, whatever it takes. As long as you can gain their trust, help the Reese Group rise again, it'll be good to you" Hearing this promise, Clair sneered internally, "Granger, you fool, do you really think I'm getting close to Marcus for the Reese Group? I married you for money. and now I'm trying to please Marcus for money too. Wait until I settle down in the Hartley Group, and there's more money to be made. I will definitely step on you."

Granger didn't see through Clair's intentions. He held Clair's face and looked at her, "After all these years, I'm still not tired of your face."

Suppressing her disgust, Clair lifted her head and kissed him, "Tonight..."

Granger pinched her still slender waist, his eyes gradually filled with desire, "Stay with me now. If you make it good, I'll give you ten thousand bucks."

Cornelia and Tahlia chatted as they walked, and before they knew it, an hour had passed and they arrived at the supermarket at the entrance of the community

Before heading back, Cornelia called Zack and invited him over for dinner.

At this moment, Zack drove up in his newly bought Mercedes just as they were reaching the community entrance, he asked, "Cornelia, who's this?"

Cornelia led Tahlia to Zack's window, introducing. This is my little sister, Tahlia. Tahlia, this handsome boy is my childhood friend Zack."

Tahlia sweetly responded, "Hi Zack! Nice to meet you!"

"Hello!" Zack glanced at Tahlia, greeted her perfunctorily, then looked at Cornelia again, his gaze shifting between them, "Cornelia, am I remembering wrong? Or are you messing with me? We grew up together, I would know if you had a little sister, wouldn't I?"

Cornelia said, "I'll fill you in later. For now, go park the car. Once you've done that, come back to the supermarket and help us with the groceries."

*Zack, in a rush, asked, "Can't you just tell me now, Cornelia?

Cornelia replied, "You're blocking the entrance to the parking lot. No one else can get past. Park your car first, then come back to the supermarket and I'll explain

Zack reluctantly agreed, "Alright, just be sure to tell me later."

As Zack drove into the underground parking lot, Tahlia said, "Zack's really good to you, Cornelia. Do you think Mr. Hartley will be jealous?"

Cornelia replied, "He is an old friend of mine. My husband won't be jealous." In reality, not only would her husband be jealous, he'd be insanely jealous. And he wouldn't be subtle about it either; he'd let her know loud and clear.

The supermarket at the entrance of their residential area was a chain store. It had a reputation for stocking fresh, high-quality fruits and vegetables. Thanks to the supermarket's good procurement management, customers could shop with peace of mind, not having to worry about buying spoiled products.

While Cornelia and Tahlia were still shopping, Zack arrived. He glanced at Tahlia a few times before asking Cornelia, "She looks familiar. Have I met her somewhere?"

Cornelia replied, "I'm not sure if you've met her, but you might have heard about her family or seen her in the news"

Zack asked, "Is she Marcus' sister?"

Cornelia explained, "She used to be part of the Reese family, the famous family in Riverton that owns the Reese Group."

Confused, Zack asked, "So how did she become your sister? This all seems a bit fishy. Be careful you're not being conned, Cornelia."

Cornelia explained to Zack how she and Tahlia came to be sisters.

After hearing Cornelia's explanation, Zack pondered for a while and then asked, "So the DNA test results were legitimate?"

Cornelia replied, "The test was conducted by people Marcus arranged, under constant supervision, so there's absolutely no chance of foul play. Tahlia is my biological sister. Haven't you noticed that Tahlia and I really do look alike?"

Zack glanced at Tahlia again and said, "Cornelia, I don't mean to upset you, but this just seems odd to me. Your father was a very responsible man. If he knew your mother was pregnant, he wouldn't have let her leave Rosenberg. He would've taken care of her."

Cornelia said, "I was only a few months old at that time. I guess that woman didn't realize she was pregnant until after she left Rosenberg."

Zack was like, "This is the only possibility."

Cornelia shot back, "I've already confirmed Tahlia's identity, and I've explained it to you today, so stop questioning her in the future"

Zack replied, "I'm not an idiot."

Cornelia retorted, "Who said you're not an idiot?"

Zack was like, "Cornelia, just focus on shopping!"

Having dealt with Zack, Cornelia went back to her shopping.

Before she finished, Abigail rang her up, "Cornelia, heard you found a blood sister? Is that legit?"

Cornelia said, "Yeah, I'll fill you in when we meet. Planning to take Tahlia to Rosenberg tomorrow to pay respects to my grandma and dad, and deal with my grandma's stuff."

Because she had to go back to Riverton for Tahlia's stuff, Cornelia hadn't finished dealing with things in Rosenberg. She would have to stay there for a few more days to sort out her grandma's stuff.

Abigail said, "Cool. My boyfriend met my parents in Rosenberg today. I'll wait for you to finish up in Rosenberg and then we'll head back to Riverton together."

Cornelia asked, "What did your parents think of him?"

Abigail sighed, "They weren't impressed! Mostly because they recently met the super handsome President Hartley, so my boyfriend doesn't quite stack up."

Cornelia burst out laughing. "You can't talk about your boyfriend like that."

Abigail said, "Compared to President Hartley, he's no match, but I still like him a lot."

Cornelia said, "As long as you're happy. Gotta get back to my shopping now. I have guests tonight. We'll catch up tomorrow."

Abigail said, "Cool."

After hanging up, Cornelia shot Marcus a text. [Jeremy, thanks for helping out today and getting Tahlia's name change and new ID sorted. I've invited Leonardo and Zack over for dinner tonight, a celebration for moving into my new place and finding my sister. Come home as soon as you finish work.]

After sending the text, Cornelia waited a few seconds, but didn't get a reply from Marcus. She then put away her phone and carried on shopping.

A bit later, her phone buzzed. It was a text from Marcus, just a simple: [I miss you!]

He didn't tell her that because she wasn't with him today, he kept getting distracted at work. This was making Ben and his employees really worried.

Even though it was a simple message, Marcus' straightforwardness made Cornelia blush instantly. She replied, [Focus on your work during work hours. don't say things like that.]

Marcus shot back, [Nothing much to do, I've knocked off early and am now at the entrance of the neighborhood.]

Cornelia replied: [Then head up first. We're shopping at the supermarket.]

Marcus didn't reply anymore. Cornelia put her phone away, but couldn't help but quicken her shopping pace. In the end, she picked out a shopping cart full of stuff. After paying, everyone took two bags.

Zack picked up the two heaviest bags and said, "Nelly, I'll take these out first, then come back to help you guys."

"No need, the remaining bags are lighter, we can handle it." Cornelia, looking out for her sister, gave the lightest bag to Tahlia, and carried the slightly heavier ones herself.

Unexpectedly, just as she stepped out the door, a strong hand reached out and took the bag from her hand.

Cornelia looked up and seeing who it was, she gave a slight smile, "Didn't I tell you to go upstairs first? What are you doing here?"

Marcus replied, "I wanted to walk home with you."

Unable to resist his direct confession, Cornelia took the bag from Tahlia's hand and led her forward, "Let me formally introduce you, Natalia has changed her name to Tahlia. From now on, she's my little sister, and yours too."

"Hello, Mr. Hartley! Tahlia greeted.

Thanks to her relationship with Cornelia, Marcus had grown fond of the little girl he previously disliked, "Hello. Make sure you listen to your sister."

"Okay. I'll go find Zack." After exchanging greetings. Tahlia quickly ran off, clearly avoiding Marcus. She didn't want to leave a bad impression on him and Cornelia

Marcus tried to take the bag from Cornelia again, but she quickly dodged him, saying, "The bag's really light, I can carry it. You should tone down your intimidating vibes in front of Tahlia. She shouldn't be scared of you"

Marcus asked, "Am I really that scary?"

Cornelia couldn't deny it. She had been scared of him when they first started working together, "You know you can be pretty intimidating. I remember one time you threatened to throw me into the Riverton river to feed the fishes.

Marcus replied, "I didn't know you were my wife then."

Cornelia retorted, "So if I wasn't your wife, you could just toss me into the Riverton river to feed the fishes?"

Marcus said, "I'm sorry."

Hearing his apology, Cornelia's heart softened again. She quickly linked her arm with his, "You don't have to apologize, I was just kidding."

As they were talking, an old lady pushing a flower cart stopped them, "Young man, why don't you buy a bouquet for your girlfriend?"

Marcus immediately corrected her, "She's my wife!"

Even to a stranger selling flowers, he was quick to clarify, afraid that others might not know Cornelia was his wife.

Cornelia felt happy inside.

The old lady said, "If she's your wife, then you should definitely buy her flowers. Your girlfriend might not become be your wife, but your wife is your lifelong companion. You should cherish her more. Just because she's married to you doesn't mean you can stop treating her well"

Cornelia wasn't a very romantic person; she thought buying fruits was more practical than buying flowers.

But seeing this old lady, who was about the same age as her grandma, still working hard. Cornelia decided to support her, "How much for a bouquet?"

The old lady replied, "Twenty eight bucks."

Cornelia said, "Alright, I'll take one." She then prepared to pay.

The old lady was quick to stop her, "How can you buy flowers for yourself? Even if you're married, you still need some romance in life. It should be your husband buying you flowers"

Cornelia replied, "It's just a bouquet. It's okay."

The old lady continued, "What do you mean just a bouquet? Every bouquet, every sweet word is crucial in marriage. Do you know why some couples divorce after a few years of marriage?"

Cornelia didn't respond.

The old lady explained, "That's because when two people are together for a long time, they feel the freshness has gone from their life. But this freshness isn't innate, it's something you two need to create together."
