

Chapter 643 Meeting Their Match

Liam's expression went icy, a deadly resolve taking over his heart.

He had to pinpoint Cannon's whereabouts urgently to rescue Julie. He wouldn't tolerate any hindrances.

Meanwhile, Yusuf was venting. "You thieves! No wonder you acted so oddly! Just so you know, we're from the Dark Night Organization. Be smart and abandon your wicked plans, and show us the way!"

Upon hearing the name Dark Night Organization, the squad members looked visibly shaken. Their leader sized up both Liam and Yusuf, pondering the legitimacy of their claim.

But Liam had reached his breaking point.

In the blink of an eye, he was in front of a Black Serpent Squad member. Before the man could react, Liam had already snapped his neck!

His comrade nearby was aghast. Just as he was about to draw his pistol, a searing pain shot through his right arm.

Looking up, he found Liam already upon him, his arm shattered by a single grip from Liam!

The others were paralyzed with fear. Their attempts to flee were cut short as Liam eliminated them in moments.

Only the leader of the Black Serpent Squad remained, and dread consumed him. He gulped, filled with regret.

He never anticipated that the man he had once dismissed as a fool possessed such formidable power and merciless resolve.

Filled with fear, he instantly shifted his stance, dropping to his knees and pleading, "Sir, I apologize. I misjudged you. It won't happen again!"

Liam, however, disregarded his plea. He felled the man with a swift punch and stomped on the back of his hand.

The crunch of breaking bone echoed. The team leader wailed as his palm was crushed.

Liam leaned in and said coldly, "So, do you actually know where the Black Spider is, or did you deceive us to get us here? Consider your answer carefully."

Don't make the same mistakes your comrades did."

The leader trembled from head to toe, aware that his life hung in the balance. If he couldn't give a satisfactory answer, he knew he'd meet the same fate as his team.

At that moment, he felt incredibly fortunate. Had Liam inquired about any other location, he would have been clueless. But luck was on his side. He had indeed made a delivery at Black Spider's place before.

Although Black Spider monopolized the drug trade in the delta region, the products were strictly for the local heavyweights, not for addicts.

He sighed in relief. He had actually been to that place!

The Black Serpent Squad's leader replied cautiously, "I know the place. I'll lead you both there immediately. No more tricks, I swear."

Upon hearing this, Liam opted to spare his life for now and delivered another kick. "Lead the way then! Your life hangs on locating Black Spider's place. Fail, and your fate will be worse than that of your men."

The squad leader took the warning seriously.

Struggling to his feet with one hand, he respectfully took the lead.

Liam wasn't naturally sadistic, but in this environment, not showing ruthlessness would label him as an easy target.

Eliciting fear was simpler than gaining respect. All Liam wanted was to locate Black Spider's base as quickly as possible.

The route the man chose led them back to the original street.

Yusuf swore in frustration, "Fuck you! You dare make us take this detour? You'll regret this!"

The man shrank back, choosing silence over words. The shopkeepers watched as the figures vanished once again and began to chatter among themselves in bewilderment.

"Why have they returned?" Everyone was stunned.

A keen-eyed man pointed and murmured, "See that only their leader remains from the Black Serpent Squad? The rest are missing."

Expressions of disbelief spread among the shop owners. "Something has gone wrong! Looks like the Black Serpent Squad met their match this time!"
