

Chapter 666 Infidelity

Liam wasted no time in seeking out Julie upon his return.

It had been nearly two weeks since he last visited, and his promise weighed on his conscience.

He had decisively dealt with the Black Spider in the delta region and had been eager to return.

When Vivian saw Liam, her face lit up with a smile. "Liam, while you were away, I've had conversations with various people, and I've managed to recover a lot of my lost memories."

With those words, Vivian embraced Liam and nestled into his arms.

Liam's heart swelled with happiness when he heard this news. He knew that with her memory returning, the hope of fully rekindling their love was on the horizon.

He nodded emotionally and said softly, "That's wonderful. I've taken revenge for you. No one will ever harm you again."

Liam's heart swelled with happiness when he heard this news. He knew that with her memory returning, the hope of fully rekindling their love was on the horizon.

He nodded emotionally and said softly, "That's wonderful. I've taken revenge for you. No one will ever harm you again."

Vivian responded with a happy nod. She felt so good to hear the news, as the risk of her true identity being exposed had diminished.

However, there was still one lingering problem - Timothy.

He was the reason for Vivian's fervent display of affection towards Liam today. Just two days ago, she discovered she was pregnant.

If this news were to surface, it would benefit no one. So, for now, she had to lay her act of indifference aside.

Having sex with Liam was her only way to conceal the truth about the child from everyone.

However, such close contact also posed significant risks for Vivian.

Liam couldn't shake the vague sense that something was off. "Julie" displayed behaviors and lifestyle choices that were starkly different from her previous self. There was a noticeable change in her current way of living and her eating habits.

But Liam's overwhelming guilt for Julie overshadowed his concerns. He attributed her altered behavior to the amnesia that had taken her memories.

Just then, a knock was heard at the door.

Liam's brow furrowed with a hint of annoyance. He had made it clear that he wanted a day of uninterrupted privacy. But despite this, an insistent knock echoed at his door, sparking irritation within him.

He immediately went to open the door. Standing outside was Fiona whose expression was equally grim.

When Liam saw her, his annoyance dissipated, giving way to curiosity. He inquired slowly, "What's the matter? Haven't I made it clear that I want privacy today?"

Fiona didn't respond, but looked into the room. After a brief hesitation, she said, "May I have a word with you? There's something important I need to discuss with you."

Seeing Fiona's serious demeanor, Liam couldn't help but feel a sense of unease.

Could there be members of the Black Spider still alive?

Reluctantly, he stepped out with Fiona. After ensuring their privacy, she said in a bashful tone, "You might want to brace yourself for what I'm about to say."

Liam's frown deepened. "Since when did you become so indecisive? Just say whatever it is."

With utmost seriousness, Fiona continued, "During your absence, nearly every day, a mysterious man entered your room and remained there for more than ten minutes."

In truth, Fiona had been the vigilant observer lurking in the shadows. She had seen all of "Julie's" actions over the past two weeks.

Liam's countenance underwent a rapid change when he heard her words. Fiona had chosen her words carefully, but he grasped what she meant.

Seeing his reaction, Fiona hurriedly added, "I haven't disclosed this to anyone, and I won't. It's a matter only between you and me. You don't need to worry about others finding out."

Despite being a woman, Fiona understood the gravity of infidelity for a man.

She couldn't allow anyone else to become privy to this.
