

An Understated Dominance By Marina Vittori

Chapter 1867

At this moment, a business car is driving.

Lorenzo took out a piece of black cloth, handed it to Dustin Kate, and said with a smile: "General Dustin, the journey is long, so please close your eyes and rest for a while."

"Huh? What do you mean?" Dustin Kate frowned slightly.

"This is our rule. When outsiders go to the secret base, they must first cover their eyes, just in case." Lorenzo explained.

"What? You can't trust me?" Dustin Kate pretended to be dissatisfied.

"General Dustin, don't get me wrong. Everyone is the same. Please forgive me." Lorenzo was neither humble nor overbearing.

"Okay, just blindfold me. I happen to be tired, so I can lie down and rest." Dustin Kate was too lazy to talk nonsense.

He simply closed his eyes and lay down on the seat in a comfortable position.

"Thank you, General Dustin, for your cooperation."

Lorenzo smiled slightly and blindfolded him himself.

Time is passing little by little.

The vehicle drove smoothly at first, but after about an hour, the road suddenly became rough.

The vehicle kept bumping and shaking, making people drowsy.

"General Lorenzo, are we leaving the city?" Dustin Kate asked suddenly.

"Yes." Lorenzo did not hide anything: "For safety reasons, the base was built outside the city. The distance is a little far, but it is hidden enough." "I didn't expect you Dragon Guard Pavilion to be so cautious in doing things." Dustin Kate said .

"Be careful with the Ten Thousand Years Ship. General Dustin will arrive soon if you bear with it." Lorenzo said with a smile.

The car continued to move forward, and the two chatted for a while.

About another stick of incense passed before the vehicle finally stopped.

Only then did Lorenzo untie the black cloth from Dustin Kate's face.

Dustin Kate got out of the car and took a look and found that he was already in a deep valley.

Looking around, there are mountains all around, like dormant giant beasts.

Standing in the valley, Dustin Kate felt as small as an ant.

"That's..."

Dustin Kate looked far away and was quickly attracted by the scene in front of him.

A few hundred meters ahead, there was a city wall tens of meters high.

The city walls are made of reinforced concrete and are so high and thick that even artillery shells cannot penetrate them.

On the city wall, there are more than a dozen guard towers and rows of modern thermal weapons.

Cannons, anti-aircraft guns, heavy machine guns, everything.

Its defense is so tight that it is like a war fortress.

In addition, the city wall spans the middle of the valley and occupies a dangerous terrain. Even thousands of troops and horses cannot attack it.

It wasn't until this moment that Dustin Kate deeply realized how powerful the Dragon Guard Pavilion was.

It is incredible that such a war fortress could be built on the border of West Lucozia and equipped with various heavy weapons without being discovered by outsiders for many years.

If he hadn't seen it with his own eyes, he would never have imagined that the Dragon Protection Pavilion had already laid such a deep foundation in West Lucozia.

"General Dustin, please come with me."

Lorenzo greeted, and then led Dustin Kate forward.

After walking under the city wall and identifying himself, the heavy city gate slowly opened.

Dustin Kate took a closer look. After the city gate was opened, the corridor behind it was about ten meters long.

In other words, the foundation thickness of the city wall is ten meters wide.

Let alone artillery shells, even missiles may not be able to penetrate it.
