

An Understated Dominance By Marina Vittori

Chapter 1872

Ji Yuanzun shouted and quickly ordered his subordinates to bring food and drinks.

The two of them started eating and drinking happily.

...

At this moment, beyond the mountains.

In an ordinary farmer's house.

Dustin and Thorian Rhys were sitting on the kang, drinking tea and waiting for news.

Ever since Dustin Kate was taken away, they had been following him secretly to a place called the Black Gorge Mountains.

The Black Gorge Mountains are very large and vast, and they are also located in the border area.

Half of its area is within the territory of West Lucozia; the other half of its area belongs to the enemy's territory.

Over the years, the two countries have been relatively peaceful. Except for the occasional friction between spies, there have been no obvious conflicts.

Due to the special geographical location of the Heixia Mountains, there are basically no outsiders coming except for a few farmers and hunters who rely on the mountains.

"Brother, it's already past midnight. The signal on Dustin Kate's body has disappeared, and the spies haven't sent back any information. Could something have happened?" Thorian Rhys looked solemn.

"Wait a minute."

Dustin said calmly: "Dustin Kate was poisoned by my poison, so he shouldn't dare to rebel. The reason why the signal was lost may be that the Dragon Protection Pavilion installed many jammers in the Black Gorge Mountains."

"Dong dong dong..."

At this time, a knock on the door suddenly sounded.

Thorian Rhys quickly ran down the pit and opened the wooden door softly.

Standing outside the door was a Grade-A spy from the palace.

"How's it going? Have you got any results from the investigation?" Thorian Rhys asked quickly.

"I just went to the hiding place of No. 3 and No. 4, and found traces of a fight at the scene. As expected, No. 3 and No. 4 should have been arrested." the Class A spy replied.

"Caught? How could this happen? Could it be that Dustin Kate snitched?" Thorian Rhys frowned.

"Dustin Kate doesn't know that we have arranged for spies. Even if he can guess it, he can't determine the spies' whereabouts. The reason why they were discovered is probably because the spies from Dragon Protection Pavilion are more powerful than ours." Dustin thought thoughtfully.

"The spy was caught and Dustin Kate disappeared. Brother, what should we do now?" Thorian Rhys frowned.

Now they are like headless flies, with no clues at all, and they were plotted by the Dragon Guard Pavilion for no reason.

"Add more manpower and continue searching in the direction where the spies disappeared. Remember, be more careful." Dustin ordered.

"Yes!"

the Grade A spy responded and left quickly.

"Thorian, I'm afraid this ambush operation will not go well. I have a letter here. Find a reliable person and send it immediately. There must be no mistakes!"

Dustin took out a letter from his arms handed it to Thorian Rhys.

"No problem, I'll do it right away!"

Thorian Rhys didn't dare to hesitate and immediately stepped out.

"Time is running out, I hope it's not too late."

Dustin squinted his eyes slightly, looking serious and thoughtful.