

An Understated Dominance By Marina Vittori

Chapter 1904 -

Meek's speech attracted many people's attention.

Smart people can see that Thorian Rhys obviously has more supporters, and choosing Thorian Rhys is the wisest choice.

As the think tank of West Lucozia, how could Meek, known as Patrick Jane, go against the grain and support Dustin?

Something is really abnormal.

"Patrick Jane, these words are wrong."

At this time, Rigsby Wayne began to retort: "His Royal Highness's martial arts talent, looking at the entire West Lucozia, is indeed unmatched by anyone, but the position of the prince is not just who can fight. As the second highness, the second highness is both civil and military, has many supporters, and has been sharpened in the military for several years. He is excellent in all aspects. If the second highness becomes the king, West Lucozia will definitely be more glorious!"

Thorian Rhys is the emperor's nephew, and even more so. His future son-in-law, the two parties also made an engagement.

No matter what, he supported Thorian Rhys unconditionally.

Because as long as Thorian Rhys comes to power, his daughter will be the future princess.

His identity has naturally increased with the tide.

"I agree with Patrick Jane's views."

A Black Dragon Army general said: "I admit that His Highness is excellent, but after all, His Highness has been away from West Lucozia for many years and does not know much about the affairs of West Lucozia. His Highness is different. Growing up in West Lucozia, he know everything about personal connections and military and internal affairs, so it is the most suitable choice for His Highness to be the king.” “Yes, that’s right!

Kimball Cho, it is difficult to convince the public, I support His Highness as the king!”

At this moment, some military generals began to choose sides.

No matter how good Dustin is, he has been away for too long and has become very unfamiliar to them.

But Thorian Rhys is different. Although he was not reliable in the past, he has performed extremely well in recent years, and they know the basics.

With Thorian Rhys’s character, once he becomes king, he will definitely not harm their interests.

In the final analysis, for them, the throne is just a choice that weighs the pros and cons.

”His Highness is a great hero with great talent and great strategy. His future achievements will definitely be no less than that of the prince. I believe that most of you here know this. I still choose to support His Highness.” Patrick Jane spoke again.

He supported Dustin, on the one hand, to repay the kindness of the Princess consort, and on the other hand, he sincerely felt that the other party was the most perfect King of West Lucozia.

Compared to Rufus Rhys, who was the best in the world back then, it was even worse.

”I support His Highness the Second Highness!” Rigsby Wayne said loudly.

”I also support His Highness the Second Highness!” the Black Dragon Army Commander followed.

”We all support His Highness!” Dozens of prominent figures began to agree.

Judging from the situation, the support ratio between Dustin and Thorian Rhys was exactly 1 to 9.

"Adam Spanner, what do you think?"

Rufus Rhys still did not express his position, but looked at Adam Spanner who was eating and drinking.

Adam Spanner's 200,000 White Tiger Army had already returned to their base, but he was busy making sneak attacks and planned to spend a few days at the West Lucozia Prince's Mansion.

Now that Rufus Rhys asked like this in public, he was a little confused.

I am having a good meal, and you keep doing this. What do you mean?

Seeing everyone's eyes glancing at him, Adam Spanner wiped his mouth with a tissue and said with a smile: "Your Majesty, I am just an outsider. It is not my turn to talk about the internal affairs of West Lucozia."