

The Wolf's Bride by Coffee's Tea Novel Online

Chapter 921

The sudden voice was so familiar.

Lyra's hand trembled, and she immediately lifted her head.

What met her eyes was a familiar face, a face she had longed for day and night!

“Who do you think you are? Ms. Lyra is the one performing the acupuncture. How dare you try to meddle?” The assistant who was helping Lyra could not hold back and was just about to scold Andrius.

However, Lyra reacted quickly. She immediately inserted the needle into the patient's Shencang acupoint, checked to make sure everything was fine, and then turned around to joyfully approach Andrius.

Her clear crescent-shaped eyes were full of radiance, reflecting Andrius' face as she called out sweetly, “Mr. Wolf King!”

Her voice was clear and melodious.

The Wolf King!

The moment those words were spoken, Artemis Clinic was sent into a frenzy.

“Oh my God, he's the Wolf King!”

“Hahaha, I can't believe I'm witnessing the Wolf King's splendor in the flesh! It was worth coming to Artemis Clinic. I can brag about this for years to come!”

“Gasp—So, he's the Wolf King!”

“No, I need to take a picture and post it online. I can proudly say that I've met the Wolf King, hahaha...”

After the battle with the Western Nation Coalition and ousting the fake emperor in Kiyoto, the Wolf King's prestige had reached an unprecedented level.

With Registus' efforts, there were no longer any 'defamation groups'.

Thus, in the eyes of the ordinary people, Andrius was even more famous than the emperor.

Thus, the reactions of the people in the clinic at this moment were easily understandable.

"W-Wolf King..." The worker from earlier instantly turned pale. His sweat dripped down his face like a storm. "I-I'm sorry. I was short-sighted and offended you..."

Andrius gave the man a casual glance, making him feel like he had fallen into an ice cave.

"The medical world is as vast as the ocean. No one can claim to have mastered all its mysteries without making any mistakes," Andrius spoke calmly.

"Yes, yes, yes!" the person agreed. "I was wrong..."

Andrius did not say anything else.

Lyra looked at the person and made a mental note. Since he dared to be disrespectful to

Chapte

Andrius, she decided that she would dismiss him after today.

"Mr. Wolf King." Lyra withdrew her gaze and looked at Andrius with a smile. "Is there anything you need after coming back from Kiyoto? Just let me know and I'll help."

Andrius went straight to the point. "I need to see your grandfather."

"Okay, I'll go get him right away."

Not long after, Lyra brought Thedus out.

Theodus immediately greeted Andrius, “Andrius, it’s been a long time.”

Andrius was indeed the Wolf King. However, he felt that calling him by name was more intimate.

“It’s been a while.” After exchanging pleasantries, Andrius took out a prescription and went straight to the point. “Dr. Artemis, if you’re not too busy, can you help me prepare some medicine?”

This prescription was something that Andrius found in the ‘Hades’ Axiom’. It was designed for elderly people and had the effect of extending their lifespan. It was much better than the longevity pills he had previously concocted.

It was specifically prepared for Belarus.

“I’m not busy at all!” Theodus shook his head repeatedly and looked at the prescription.

Lyra stepped forward to take a look and offered boldly, “Mr. Wolf King, you can chat with Grandpa. I’ll help to gather the herbs.”

Seeing her enthusiasm, Andrius naturally did not refuse.

“That girl...” Theodus looked at Lyra bouncing around in joy and could not help but smile wryly.

“Dr. Artemis, how is the recent situation in Sumeria?” Andrius casually asked.

“Sumeria...” Theodus said honestly, “Everything is relatively stable. There haven’t been any major incidents since the issue of the disappearances and the epidemic was resolved last time. The previous battles didn’t affect the southern region either, so everything is going well.”

Andrius nodded. He had stayed in Sumeria for quite some time and had gotten attached to the place. He felt much better after hearing this.

“By the way...” Theodus said, “I’ve thoroughly studied the prescriptions you gave me before and used them to treat wounded soldiers and elderly people in the family of the martyrs. They’ve all responded well.

“I’ll continue to check on them and nurture them regularly. As of now, Sumeria should be the best globally in terms of handling these matters.”

Chapter 922

Andrius instantly felt a deep sense of respect.

The care and treatment of injured soldiers and the families of martyrs had always been of utmost importance to him. As a civilian doctor, Thedus had gone above and beyond in this regard.

“Thank you, Thedus!” Andrius bowed slightly toward Thedus. He rarely paid such great respect to others, but Thedus’ actions fully warranted it.

“As a doctor of Sumeria, it’s my duty,” Thedus spoke with a smile, but there was a glint in his old eyes.

The Wolf King in front of him empathized with the people and cared for the soldiers. Few people throughout history could achieve that.

Thedus felt moved by Andrius’ pure heart and rewarded for his efforts over the past few days.

Andrius took something folded out and handed it to him, saying sincerely, “Dr. Artemis, this is something I recently came across by chance. It’s a completely new acupuncture technique. I hope that after you learn it, you can help the masses and alleviate their illnesses.”

This acupuncture technique was also from the Hades’ Axiom and contained profound methods that were beyond words. It was a rare and extraordinary art.

Andrius only trusted passing it on to someone as talented and virtuous as Thedus.

“Thank you!”

Thedus accepted it with a smile, but upon opening it, his expression changed drastically. He was immediately drawn into the profound techniques described in the document, unable to tear his eyes away.

At that moment, Lyra emerged with the prepared medicine. “Mr. Wolf King! Here’s the medicine you requested.”

“Thanks.” Andrius nodded and took the herbs, ready to leave with Kate.

Unbeknownst to him, the simple 'thanks' shattered the gentleness in Lyra's heart.

Just as he turned around, Lyra shouted, "Mr. Wolf King!"

Andrius stopped and asked, "What's wrong, Lyra?"

"I..." Lyra summoned her courage and said, "I learned many new dishes recently. If you have time, remember to visit often. I'll cook for you!"

Andrius was momentarily stunned.

Those words sounded familiar. Lyra had said the same thing not too long ago.

"Sure!"

Andrius did not look at her and simply nodded, then turned and left.

"Mr. Wolf King! I'll always be here waiting for you."

As he reached the door, Lyra's hopeful voice sounded behind him again.

Andrius paused but finally left the clinic with the medicine.

On the road...

"Tsk..." Kate suddenly clicked his tongue and grinned. "I didn't believe it earlier when Noir said flowers bloom wherever you go, but now I do. There really are flowers blooming all over!"

Andrius was instantly speechless but did not know how to refute.

Speaking of which, Lyra was just one of them.

What would Kate's reaction be if she saw Noelle, Halle, and the others?

In Crestfall Manor, Andrius suddenly stopped at the entrance. The trees and flowers were unchanged as if time had stood still.

He could not help but sigh.

As time passed, people changed, but things in the world stayed the same. Andrius was still the same Andrius.

The last time he was here, he was still Luna's husband in name and the son-in-law of the Crestfall family. Now...

It was his first time returning here after the divorce.

"What's wrong? Are you hesitating?" Kate could not help but tease when she saw Andrius' expression.

Andrius did not respond. He withdrew his gaze, took a deep breath, and walked forward.

Thud, thud, thud!

He raised his hand and knocked on the front door of Crestfall Manor.

Chapter 923

Creak...

Before long, the door swung open.

The butler who opened the door froze when he saw Andrius.

"An... Wolf... Sir..." His lips trembled uncontrollably, changing the way of address thrice before finally settling on the last one, which he felt was the most appropriate.

Andrius smiled faintly.

"He's back! Master, Mr. Moonshade is back—"

The butler was suddenly filled with excitement and rushed back into the manor, shouting as he went.

At his words, the entire Crestfall Manor became lively, sizzling like water being poured into a hot pan.

"Andrius! Andrius, you're back! It's good that you've returned—"

The person running at the front was Belarus. He appeared even older than before, but his steps were brisk. When he saw Andrius, he wished he had longer legs. His aged face was beaming with an enthusiasm that could melt the frost of winter.

Harry, Luna, and the other members of the Crestfalls also rushed over.

Luna was concerned that Belarus would fall and assisted him while running with him.

“Grandpa Belarus.”

Seeing this, Andrius also quickly went over. Kate naturally followed behind him.

Luna did not notice Kate at first, but after she did, she paused in shock, and her eyes instantly flickered with a strange glint.

This woman...

She was the Maiden of the Medicine Sect, Kate Klein, the person that Old Hagstorm told her to impersonate.

However, Luna was not the Luna of the past. She thought of her identity and immediately pretended to be calm as if she did not know anything.

Unbeknownst to her, Kate had always been clever and quick-witted. She was very observant and keenly caught the subtle change in Luna's expression earlier. Although she did not know why Luna looked surprised, she still found it strange.

Of course, Kate did not reveal it.

The two women had their own thoughts.

“Husband, you're back.”

Luna did not know what was Kate's relationship with Andrius, but she knew that Andrius had spent time in the Medicine Sect recently. She was certain that there must have been some interaction between him and Kate. Thus, her casual use of the term 'husband' was a form of asserting her status.

Andrius frowned slightly, but in front of the entire Crestfalls and especially in front of Belarus, he could not refuse and simply nodded with a soft hum.

Then, he handed the medicine he was carrying to Belarus. "Grandpa Belarus, this is a tonic I prepared especially for you. Your health will greatly improve after taking it.

"Oh, you..."

Belarus was touched by Andrius' concern for his health. He patted Andrius' shoulder heavily. His eyes were warm as he gestured for Harry to take the medicine.

"How have you been these days?" Belarus asked with concern, "From the war with the Western Nations, the fake emperor's trial, then to the campaign of capturing the fake emperor, it's been one thing after another. Although your contributions have been extraordinary, it must have been very tough on you."

Fortunately, he was unaware of the affairs involving the four great martial families. Otherwise, he would have been even more worried.

Andrius smiled and said, "I'm fine, Grandpa Belarus. In truth, it was the soldiers who did most of the work. I was just overseeing the overall situation at most. The credit should go to the soldiers who lost their lives on the battlefield."

Those were Andrius' heartfelt words.

Belarus stroked his beard and cast a glance at Luna, then said, "Speaking of the soldiers... During this time, Luna has done a lot for the Valiant Institute.

"Not only has she actively communicated with the municipal government to expedite the compensation for the martyr's families, but she also personally visited the Valiant Institute multiple times to provide medical treatment to the injured soldiers.

“In addition, she used her influence to organize several charity drives and donated all the proceeds to the Martyr’s Society.

“Recently, she’s been planning to collaborate with the top medical experts in Sumeria to provide free clinics for the injured soldiers and the families of martyrs within Sumeria.”

Then, he summed up with emotion, “Luna has put in a lot of effort for all these!”

As he spoke, he did not forget to look at Andrius and observe his reaction.

Belarus had always held Andrius in high regard and did not forget his attempts to bring him and Luna together. Now, by mentioning these things, he hoped that Andrius would be moved by Luna’s efforts and reconsider his stance.

Andrius was genuinely touched by what he heard and said solemnly, “Luna, I want to express my sincere gratitude to you on behalf of the countless soldiers of Florence!”

The faces of the Crestfalls darkened slightly.

Andrius was still distant. If he considered them part of his family, why would he need to thank them?

Belarus and Luna also looked disappointed.

Chapter 924

“Well...”

Seeing this, Harry quickly chuckled and said, “Andrius, you must be tired after coming all the way from Kiyoto. Take a seat for a while. I’ll personally cook some of my best dishes, and we can catch up properly!”

Before this, Andrius was sentenced by the fake emperor, and Harry avoided him out of fear that the Crestfalls would be implicated and destroyed.

However, Andrius exposed the fake emperor’s conspiracy, led his troops east, defeated the fake emperor, and restored the real emperor to the throne.

The Northern, Central, and Eastern Warzones were all under the control of the Lycantroops. It could be said that Andrius had incredible power and influence. If he wished, he could mobilize millions of soldiers and change the fate of Florence with just a simple command.

That status and power tempted Harry again. He wanted to win Andrius over.

At that time, the Crestfalls would become the top family in Florence. Nothing would be impossible for them.

How could Harry resist such prospects and temptation?

“That’s right!” Roxy immediately chimed in, “Brother-in-law, since you’re here, let’s have a meal together. Grandpa was just talking about you yesterday.”

“Andrius, you know don’t know this, but since you left the Crestfalls, Master Crestfall hasn’t been eating well. It’s all because he misses you!”

“Andrius, since you’re here, why don’t you have a drink with Master Crestfall? You don’t want to keep him waiting day after day, only to be disappointed again, right?”

“Andrius...”

The Crestfalls kept persuading Andrius, not giving him a chance to refuse.

Andrius sighed in exasperation.

“Then, it’s settled!” Harry thought that Andrius was agreeing and immediately organized everyone from the Crestfalls.

In an instant, the manor became bustling with activity.

Everyone was busy, and Andrius wandered around the manor alone.

In the garden was a small stone table. This was where Andrius used to play chess with Belarus.

Now, he had returned to this place.

Andrius paused and rested his right hand on the stone table, his fingers gently caressing it as he recalled the joyful moments with Belarus.

Kate and Luna were behind him.

Luna was silent for a while before finally asking, "Andrius, have you been doing well lately? Have you encountered any troubles?"

Luna knew that Andrius fell into the hands of the Swallows and was forced to search for the Klein family's treasure. He must have gone through many thrilling experiences during this time. She wanted Andrius to share those experiences with her instead of staying quiet.

However, Andrius was used to dealing with his own problems, so in response to Luna's question, he simply said, "I've been fine."

Fine?

Luna smiled bitterly.

The gap between them had grown wider.

Andrius glanced upstairs and withdrew his gaze, then said to Luna, "By the way, I have some matters to attend to, so I won't have dinner here."

Luna was speechless. Her eyes dimmed even further.

However, this time, she surprisingly behaved obediently. "Since you have something important to do, then go ahead."

Andrius nodded and headed toward the door.

Kate and Luna followed silently.

Right as Andrius was about to step out of the door, Luna could not hold back any longer and shouted loudly, "Andrius, are you really leaving now?"

"Can't you... give me another chance?"

Chapter 925

Andrius paused for a moment and turned his body slightly. “The chance you’re talking about is just an entrance to an abyss. I’m doing this for your own good.”

Then, he left without looking back.

“Oh, no!”

Harry, who had been working in the kitchen, glanced outside and saw Andrius leaving. He immediately sensed that something was wrong. He put down the knife he was holding and rushed out.

Everyone else followed.

Seeing Andrius’ disappearing figure, Harry sighed and complained, “Luna! Why didn’t you keep Andrius here?”

“That’s right, Luna!”

“Luna, why did you let him go?”

“Luna...”

The group of people questioned Luna.

Luna looked at the distant figure and shook her head. “His heart is no longer here. Even if we forced him to stay, it would be meaningless.”

After saying that, she could hold back her inner sense of loss and desolation. A tear instantly welled up in her clear eyes.

Harry, Roxy, and the others were also filled with disappointment.

Belarus sighed and said, “Let’s all go back. I believe that Andrius will come to visit me again.”

Harry and the others gradually dispersed.

“Grandpa...” Luna suddenly said with determination, “One day, I’ll bring Andrius back!”

Belarus was slightly surprised to hear this.

Luna's voice was not loud, but it carried a unique sense of certainty as if she had everything under control.

Luna did not explain further.

Then, the two returned to the manor.

On the other side, on the way to the military airport.

Kate suddenly broke the silence. "Andrius, when Ms. Crestfall saw you, her eyes sparkled with genuine feelings. It didn't seem like an act. Moreover, she's exceptional in terms of appearance and figure...

"Do you really have no feelings for her? Are you really so heartless to reject her?"

Andrius fell into deep thought and recalled his past experiences with Luna.

Chapter

2/2

Although Luna was arrogant and self-righteous, she had a kind heart and was willing to admit her mistakes. Overall, she could be described as virtuous and outstanding.

She had been helpful to him before he revealed his identity, and she had done what was right. She even provided him with a substantial sum of money when they parted ways.

To say that there were no feelings between them was impossible. After all, they had lived under the same roof for several months and shared the same bed on many occasions.

However, the chess game he was currently entangled in was much deeper and wider reaching than before.

If he brought Luna and the Crestfalls into it, it would not lead to anything good.

While Andrius was deep in thought, the car arrived at the military airport.

“Andrius!”

As soon as he got out of the car, someone approached him. It was the Southern Warzone Master, Dax. It seemed he had been waiting here for quite some time.

“You brat...”

Dax recalled Andrius’ recent actions with the Lycantroops and could not help but shake his head with a laugh. He punched Andrius’ chest and said, “You’ve really done something big this time. You actually dared to rebel against the fake emperor!”

Andrius smiled and said faintly, “The fake emperor has been causing trouble in Florence for a long time. He’s like a malignant tumor. As the Wolf King, it’s my responsibility and duty to eliminate this tumor and bring sunny days back to Florence.”

Dax was still amazed.

Yes, with Andrius’ strength alone, he successfully defeated the coalition forces of the Northern, Central, and Eastern Warzones, and even pursued and killed the fake emperor.

Such an impressive feat had never been seen before!

Andrius thought of Conrad and asked, “Dax, how is Conrad’s daughter, Vivian, doing now?”