Chapter 1576 The Other Victims Are Found

Frank locked the door and looked at Brandon hesitantly after sending the doctors away.

Brandon was sitting tiredly on the sofa as he rubbed between his eyebrows.

He noticed that Frank wanted to say something but had decided not to. Feeling annoyed, Brandon asked, "What do you want to say? Just say it."

Walking to the computer, Frank retrieved a document and projected it on the big screen. "The doctor reminded me of several other similar cases. These patients were sick after overdosing on unknown medication. One of the patients was experiencing multiple organ failure due to different drug side effects. Now she is relying on a ventilator to sustain her breathing."

Brandon opened his eyes abruptly and scanned through the patient's information. He frowned and asked, "What about the other patients? How are they now?"

Frank retrieved the patients' information one by one and said solemnly, "Apart from the patient I just mentioned, most of them were gone. The only surviving patient is in a coma, as mentioned by the young doctor earlier."

Brandon felt a chill down his spine, and his face became more and more solemn. "What is the meaning of this? Do these people have anything to do with Janet's condition?"

Frank hesitated and nodded. "They appear to attend the same middle school as Jeremy's sister. I looked into their past and found that they were arrogant and overbearing in school. Often bullying the weak. They might have..." he said and trailed off.

Remembering the bullying Jeremy's sister suffered on campus before her death, Brandon narrowed his eyes and continued, "They might have bullied Jeremy's sister? Were they responsible for his sister's death in any way?"

"Yes, they might be," Frank replied, nodding again.

Brandon clenched his fists and said through gritted teeth, "It's him again!"

Frank felt a lingering fear when he thought how sinister and treacherous Jeremy was.

Jeremy was a madman. He could sacrifice his own life to avenge his sister. People would find it difficult to get rid of such entanglement with a madman like him!

After a moment of silence, Frank sighed and asked, "Brandon, what should we do now? It's obvious that Jeremy enjoys seeing you suffer the pain of losing Janet."

Trying his best to suppress his anger, Brandon pondered for a moment and said gravely, "Bring the two surviving patients to your hospital. Say that it is part of your public service program, and treat them while examining the drugs in Jeremy's lab. If you are lucky enough to find a cure for them, then Janet can also be healed."

"I guess that's the only way," Frank agreed. He patted Brandon on the shoulder and added, "Don't worry. I'll find a way to cure Janet."

Brandon closed his eyes in exhaustion. His voice was a little hoarse due to the lack of sleep. "Prepare for it as soon as possible. You can ask the Larson Group to reimburse the treatment fees for the other patients," he said.

Having been friends with Brandon for a long time, it was rare for Frank to see him so depressed. "Don't worry. Janet is just like any other healthy person now. Even if we can't find a cure for her, she may be lucky enough to maintain her bodily functions her entire life."

"Hopefully..." Brandon murmured. He took a deep breath as he felt it hard to breathe. The thought of losing Janet was too painful for him. "You know, I won't allow anything to happen to Janet, even if there is only a 1/10000 chance," he said softly.

Frank understood what was on Brandon's mind. He could tell that Brandon loved Janet more than his own life. After comforting him for a while, Frank asked him to return to Janet's side.

After exiting Frank's office, Brandon adjusted his mood and went to the lounge next door.

When he saw Janet chatting happily with the nurse, he couldn't help but smile dotingly. "Janet, let's go home," he said as he waved at her.