

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2874-Every once in a while, the Sky Demons would attack from the extraterritorial battlefield, and Blaze and others would naturally let them in.

Therefore, the extraterritorial battlefield became the place where the two sides fought.

The Sky Demons had a three-pronged approach.

Although the Metaverse tried every means, it could not escape being slowly weakened.

As of today, the Metaverse housed less than a hundred Origin Realm Almighty, some of whom were nursing serious injuries.

The dozen or so Almighty currently with David had returned to the Metaverse for recovery after sustaining injuries in battles against the Sky Demons on the extraterritorial battlefield.

Once they recovered, they would replace the injured ones on the battlefield.

Only by maintaining such a cycle could they ensure that the creatures in the Metaverse could live and work in peace and contentment.

However, this was not a long-term solution.

Without new Almighty joining, these old Almighty would be exhausted by the Sky Demons sooner or later. Who would protect the Metaverse then?

Once the Sky Demons entered the Metaverse, it would not take long for the Metaverse to be completely occupied.

As for why one must be in Origin Realm to be qualified to know the secrets of the extraterritorial battlefield and the Sky Demons, it was simple.

Only Origin Power could harm the Sky Demons.

Partial Almighty also had a little Origin Power, but unfortunately, it was too little to threaten the Sky Demons. Therefore, forcing them to fight the Sky Demons would only lead to death.

After listening to Blaze's explanation, David became restless.

He could not imagine that less than a hundred Almightyies barely supported the Metaverse. The Metaverse was such a large area, with countless civilizations, countless living planets and continents, and countless races and creatures.

If they were defeated on the extraterritorial battlefield, the Metaverse would crumble.

At the same time, David was also in awe of these selfless Almightyies.

Perhaps a very few of them were forced to do so as there was no other choice.

After all, there was no way to leave the Metaverse. When one fell in disgrace, the whole universe was doomed, so only by rising to resist could there be a chance.

However, David believed that most of the Almightyies wanted to protect their homes from invasion, even if it meant sacrificing themselves.

While David was deep in thought, Blaze asked, "David, what do you think after listening to this?"

"I feel sad," David replied honestly.

'That's right, we feel sad as well, but we can't do anything. As Origin Realm Almightyies, this is the responsibility we should bear. Otherwise, what can we do? Should we ask those partial Almightyies or Overlords to come to the extraterritorial battlefield? The Sky Demons will kill them instantly when they show their faces. Only we can pose a threat to the Sky Demons and prevent them from being too presumptuous,' Blaze sighed.

"Blaze, now that we're here at the extraterritorial battlefield, will we run into the Sky Demons?" David asked.

He wanted to see what kind of race the Sky Demons were since only Origin Realm Almightyies could pose a threat to them.

'You might see a dead one. The Sky Demons' attack is unpredictable. Generally speaking, a small-scale attack can occur once every few hundred years, and a large-scale attack can occur once every tens of thousands or even hundreds of thousands of years. It's been a long time since the Sky

Demons last attacked less than three hundred years—so they will definitely not come again in a short period.

We all were seriously injured in the last war, so we were replaced to recuperate.

However, you can see the corpses since you can't see one that's alive. Every time the Sky Demons attack, they will surely leave some corpses behind," Blaze explained.

"I see. I understand now! Thank you for everything you have done for the Metaverse. Without you all, the Metaverse would have ceased to exist."

"David, you don't need to thank us. The Metaverse is your home and also our home. We are willing to fight to protect our home, and we will not have any regrets. I hope you can also do your best to protect the Metaverse in the future."

"Please don't worry! Just ask if you need me as it is my duty to fight for my homeland," David said solemnly.

"Okay! Hahaha! There is indeed no coward in our Metaverse! David, since you can still break through to Origin Realm under the blockade of the curse, you must have some special means. I hope you can surprise us the next time the Sky Demons arrive."

"Certainly!"

In fact, David wanted to meet a live Sky Demon now and see what those guys were capable of.

Although he had just entered Origin Realm, anyone who treated him as a newcomer would be sorely mistaken.

The next time the Sky Demons invaded, David would surely shock everyone.