

Chapter 894 Go And Save His Son

Julie only regained her composure after Nolan escorted Klein away.

Seizing Liam's hand, she asked in astonishment, "Liam, are you the five-star general? Are you the big shot who reserved the Dragon Manor for Asher? Why did you keep it a secret from me?"

Liam had already anticipated that Julie would pose these questions once his identity was revealed.

However, he couldn't disclose any details about the Salvation Society to anyone.

Luckily, he had already thought of a response, so he explained, "After I got into trouble back then, I received training from a highly skilled man who taught me how to fight. Additionally, my body fully recovered during that period. I just hadn't found the right moment to share this with you, Julie. After all, even if I had told you, you wouldn't have believed me."

Julie nodded in agreement, then inquired, "Have you discovered Asher's whereabouts?"

Liam reassured her, saying, "Don't worry. I'm already utilizing all my connections to determine his location. We will find our Asher soon!"

As Liam was speaking, his phone suddenly rang.

Upon retrieving it, he glanced at it, and his expression swiftly darkened.

Observing the change in Liam's expression, Julie took a look at the message.

It was from an unknown number, simply stating, "Come to Deepcastle Bay with all the money you have to save your son!"

Liam and Julie exchanged glances, both wearing somber expressions.

After reviewing the message, Liam contemplated for

Liam and Julie exchanged glances, both wearing somber expressions.

After reviewing the message, Liam contemplated for a moment. Suddenly, he furrowed his brow and said, "They kidnapped Asher just for all my money? It appears they are unaware of my true identity. I suspect that Doyle and Niko are behind this, Julie! They're likely to be the kidnappers!"

After all, the only people he had offended recently were Niko and Doyle. They were the only people who were aware that he had acquired thirty million not too long ago.

Upon hearing Liam's remarks, Julie snapped to attention and said, "It's very possible! Niko is probably unwilling to part with the thirty million, so they're attempting to retrieve the money through this scheme!"

Liam sneered, "Returning the thirty million is out of the question! Furthermore, they've summoned me to Deepcastle Bay, a port surrounded by water. After killing someone there, they could easily evade detection by fastening the corpse with stones and dropping it into the sea! It looks like they have no intention of sparing my life!"

In his heart, Liam had already passed a death sentence on the Williams family.

He then instructed the SWAT team, "Guys, notify the police to send reinforcements to Deepcastle Bay. On the surface, make it appear that I'm going there alone."

Shortly after, Liam arrived at the harbor of Deepcastle Bay seemingly by himself.

He had asked Julie to follow the SWAT team in order to guarantee her personal safety.

Liam raised a hand and gently touched his ear,

instantly activating the micro earphone nestled inside
it. He whispered, "Carsen, when I get there, create a diversion. Seize the opportunity to rescue Asher first.
Let me know when you've secured him."

Shortly after, Carsen's response echoed through the earphone.

Liam felt a slight sense of relief. With Carsen present, the likelihood of there being a mishap during the operation to rescue Asher was significantly minimized.

Then, holding a large bag of cash, Liam positioned himself in the most conspicuous spot in Deepcastle Bay, signaling to the other party that he had arrived as agreed.

Not too long after, several bodyguards came over and took Liam to a large, airtight container.

Inside the container, Liam saw Doyle.

Just as he had suspected, Doyle had been the mastermind behind Asher's kidnapping.

Even Lori and her father were present.

Seated in the center of the container with his legs crossed, Doyle exuded an air of confidence.

"Didn't see that coming, did you? I'm the one who kidnapped that bastard, Asher! Why don't you try to play tough now, Liam?" Doyle said.

Liam remained silent, his eyes scanning the Doyle sneered, "It's no small feat to take my money! You'd better hand it over now! Give it back!"

In order to maintain his facade and not arouse Doyle's suspicion, Liam feigned concern and anger.

He tossed over the large bag of cash and said, "There you go. Now, where's Asher?"
