

Chapter 899 Flatter Kingland Group

The task Liam had left for them wasn't particularly challenging, yet Tristan and Bowen approached it with a steadfast readiness to put in the effort.

It marked their first significant assignment since fully siding with Liam. They were determined to complete the task with excellence.

That night, Tristan exerted his influence decisively, announcing a comprehensive ban on the Williams and Ortiz families in Salem.

In a mere hour, all suppliers associated with the Ortiz family severed ties, while supermarkets affiliated with them fell victim to forced entry, their goods promptly seized.

Similarly, Tristan dealt a severe blow to the Williams family, defacing their central building and dismantling their primary business operations. The Williams family found themselves powerless to salvage their situation.

After that, the Williams family's condition only got worse until it completely became an Bowen mobilized a considerable police force.

All members of the Wolf Gang had been doomed!

Some members, in a futile attempt to resist, died at the hands of the SWAT team, while the rest surrendered and were swiftly apprehended.

The demise of the Wolf Gang sent shockwaves through Salem, marking a significant upheaval.

Within the halls of the Williams family, a scene of distress unfolded.

Niko knelt on the floor, enduring the relentless blows from Derek, a frail and enraged old man clutching a long stick.

Derek's visage bore a grim and ferocious expression amidst fits of coughing, his condition visibly deteriorating.

Derek cursed, "Damn it, you stupid son, Niko! If you and that Doyle brat hadn't provoked the Red Murray Group, the Williams family wouldn't be in this mess! Your worthless son belongs in jail! You two deserve to die!"

Derek's enraged tirade echoed through the hall as he continued to strike Niko with the stick, leaving him unable to retaliate, only enduring the tormenting blows.

Simultaneously, Niko grappled not only with the excruciating pain inflicted by the blows but also with deep worry.

Did Liam's connection with General Carsen have something to do with the recent mishaps involving Asher's abduction and the subsequent troubles faced by those responsible?

Within the Williams family hall, an air of impending collapse enveloped them all. They were acutely aware that the downfall of the Williams family had been orchestrated by the powerful five-star general.

Trembling voices rose from within the family's ranks, expressing a sense of despair.

"This is truly the end for us!"

"Yes! How can our family possibly survive if we've offended General Carsen?"

Amidst the turmoil, Derek's gaze remained profound.

Unlike the younger generation, he comprehended Salem's dynamics.

Besides, he had connections to the Kingland Group.

Derek had once arranged and sent beautiful women to Benedict Hoffman, the son of Gallagher Hoffman, who currently chaired the Kingland Group.

Recalling this history, Derek muttered to himself, "It seems we have no choice but to seek aid from the Kingland Group. Without their assistance, the Williams family stands no chance of survival."

Having resolved to take action, Derek turned to his juniors beside him and commanded, "Go and prepare the gifts! We must approach the Hoffman family in Salem immediately to implore their support."
