The following morning, after personally seeing Asher off to school, Liam returned home alone.

Ever since Asher's harrowing kidnapping incident, Liam had prioritized Asher's safety.

He had covertly arranged for the military to provide discreet protection for Asher, monitoring the details of his daily life, including his lunch choices.

Upon arriving home, Liam was pleasantly surprised to discover that the bottleneck he had been grappling with since departing from Genesis Island was on the verge of dissipating.

It hinted at an imminent breakthrough.

Overjoyed, Liam swiftly retrieved his primogem and meticulously absorbed the energy within.

Several hours passed, and Liam's phone rang persistently, failing to rouse him.

Suddenly, his eyelids flickered, and in a burst of energy, he let out a shout. The energy surrounding him surged violently.

In the blink of an eye, Liam ascended from the third division of the fifth rank to the fourth division.

Slowly, Liam opened his eyes. A sense of power surged through him, feeling the strength of a Primogem Warrior in the fourth division of the fifth rank. It felt as though he could effortlessly lift a train now!

Liam hadn't anticipated this breakthrough, especially considering the formidable challenge faced by Primogem Warriors attempting to advance after reaching the fifth rank.

Theoretically, the sixth rank marked the physical limit for Primogem Warriors. Reaching the sixth rank necessitated unique methods to unlock special powers.

The abilities granted upon reaching the sixth rank were a crucial catalyst for progress in cultivation.

Now aware of his enhanced power, Liam felt a newfound confidence in his abilities and contemplated his next steps.

Reflecting on his grandfather, Liam clenched his fists and whispered, "Grandpa, I will fulfill your wish and restore our family to greatness!"

Taking a deep breath to compose himself, Liam picked up his phone and noticed the missed calls and messages from Julie and Watkins.

As he checked the messages, his expression

Trouble was brewing at Pearl's factory.

A group of individuals had initiated a riot, causing chaos and disruption.

Anger flashed in Liam's eyes as he absorbed the gravity of the situation.

He wouldn't let those responsible escape the consequences.

He swiftly made his way to the factory.

Upon arrival, he discovered that Baxter, Kendrick, and their gang were instigating chaos.

The construction work had ground to a halt due to the riot.

The injured workers lay on the ground, their cries of pain echoing.

Much of the equipment had suffered severe damage at the hands of the assailants.

Backed by a group of individuals, Baxter stood arrogantly at the factory entrance, wielding an expandable baton in one hand and a horn in the other.

His voice echoed through the area as he bellowed, "Julie, come out now! Your precious factory will remain in ruins if you don't show yourself!"

Julie and Watkins swiftly arrived on the scene, realizing the gravity of the situation upon seeing Baxter.

Anguish and fury contorted Julie's face as she surveyed the injured workers.

She scolded, "Baxter! What in the world do you think you're doing? You're breaking the law!"

A suggestive smile crept across Baxter's face as he locked eyes with Julie. "What do I want? Well, bitch, I'm here to get even with you!"
