

Chapter 952 Do You Regret Now

Benedict's heart pounded as he heard Liam's words.

Yet, he remained unconvinced, responding with stubborn defiance, "Liam, don't be so full of yourself! You've left the Hoffman family. The family has nothing to do with you now! Sure, you're a five-star general, but how much power can you have without the Hoffman family's backing? What can you possibly do to us? I admit we've been beaten this time. But mark my words, the Hoffman family will have its revenge. Just you wait!"

Benedict looked around, expecting support from the others. To his surprise, the others began to criticize him instead.

"The Hoffman family is nothing compared to Liam. What you said is absurd!"

"Who do you think you are? A five-star general is formidable!"

"And you, just a Hoffman family member, do you really think you speak for all of them? General Hoffman is the family's true gem!"

As the guests voiced their complaints, Benedict's face turned red with anger. He pointed at them, cursing furiously, "Just you wait. One day you'll all kneel and beg for my mercy!"

Benedict and Gallagher had lost their influence, so no one took Benedict seriously anymore.

Carsen had already detained Dotson and was returning to Earth Star when he heard Benedict's outburst.

With a chilling smile, Carsen approached Benedict, grabbed him by the neck, and lifted him up. His voice was icy as he spoke.

"I've had enough of you! You can't even see the reality of the situation. Dare to defy General Liam like this, and I'll make you regret it!"

With that, Carsen's hand struck Benedict's face with a sharp smack. He didn't care if Benedict could withstand it or not.

The sound of the slap echoed in the banquet hall, leaving Benedict's face swollen.

But Carsen didn't stop. He continued to strike, each blow weakening Benedict.

Having lived a pampered life, Benedict's body couldn't take much. Soon, he was nearly unconscious, gasping for air under Carsen's relentless assault.

Liam raised his hand, signaling Carsen to halt his next blow to Benedict.

"These two, Benedict and Gallagher, are the Hoffman family's betrayers. Their trial hasn't started yet. Let them live for now."

Upon hearing Liam's words, Carsen ceased his assault, leaving Benedict collapsed to the floor.

Gazing at the pitiful sight of Benedict, Liam spoke in a stern tone. "Once I regain control of the entire Hoffman family, you and your kind will suffer. You'll endure ten days exposed to the sun at Grandpa's grave! The pain you'll feel will be just recompense for your misdeeds!"

As Liam concluded, the guests around him started to support his sentiment.

"General Hoffman, your determination is commendable. Achieving this goal is certain for you! Mr. Sergio Hoffman would be proud to know of your devotion!"

Gallagher, who had been quiet, felt a surge of fear upon hearing Liam's plan.

He no longer underestimated Liam. Instead, he attempted to flatter him. "Liam, it's wonderful to see your achievements. There have been misunderstandings between us. Remember, I am your uncle. From now on, Benedict and I will assist you in Salem. We'll back your bid to reclaim the Hoffman family! Honestly, I've always felt Leandro isn't fit to lead. You, Liam, are the only one worthy to head our family!"

Liam looked at Gallagher with a scornful smile.

"Gallagher, do you really think you deserve the title of 'uncle' after your actions? Had you shown me this respect when I visited Kingland Group, perhaps you'd have a chance to live. But it's too late for apologies now! I will take back Kingland Group and the Hoffman family on my own terms!"