

Chapter 1024 They're Gone

Liam and Julie were deeply engrossed in each other's embrace, showering each other with passionate kisses and touching each other's bodies.

Outside the room, Shayla stood with a mischievous grin, anticipating the moment to disrupt them when they reached their orgasm.

As Shayla envisioned Liam and Julie's intimate moment, her cheeks flushed crimson, and she whispered to herself, "If Liam tells me to join them... I might just accept! Who needs to be standing outside like a lonely widow anyway!"

Right when Liam and Julie were getting intimate and Shayla was about to barge in to interrupt the progress of the two, Liam's phone suddenly rang.

The romantic moment between Liam and Julie was abruptly halted by the unexpected call. Liam's expression soured, and he had no intention of continuing to have sex now.

Once he and Julie were decently clothed, Liam answered his phone.

It was Bowen, the governor of Salem, on the line.

Bowen's call was unusual, leaving Liam with a sense of unease. Something serious must have happened in Salem!

Despite his apprehension, Liam answered the call. His anxiety grew as he heard the fear in Bowen's voice on the other end of the line.

"General Hoffman... The Sky Orchid Garden was attacked by some unknown group. Your mother-in-law and Carsen both met a tragic end in the Sky Orchid Garden! I have no idea where Asher is. They likely took him!"

Liam's body trembled involuntarily upon hearing these words.

Yesenia and Carsen were dead, and Asher was missing.

Despite the shock, Liam managed to compose himself and asked urgently, "When did this happen?"

Bowen's voice still trembled with panic as he hurriedly responded, "It happened this afternoon. The intruders were incredibly strong. There is barely any sign of resistance at the Sky Orchid Garden! General Hoffman, it seems like your enemies are seeking revenge on you..."

Liam's expression turned grim.

Seeing that Liam was answering the phone, Julie nudged Liam with her foot, as if urging him to hang up the phone and continue what they had been doing.

However, Liam was not in the mood now. He waved his hand in frustration, his face contorted with anger.

Observing Liam's gesture, Julie approached him cautiously. As she moved closer, she noticed the grimness etched on his face.

Julie's heart raced with apprehension.

It dawned on her that something bad had happened.

Rarely did Liam reveal such a demeanor in her presence.

Julie's heart plummeted as she sensed the gravity of the situation. Even the playfulness vanished from her eyes. With a quivering voice, she questioned, "Liam... What happened?"

Observing the dread in Julie's expression, Liam realized she had sensed the severity of the situation.

After a pause, Liam revealed the news. "Something bad happened in Salem. Asher has been abducted, and your mother and Carsen... They're gone."

Julie's complexion drained of color upon hearing this. Refusing to believe the grim reality, Julie's voice stiffened as she inquired, "Gone? What do you mean?"

Seeing Julie's reaction, Liam felt a pang of distress. He clenched his jaw and declared, "They were murdered! Townsend must have orchestrated it! Julie, don't worry. I'll confront him immediately! He will face the consequences for his actions!"
