

Chapter 1052 The Situation Of Saint Society

Maureen provided Liam with an overview of the intricate power dynamics within the Saint Society.

"The internal dynamics of the Saint Society are intricate, comprised of numerous factions. While I am a member of the Saint Society, my knowledge is limited. However, I can inform you that the guardians are the most prominent figures currently active within the Saint Society."

After a pause, she continued, "A guardian has the authority to establish their own faction within the society. Both Adamson and my master hold the position of guardians. Beyond the guardianship lies the masters of the Saint Society, although I have never personally encountered them. As for whether there are figures of higher authority, I cannot say."

Liam absorbed this information before inquiring further, "What about those below the guardians?"

Maureen's gaze met Liam's as she explained, "Below the guardians, you'll find stewards and ordinary members. I hold the position of vice steward within the Saint Society. Typically, stewards all have attained the 6th level of mastery. My presence in Pleeyson is to vie for control over the primogem mineral vein left behind by its previous owner. You've arrived at an

Given Liam's trust in Maureen, knowing her true identity as Sarai, Liam readily agreed without hesitation.

Though Maureen's knowledge of the Saint Society was limited, Liam valued her insights, having gleaned valuable information from her.

That evening, Maureen arranged for Liam and Laura to rest at her residence.

In the early hours of the next day, under Maureen's guidance, Liam and Laura joined the group preparing to depart.

Most members of the team greeted them politely, acknowledging their presence as guests of Maureen.

However, some individuals regarded them with disdain, leveraging their connections with Maureen to secure their positions within the group. These individuals, with privileged backgrounds, paid little attention to Liam and Laura.

One man, struck by Laura's refined demeanor, couldn't resist approaching her, his eyes filled with desire as he attempted to initiate a conversation.

Laura, usually quick to rebuke such advances, suppressed her irritation, recognizing the necessity of their mission to infiltrate the Saint Society.

As the man focused his attention on Laura, murmurs spread among the other members, expressing concern for Laura.

"Oh dear, if she becomes his target, she's in for a rough time."

However, not everyone agreed with the assumption that Laura would suffer under the man's attention.

"That may not be true! Look at them. Maureen has brought them here personally. She might protect them due to their connection!"

Also considering this possibility, the man put on his best friendly demeanor and approached Laura and Liam with a smile.

"I noticed you two were brought here by Maureen. Are you acquainted with her?" he inquired politely.

Not adept at navigating such situations, Laura was inclined to answer the question openly.

Sensing her naivety, Liam intervened by gently patting her shoulder before she could answer, signaling her to exercise caution.

Then, Liam said, "We're just newcomers, not particularly acquainted with Maureen. Is there anything you want from us?"
