

Chapter 1071 Begin The Journey

As time went by, all those eager to explore the maritime secret realm gathered at Mount Moria.

Then, Mr. Jenkins made his entrance.

His arrival silenced the bustling crowd instantly. All eyes turned to him with profound reverence.

Mr. Jenkins gazed at the assembled crowd and spoke. "Twenty individuals here will embark on the journey to explore the maritime secret realm this time. Among them, two sixth-tier Primogem Warriors stand out. I will designate them as team leaders, each leading a team of ten individuals. Now, let's set off! Today, we'll head to the forbidden beach first, and tomorrow morning, we'll venture into the maritime secret realm!"

Of course, Liam wasn't among the two sixth-tier Primogem Warriors selected. After all, his identity couldn't risk being exposed. Therefore, in reality, there were three sixth-tier Primogem Warriors among these people.

A collective nod rippled through the group, a silent affirmation echoing their shared determination.

As the schedule was set, Mr. Jenkins unveiled a mechanical device.

As confusion swept through the crowd, Mr. Jenkins introduced, "This mechanical device is called an aircraft. It requires primogems to power its flight."

Upon hearing this, astonishment spread among the crowd.

Had it not been for Mr. Jenkins' explanation, they wouldn't have fathomed the existence of a mechanical device with such capabilities!

Mr. Jenkins continued, "This is a prized treasure within our the Saint Society. It will be reclaimed once our mission is complete."

Liam had already acquired this information from Mr. Jenkins beforehand.

On Earth, there was no established system for the research and development of aircrafts. But in other civilizations, individuals who developed and utilized primogems were revered as Primogem Masters.

Their status far surpassed that of the Primogem Warriors!

Indeed, ordinary Primogem Warriors paled in comparison to their prowess in research and development.

After introducing the aircraft, Jenkins proceeded to divide the participants into groups.

Liam and Laura were assigned to the leader Leif Reed by Mr. Jenkins.

Leif wisely held off on giving the order to depart until everyone had grown accustomed to controlling the aircraft, ensuring a smooth and safe journey ahead.

With each member now proficient in aircraft control, they embarked on their journey, soaring towards the outskirts of the forbidden beach.

Upon their arrival, Leif abruptly signaled for everyone to halt and descend to the ground.

"Put away the aircraft!" he commanded. "The forbidden beach harbors a dreadfully potent gravitational magnetic field. It will diminish our special powers and hinder our abilities as Primogem Warriors. For safety's sake, we'll proceed to the coastline on foot."

Upon hearing Leif's words, the group reluctantly stowed away their aircraft and commenced their journey on foot.

Despite being close to their destination, walking became extremely challenging due to the extraordinary gravitational magnetic field. It was difficult for those with lower strength to even lift their feet.

Fortunately, Liam's mastery of the earth element afforded him greater resilience against the field's effects, allowing him to navigate more freely. Nevertheless, to avoid revealing his true strength, Liam maintained the facade of struggling to walk, concealing his abilities from the rest of the group.

As dusk settled in, Leif's team finally neared the coastline of the forbidden beach.

With the exception of the two team leaders, the sixth-tier Primogem Warriors, the rest of the group was thoroughly exhausted. They collapsed to the ground, seeking much-needed rest. Liam, too, took the opportunity to regulate his breathing, feigning exhaustion to maintain his guise.

Meanwhile, Laura was genuinely exhausted, her body drenched in sweat, her face bearing the unmistakable signs of fatigue.

She wrinkled her nose playfully and approached Liam with a hint of flirtation. "Come on, give me a massage."

Laura's reliance on Liam had grown steadily since their recent acquaintance.

Liam acknowledged this change in their dynamic, offering her a warm smile as he prepared to give her the massage she requested.

However, at that moment, Briggs approached with a mixture of flattery and concern evident in his expression. With a tender tone, he said to Laura, "Zoya, allow me to give you a massage!"