Shayla's condition was stable for now, offering Liam more breathing room. Moreover, the maritime secret realm held many possibilities. The Universe Crystal Dew might not be the only solution.

Just as Liam contemplated alternative approaches, a sudden burst of purple light erupted in the sky.

It spread rapidly, engulfing the entire realm in an unsettling purple glow.

Liam furrowed his brow. This purple aura felt strangely familiar.

Simultaneously, the purple dots on his neck pulsed brightly, its color deepening under Laura's watchful gaze.

Liam also noticed the change himself, instantly recognizing the source of the purple aura: the Zephyr Ape!

"Could the Zephyr Ape be on the verge of a level seven breakthrough?" Liam murmured, surprised by the revelation.

This discovery forced Liam to abandon his previous plan.

A successful level seven breakthrough for Zephyr Ape wouldn't just jeopardize Liam's chances of getting the Universe Crystal Dew but also make his own survival much harder.

Liam's expression turned grim, yet he remained composed. His mind felt incredibly sharp at the moment.

He made a bold decision; he would go to the Lotus Lake.

This wasn't a death wish. Liam understood the critical nature of Zephyr Ape's breakthrough.

Any external disturbance at this point could lead to Zephyr Ape's failure, or even a significant setback.

This was Liam's last chance to act. He wouldn't get another.

With unwavering resolve, Liam instructed Laura, "Stay here and tend to Shayla. I'm heading to the Lotus Lake alone to disrupt Zephyr Ape's breakthrough."

He understood the risks involved. One wrong move, and he might face a brutal demise at the hands of the Zephyr Ape. He wouldn't risk Laura's safety.

Laura's face hardened with defiance. "Absolutely not! I'm coming with you! Besides, it wouldn't be safe for Shayla and me staying here."

Liam, anticipating Laura's resistance, had a plan to persuade her. "With the Zephyr Ape gone, only three teams are left here. The odds of you encountering any of them are slim. Just stay and look after Shayla. I won't let you join me on this. If I succeed, I'll be back quickly. If not..."

He took a deep breath. "You can take refuge here with Shayla until the secret realm closes."

Laura's face still burned with insistence.

Liam, however, cut her off before she could say anything. "Time is limited. I've made my decision!" he said.
